ITALY LEAVES DOOR OPEN IN REJECTION OF LEAGUE PLAN

Negotiations Still Possible to Meet Objection It Does Not Give 'Sufficient Minimum Basis for Conclusive Realization.'

COMMITTEE WAITS FOR OFFICIAL REPLY

Five-Power Body at Geneva Issues Statement After Meeting to Consider Rome's Refusal of Its Terms.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 21.—Premier Mussolini of Italy was disposed to negotiate the acute Ethiopian problem, an Italian spokesman said tonight, even though his Cabinet today rejected the peace plan of a League of Nations committee.

Insisting there is no rupture between Italy and the League, the spokesman emphasized the significance of this phrase in today's Italian communique: That the League committees' recommendations 'do not offer a minimum basis for a conclusive realization which finally and effectively would take into account Italy's vital rights and interests."

The League's committee of five which drafted the peace proposal, met tonight to discuss Italy's rejection. Unable to determine the exact meaning of Mussolini's move, however, the committee adjourned after an hour's conference with the announcement it would await Italy's official reply.

A communique was published by the committee to the effect that it met and "took note of the communique given to the press by the Italian Government." It added: "In order to gain the exact idea of the significance of this communique the committee decided to await the official reply of the Italian Government and whatever observations might accompany it."

The impression prevailed in Italian circles that Mussolini had given the League another chance to ask him: What is your minimum? His chief delegate, Baron Pompeo Aloisi, doubtless will make this new opportunity clear to the Council's committee, it is said.

First Official Recognition.

One member of the Italian delegation pointed out that "this constituted the first official recognition of the League's mediation by the Italian Government," and said the Cabinet action implied that revised proposals would receive the most friendly consideration by Italy.

While the British reaction to the Italian reply was one of disappointment, the British, like the others, seemed impressed by the moderate tone of non-acceptance as compared to the flat "no compromise" statement after last week's cabinet meeting in Rome.

League officials, pointed out that Mussolini's "non-acceptance" of the committee's project did not involve any clear rupture with the League because the Ethiopian crisis was still in the conciliation stage. If conciliation should be officially declared impossible, Mussolini might find himself facing an international policeman, they added. That meant, the officials explained, that the crisis was not yet being handled under any definite article of the League Covenant. If the Powers should decide that conciliation was perfectly hopeless the League Council must decide whether to proceed under Article 15, presenting to both Italy and Ethiopia a definite series of recommendations.

Possibilities of Situation.

These recommendations may not be the same as those contained in the existing project of the committee of five, which was described as "the framework of a plan" for technical assistance to Ethiopia in administrative, economic, financial and social reform.

Should this new report be accepted unanimously by the Council and rejected by Italy, and should Italy resort to war in defiance of the Council's recommendations, then, and then only, would the question of sanctions arise.

Under the Covenant Italy would be enjoined from resorting to hostilities for three months after the adoption of the Council's report. But if Italy should begin a war, it would, under the punitive article of the Covenant, be deemed to

LEGION OPENS CONVENTION TOMORROW; CROWDS ARRIVE BY AUTO, TRAIN AND PLANE

Accommodations Ready for 135,000 — Highlight for General Public to Be All-Day Parade Tuesday.

Vanguards of the peacetime army which will open the seventeenth annual national convention of the American Legion tomorrow arrived in St. Louis during the last few days. Many more of the soldiers, sailors and Marines of 1917-18 will come in today.

Uniforms, no longer restricted to the olive drab of World War days, flashed in brilliant colors on the streets and in hotel lobbies. Brass bands and drum and bugle corps will make themselves heard today.

The four-day convention, with headquarters at Municipal Auditorium, will open officially tomorrow morning. It will be the biggest convention ever held in St. Louis. Principal accommodations have been provided as follows: Hotels, 35,000 persons; apartments, 5000; rooms in private homes, 50,000; quarters in gymnasiums, vacant buildings and other places, with Army equipment, 30,000; "Pullman City," in sleeping cars in the railroad yards south of Market street, between Union Station and Compton avenue, 15,000; also many others in tourist camps and homes of friends and relatives.

All-Day Parade Tuesday.

The highlight of the convention, as far as the general public is concerned, will be an all-day parade Tuesday. Marchers and spectators were expected to take over the entire downtown district, virtually halting all ordinary business for the day.

This convention will be a homecoming for the American Legion, which was founded in St. Louis at a caucus May 8 to 10, 1919, six months after the Armistice ending the World War. Post No. 1 of the Legion, Quentin Roosevelt Post, is in St. Louis. The caucus was held in the old Shubert-Jefferson Theater, in the Union Electric Building at Twelfth boulevard and Locust street.

Official delegations arrived yesterday from 24 state departments and other units of the Legion, including the Philippines, China, France, Italy and Puerto Rico. There will be about 1210 official delegates, depending on the report of the Credentials Committee, which will apportion seats according to unit memberships. There are 57 departments —the 48 states, District of Columbia, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Philippine Islands, Panama, Canada, Mexico, France and Italy. There also are outlying posts in Belgium, China, Cuba, Denmark, Greece, Scotland, Ireland, England, Guatemala and Guam.

Thirty-five special trains will arrive today from all parts of the country and regular trains will have about 250 extra coaches. Many other visitors have set out for St. Louis by airplane, bus and automobile.

Demand for Bonus.

A great variety of business will be transacted by the convention delegates, while the great mass of visitors indulge in having a good time in reunion with old companions.

The campaign for immediate payment of the veterans' bonus was certain to be revived. Two leaders for bonus legislation in the recent session of Congress will be present. They are Congressman Wright Patman of Texas, whose bonus bill was vetoed by President Roosevelt, with the Senate sustaining the veto, and Congressman Fred M. Vinson of Kentucky, sponsor of the Legion bonus bill, which failed of passage. Forty-five of the Legion's domestic departments have submitted resolutions asking immediate payment of the bonus, with concelation of accrued interest and refund of interest already paid.

The Resolutions Committee, meeting Friday, assigned to appropriate committees 736 resolutions submitted by the various departments. About half of them dealt with rehabilitation of war veterans and their dependents. Other subjects included: Americanism, national defense, taking the profits out of war, child welfare, law and order, highwa ysafety, "rational" immigration provisions, citizenship building, expansion of the community service program, protection and promotion of the principles on which the country was founded, introduction of military training in CCC camps and admission of destitute veterans to these camps, deportation of aliens entering the country illegally, a "Buy American" campaign, withdrawal of Russian recognition, combatting of communism, forbidding use of public schools for peace demonstrations.

Committees will report on these and other subjects Wednesday and Thursday.

Meetings Open to Public.

All meetings of the Legion, except committee sessions and invitation dinners, will be open to the public, as will the various contests

NOISY CROWDS FILL STREETS ON CONVENTION EVE

Whistles, Bells and Choruses Swell Din as Legionnaires Arrive.

A boisterous prelude to the Legion Convention choked downtown streets last night as sirens shrieked, bells clanged, groups of legionnaires exchanged loud greetings and hundreds of sightseers drove through the streets, blowing horns and adding to the din.

Hotel lobbies, stripped of everything but heavy furniture, were jammed. Groups of delegates from various sections of the country were fraternizing.

"Barber shop" quartet strolled along the sidewalks, some of them chorusing "Beer, beer, beer for the privatees." Boisterous informality ruled. A dice game was started on the sidewalk at Locust street and Twelfth boulevard.

Policemen, sometimes smiling under difficulties, did their best to direct traffic despite volunteer assistants at nearly every corner who blew whistles, dodged cars and added to the general confusion.

The bright uniforms of the visiting service men added to color of the crowds. Through the streets moved the characteristic locomotives and box cars of the "40 and 8" each with a load of shouting legionnaires. A big ship's bell on Twelfth boulevard was rung by all who cared to ring it—and it was never silent.

'SAMMY,' ZOO CHIMPANZEE, ATTACKS VETERAN POLICEMAN

Officer Knocked Down Bitten Three Times Before Animal Is Subdued.

"Sammy," performing chimpanzee at the Zoo, was in an ill humor when Detective-Sergeant Timothy J. Grogan, on duty at the Zoo during the American Legion convention, walked into the Primate House yesterday afternoon to use the telephone.

The chimpanzee dodged around a keeper, who was feeding him and tackled Grogan, who was behind the cage. The agile "Sammy" knocked the veteran policeman down, tore his clothing and bit him on the ankle, thigh and hand before Max Mall and Cash Ferguson, keepers, subdued him. Following treatment at City Hospital, Grogan, who is 60 years old, went home to change his torn suit before returning to duty.

SUIT TO RECOVER WARE BABY TO BE FILED TOMORROW

Habeas Corpus Proceeding Agreed on at Conference of Attorneys and County Prosecutor.

APPLICATION TO BE DRAWN UP TODAY

Action Probably Will Be Directed Against Dr. and Mrs. Muench, and Wilfred Jones.

An application for a writ of habeas corpus for the return of Anna Ware's baby son, which she gave to the lawyer, Wilfred Jones last Aug. 17, will be filed tomorrow morning, probably in the St. Louis Court of Appeals, it was announced last night by Associate Prosecuting Attorney John Wolfe of St. Louis County.

The suit will be filed by Mary Ware, as next friend of her sister, the unmarried mother of the child, who is 19 years old and a minor.

Wolfe said the habeas corpus suit, agreed on yesterday in a conference at Clayton attended by Wolfe, Prosecuting Attorney Anderson and counsel for the two sisters, probably would be directed against Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, 4736 Westminster place, defendant in the Kelley kidnaping case; her husband, Dr. Ludwig O. Muench, and Wilfred Jones, a close friend of the Muenches.

May Clear Up Mystery.

If no further obstacle is thrown in Prosecutor Anderson's way, the court proceedings are expected to clear up the absorbing mystery of where Anna's baby has been for the last month, or since the reported birth of a son to Mrs. Muench.

It was the investigation of this reported birth, started more than a week ago by Prosecuting Attorney Anderson, that revealed the presence in the Muench home of one of two babies procured by Jones "for adoption" within a few weeks. It was there 24 hours, at least, and until illness compelled its removal to a hospital, where it died last July 16.

It was after the death of this child, an illegitimate infant known as the Price baby, that Jones arranged for Anna Ware to come to St. Louis to have her baby, and arranged the mysterious circumstances under which it was taken from her on the night of Aug. 17, only a few hours before the reported birth of a son to Mrs. Muench.

Ware Sisters Reunited.

A crowd that packed the corridor in front of Prosecutor Anderson's office was waiting yesterday at 10:30 o'clock to catch a glimpse of the Ware sisters, who by pre-arrangement were to be reunited for the first time since Anna left their home in Newton, Pa., on Aug. 1, to come to St. Louis and give birth to her child.

They arrived separately, Anna accompanied by her lawyer, Thomas Bond, and her sister accompanied by Attorney William Berthold. There was a tearful meeting between the sisters in a room in the prosecutor's office, to which they retired.

After 15 minutes they entered Anderson's office with their lawyers. Present were Anderson, Wolfe, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John McNatt and counsel for the sisters.

Then enused a 90-minute conference, in which the prosecutor and his staff urged the filing of application for a writ of habeas corpus as the correct method of procedure. Bond, after several counter propositions outlined in detail elsewhere in this edition, finally agreed to enter the suit on behalf of the younger sister, and it was arranged that the prosecutor's staff and counsel for the Ware girls would meet at 10 a. m. today in Clayton to draw the application.

At Hotel for Week-End.

The crowd in the corridor had grown during the conference and Deputy Sheriffs had to elbow through the throng at noon to make way for the exit of the sisters, who were then escorted to the Congress Hotel for the week-end.

Prior to the meeting of the sisters, Prosecutor Anderson announced to the press that he would countenance no compromise under which Anna Ware's son would be returned to her without court action. The statement was evoked by an announcement Friday night by Shepard R. Evans, counsel for Wilfred Jones, that he would seek to have the baby returned to the

MAN FIRING TWO PISTOLS KILLED IN FIGHT WITH POLICE

East St. Louis Prowler Shot to Death After He Wounds Patrolman Responding to Radio Call.

SHOOTING IN YARD OF APARTMENT HOUSE

Officer, Hit in Knee, Returns Fire and Others Rush to Aid — Assailant Drops With 10 Bullets.

An unidentified man was shot and killed last night in an exchange of shots with East St. Louis policemen, one of whom, William Walsh, suffered a bullet wound in the left knee.

The shooting occurred in the yard of an apartment house at 1205 College avenue as the police were obeying a radio call to search for a prowler. Walsh said that he was examining an areaway when he was fired on from behind a hedge.

As he fell, wounded, he drew his service revolver and fired three shots but as the shooting was in progress two other officers, Detective Sergeant Sweeney and Patrolman Bott, ran into the yard and opened fire, the fugitive firing on them with two revolvers.

The prowler who appeared to be about 21 years old, with light hair, fell dead with 10 wounds about the body and legs. He had fired 11 of the 12 shells in two 32-20 caliber revolvers.

The man wore a blue serge suit with overalls drawn over the trousers. His right thumb had been cut off and his right leg was short. No identification marks were found in his clothing.

Three other policemen were near the scene, all occupants of scout cars who had received a radio call three minutes earlier that two prowlers were in the neighborhood.

Mrs. W. D. Taylor, 1112 Summit avenue, across an alley from the scene of the shooting, identified the dead man as one of two men who had called earlier at her home and aroused her suspicions by a series of aimless questions. No trace was found of the other man.

Mrs. Taylor notified police when she observed that her callers left an old coupe at the curb and walked down the alley. When police looked for the car after the shooting it was gone, presumably driven away by the other man.

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN SAYS BRITAIN MUST KEEP ITS TEMPER

Chancellor of Exchequer Urges Nation to 'Face Realities,' However, and Build Up Defenses.

By the Associated Press.

KELSO, Wales, Sept. 21.—Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain told a Conservative rally here today that the nation "must keep its temper," meanwhile trusting that Italy will prove willing to assist in maintaining peace in Europe.

He declared, however, that Great Britain must "face realities and bring her defensive strength up to the minimum required for her own self defense."

Britain, he said, is "greatly handicapped by the fact, the knowledge of which is quite widespread on the continent, that our defensive forces have fallen to a dangerously low level."

"That is not a tolerable situation for a great country," he added. "If Great Britain's words are to be listened to with respect, if she is to make good any obligations she might undertake, then she must be recognized to be strong enough to make good those words."

APPEAL BY ITALIAN KING TO KING GEORGE REPORTED

Letter Said to Have Been Inspired by Alarm Over Tension Between Countries.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—A Reuters (British) News Agency dispatch from Geneva said a rumor was current there that King Victor Emmanuel had written a letter to King George of Great Britain, appealing for "better understanding" between the British and Italian peoples.

The Italian King, the rumor said, also referred to the comradeship of the two kingdoms during the World War. Alarm at the growing tension in Anglo-Italian relations was reported to have inspired this unusual step, the dispatch said.

British circles here said they had no knowledge of the report.

THREE YEARS IN PRISON FOR FARM RIOT LEADER; 12 OTHERS SENTENCED

JUDGE DENOUNCES MOB ACTION AS NEAR TO TREASON

Followers Get Day in Jail to 2 Years in Plattsburg Foreclosure Case, After 14 Plead Guilty in U. S. Court at St. Joseph.

'INFAMY HAS SPREAD TO THE FAR CORNERS'

Missouri's Name Damaged, Says Judge Reeves, Charging Men With Robbery, Mayhem,. Contempt, Conspiracy.

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 21. — Thirteen farmers who took part in blocking a Federal farm foreclosure sale at Plattsburg, Mo., Aug. 15, were sentenced today to from one day to three years imprisonment.

Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves assessed the maximum punishment of three years against Clifton Gall, as ringleader, for contempt of court and two years for conspiracy to interfere with a Federal officer, the sentences to run concurrently.

"Your action is dangerously near to treason, and certainly rebellion and insurrection," the Judge declared, in delivering a scathing denunciation of the farmers' course.

Other sentences passed were (each on two counts, to run concurrently): Samuel Divelbiss, owner of the farm, and J. D. Pipes and A. A. Holman, one year a day; Homer Crowley, Dan Stoffel, C. A. Jones, and Randolph T. (Skip) Arnold, two years; Charles Anderson, one day; Marvin Arnold, Allen Handley, Frank Hixon, Ivan Divelbiss, three months.

Another to Be Sentenced.

Still to be sentenced is Harrison Nathan Jones, the fourteenth of the men accused of manhandling four Federal officers. He collapsed today, screaming at Federal witnesses: "All these people are liars." A physician said Jones, a former City Councilman in Cameron, Mo., apparently was not in a serious condition.

The convicted men were herded into a tiny cell room in the Federal building while weeping relatives crowded around.

United States Marshal Henry L. Dillingham said he would move the men sentenced to more than one year to Leavenworth prison soon. The others will serve their terms in jail.

All the defendants pleaded guilty unexpectedly this morning after the presentation of Federal testimony. They apologized to Marshal Dillingham, whom they held prisoner with three aids at the courthouse in Plattsburg, until 5 p. m., the legal time for the sale of the farm on the day of the rioting, had been disarmed, beaten and cursed.

Dillingham said Divelbiss identified himself as "the man the Government is trying to steal the farm from," blamed the Supreme Court's outlawing of the Frazier-Lemke Farm Mortgage Act and charged that "Wall street was back of it."

What Judge Had to Say.

Judge Reeves said he had sought hopefully through three days of testimony to find some indication of innocence or of vindication for the men. He found none, he said, and declared:

"Other crimes were committed. This mob, and I know of no better term for it, committed robbery, slander, mayhem, false arrest, felonious assault, conspiracy and unlawful assembly in its unspeakable attack upon an officer of this court.

"With my usual solicitude for the defendants," he added, "I have sought and sought in vain for some ameliorating circumstance—I had hope these men would come to the stand and be frank after their

ROOSEVELT WILL RETURN TO WHITE HOUSE TONIGHT

The President Sees a Ball Game; Today His Mother's 81st Birthday.

By the Associated Press.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 21.—President Roosevelt began a two-day vacation today before returning to the White House tomorrow night. There were no official callers for the first time since his arrival here three weeks ago.

Today marked the eighty-first birthday of Mrs. Sarah Roosevelt, mother of the President.

Mr. Roosevelt motored to Pawling, where he looked on for a few innings, while the White House Tigers were beaten, 23 to 16, by the Saints and Sinners of Pawling in a seven-inning baseball game. The President, with Mrs. Roosevelt and Vincent Astor, saw his youngest son, John, and his son-in-law, John Boettiger, play for the Tigers, a team composed mainly of White House correspondents. He shook hands with Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, who was recruited by the Saints and Sinners team of Lowell Thomas, radio commentator. Dempsey was a guest of Kenneth C. Hogate, editor of the Wall Street Journal, who also played with the Saints and Sinners. Mrs. Anne Boettiger watched from the sidelines.

The President plans to pack after church tomorrow, for the return to Washington .He will speak Monday before a meeting of those in charge of the annual mobilization for human needs.

Mr. Roosevelt expects to start next week on the trip to the California-Pacific Exposition at San Diego and a fishing cruise on the Pacific Ocean.

CITY INVADED BY SWARMS OF GREEN LEAF HOPPERS

Small Flying Insects Can Pass Through Screens; Cluster About Lights.

Swarms of small green flying insects known as leaf hoppers invaded St. Louis last night. They swarmed around street lights and flew into open windows, gathering wherever there was light.

The insects are related to cicadas and live on the foliage of trees, sucking the juice out of leaves. They get through screens without difficulty.

Socialist Editor Fined $8,620,000.

OVIEDO, Spain, Sept. 21.—Javier Bueno, editor of the Socialist newspaper Avance, tried by a court martial today for participation in the October revolt, was ordered to pay an indemnity of 70,000,000 pesetas—in other words, $8,620,000.

BAR HANGS OUT SIGNS, "OPEN FROM NOW ON"

Others Indicate Intent to Forget Closing Hours While Legion Is Here.

Bartenders in most downtown taverns in St. Louis informed customers last night that, in spite of state and city closing laws, they planned to remain open at all hours during the American Legion convention.

One downtown bar bore signs on the windows advertising that it would be "open from now on" for the convenience of Legionnaires and other customers.

Excise Commissioner Thomas L. Anderson said to a Post-Dispatch reporter last night that the local liquor ordinance would be strictly enforced and the owner or operator of any tavern violating any of its provisions would be cited to appear before the Commissioner to show cause why his license should not be revoked or suspended.

"The fact that we are having a convention does not alter the fact that the law is still in effect," he said.

Both State and city liquor laws specifically provide that no intoxicating liquor shall be sold after 1:30 a. m. on weekdays or on Sunday. The State law provides the same regulations for establishments selling 3.2 per cent beer, but there is no local 3.2 beer law, as the ordinance recently passed by the Board of Aldermen has been held invalid by Circuit Judge O'Malley, and a new ordinance has just been introduced.

Anderson said he had not issued any special request to the police department to enforce the law during the convention as "the police know as well as I that the law is in force."

On a number of downtown street corners, "mushroom" bars have been constructed within the last few days, must of them with nothing but a wooden plank for a bar, with kegs of beer or bottles of liquor on a shelf in the rear. Under the law, they are required to obtain both state and city liquor licenses, costing $300 a year each, as there is no provision for temporary licenses in either the state or city liquor laws.

Customers also noticed that in some of the more elaborately furnished downtown bars, the chromium tables and chairs had been removed in favor of rude, unpainted wooden furniture.

BRITAIN READY FOR ACTION IN MEDITERRANEAN

Navy and Air Forces Concentrated to Meet Threat to Interests by African Crisis.

NO QUARREL WITH ITALY, SAY OFFICIALS

Activities Continue at Gibraltar, Malta and Other Key Stations for Control of Sea.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Great Britain stands apparently ready tonight to act should her interests be threatened by an Italo-Ethiopian war. Concentration of navy and air forces in the Mediterranean, appears to be near completion.

A critical week will open Monday with a Cabinet meeting expected early in the week. In contrast to the last Cabinet session on Aug. 22, when the Admiralty reported the navy was not prepared to enforce British will in the Mediterranean the Ministers will find the Government ready in zones possibly endangered by the Italo-Ethiopian crisis.

Officials, leaving their offices today when news of the Italian Cabinet decision to reject the League's peace proposal reached London, were not inclined to place too much importance upon it, having expected a rejection. But authoritative sources pointed out this rejection did not close the door to further negotiations.

Although officials let it be known Britain is ready to act in case of a threat, they declared there was no quarrel between Britain and Italy. The navy has not been assembled in the Mediterranean with any idea of enforcing sanctions, they asserted, but for frankly defensive reasons, in view of grave uncertainties over what the future may bring.

Comparison of Forces.

The biggest peace time concentration of the British navy in the Mediterranean gives her present strength there at approximately five battleships, three battle cruisers, 20 to 25 cruisers, two aircraft carriers, 60 to 65 destroyers, 10 to 15 submarines, a dozen minesweepers, and numerous sloops, mine layers, auxiliary and miscellaneous craft.

The best available unofficial reports indicate this compares with Italy's four battleships, seven big cruisers, 20 cruisers, 20 large destroyers, 40 destroyers, 50 to 65 submarines, 17 mine layers, 38 mine sweepers and many smaller armed craft.

Italy appears far superior in the air. There are only approximately 150 airplanes with the British fleet in the Mediterranean and perhaps twice that many more gathered at secret rendezvous in Egypt and adjacent areas. Against this the Italians are generally understood to be able to put nearly 3000 planes in the air, and most of these are believed to be concentrated in the Mediterranean and the East African sector.

Activities continued at Gibraltar, Malta, Alexandria and Aden, four key British stations for control of the Mediterranean.

Measures Taken for Defense of Malta's Population.

By the Associated Press.

VALETTA, Malta, Sept. 21.—Italy's rejection of Geneva's peace proposals was received today with grave apprehension at this island outpost of the British Empire.

Authoritative sources told the Associated Press Malta had no need of concern, in view of measures taken for defense. These precautions are a military secret, but doubling of the destroyer and submarine flotillas based here and a tremendous increase in anti-aircraft facilities are visible. Technicians have been sent here for development of measures to protect the civil population against aerial and gas attacks. "Malta has never been so well defended," said one informed source.

A communique tonight announced plans for new aerial defense maneuvers over the island Tuesday night, with civilian participation. The populace is requested to extinguish lights between 9 and 10 p. m. All traffic will be suspended during the maneuvers.

Defense preparations, including the construction of gas-proof chambers, were hastened today. Government officials gave instructions to the public in the use of shelters and how to defend themselves in case of an air raid. All public meetings have been forbidden and strict anti-sedition laws have been invoked.

The Malta Chronicle today said: "Whatever happens, Great Britain and the Empire will not be found wanting in determination and efforts to keep the flag flying over the walls of the ramparts of this great little half-way house of the middle sea."

The strained Anglo-Italian-Ethiopian situation has resulted, tourist agencies say, in a marked decline in traffic.

and of course, the big parade Tuesday and the 40 and 8 parade tomorrow evening. For tomorrow's opening session, which will start with music at 9 a. m., the 4600 seats in the balcony, or upper tier, of the auditorium arena will be open to the public, on a first-come-first-served basis. The 2800 seats in the mezzanine will be reserved for guests, but any not needed may be opened to the public. Delegates, alternates, officials and others will be seated in more than 3400 portable chairs on the main floor and stage.

Among notables already in town yesterday were Assistant Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring and Col. J. Monroe Johnson of North Carolina, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, who has been a member of the Executive Committee since the Legion was formed.

Gen. Rice A. Pierce of Union City, Tenn., retiring commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, was expected to arrive last evening, to stay with his son, Thomas M. Pierce, 21 Vandeventer place. Lieutenant-General Harry Rene Lee of Nashville, Tenn., who is succeeding him, was due early today. Also expected were Col. Alfred E. Stacey of Elbridge, N. Y., retiring commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, and Oley Nelson of Slater, Ia., his successor.

Delegation from Canada.

An official Canadian delegation to arrive this afternoon will consist of Col. Francis de Martigny and Lieut.-Colonel Emile Vaillancourt, representing the Canadian Legion and the province of Quebec, and Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal.

Other important guests expected by the Legion include: A number of Governors, Ernestine Schumann-Heink, the noted singer, now living in Chicago, who will sing the national anthem and another selection at the opening session; Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the United States Veterans' Administration; Richmond Pearson Hobson, New York, of Santiago-'98 fame; Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball's high commissioner; Joseph Granier, official representative of France and of the French World War Veterans; Dr. Vinzo Commito, representing Italian World War Veterans, and Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago.

Many familiar figures of Legion gatherings, known for their eccentricities or wide acquaintance, also will attend. Probably the youngest will be Victor Keith MacKenzie, three-year-old son of "Vic" MacKenzie of Salem, Ore., permanent national convention director. He was born and christened during the 1932 meeting at Portland, Ore., and was made a Kentucky Colonel by the Kentucky Legion adjutant yesterday in behalf of Gov. Laffoon.

One of the visitors who arrived yesterday was J. Rosser Venable, Little Rock (Ark.) attorney, who has announced his candidacy against United States Senator Robinson for the Democratic nomination for Senator in the 1936 primary. Venable was an unsuccessful candidate for the nomination for Governor of Arkansas in 1928.

The Credentials, Permanent Organization, Rules and Executive committees will meet this afternoon at Municipal Auditorium.

There will be a public child welfare conference at the auditorium at 2:15 o'clock this afternoon.

Service in Forest Park.

At 7 o'clock this evening there will be a public religious and patriotic service at Municipal Theater, Forest Park. The Legion's national championship band from Columbus, O., will play, opening the program with patriotic airs and "Onward, Christian Soldiers." The chorus of the eleventh and twelfth districts of the Legion Auxiliary will sing, and the St. Louis Grand Opera Chorus will sing "The Star-Spangled Banner." Speeches will be delivered by the Rev. P. W. Huntington, national chaplain of the Legion, and Gov. Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, a past national commander.

There will be an all-day and evening regatta and water carnival on the Mississippi between Eads and Municipal bridges today and an aerial circus in the afternoon at Curtiss-Steinberg Field.

National Commander Frank N. Belgrano Jr. of San Francisco will call the convention to order at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow. Distinguished guests will be introduced during the session, which will adjourn after Belgrano's report, to be delivered about 1 p. m. There will be a pause or a memorial service at 10:30 a. m. The national commander's dinner for notables will be at Hotel Statler at 7 p. m. tomorrow.

Golfing Legionnaires will join in a contest at 8 a. m. tomorrow at Westborough Country Club.

Buglers and drummers will have competitions for national championships at 2 p. m. tomorrow at St. Louis University Law School auditorium and the Show Boat, 4460 Delmar boulevard, respectively.

Mock Attack by Air.

Numerous Army flyers and an anti-aircraft regiment from Fort Sheridan, Ill., will join in a demonstration at the old flying field in Forest Park, near Clayton and Oakland avenues, at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow. Fifty planes and three airships will come by way of Scott Field, while the ground forces will operate 22,000,000 candlepower searchlights and delicate sound apparatus to detect the craft, and fire tracer bullets at them. The anti-aircraft equipment will be open to public inspection during the day.

The Society of Forty Men and Eight Horses, fun-making branch of the Legion, holding its sixteenth annual meeting, will convene at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow at Municipal Auditorium. It will hold a colorful parade, starting at 7 p. m. tomorrow at Jefferson avenue and Olive street and following the same route as the next day's "big parade." The 40 and 8 procession will include many replicas of the French locomotives and boxcars meant for 40 men or eight horses in the World War. Ancient automobiles, floats, bands, drum and bugle corps and clowns will be among other participants. The locomotive-boxcar outfits and the aged motor cars will be judged at Grand boulevard and Laclede avenue at 3 p. m. tomorrow. Marchers in the parade will disband into the opera house of Municipal Auditorium for a "wreck."

Most Business at Standstill.

St. Louis business will be largely at a standstill Tuesday, when the "big parade" will start at 10 a. m and last until 4 p. m. or later, with thousands of uniformed Legionnaires marching over Olive street, Twelfth boulevard, Chestnut, Fifteenth and Market streets, past a reviewing stand between Municipal Courts Building and City Hall. City and State offices here and most courts will be closed. Public schools will be closed. Many business houses and offices downtown will be closed, although retail stores, restaurants and drug stores will be open.

Postal employes will have a half-holiday, with two mail deliveries downtown and one in residential sections. Public libraries will be closed. Banks will keep skeleton forces on duty to comply with state law, but will not transact business with the public. St. Louis University will be closed.

The Third Wing of the new General Headquarters Air Force of the Army, making a nonstop flight from Shreveport, La., will fly over the official reviewing stand as the parade gets under way.

Three contests will be held Wednesday. At least 25 brass bands are expected to compete at Municipal Theater, Forest Park, at 8 a. m., and more than 100 drum and bugle corps at Walsh Stadium, Oakland avenue, west of Kingshighway, at the same hour. Finals of the latter contest will be at 7 p. m. At 1:30 p. m., at Public Schools Stadium, Kingshighway and St. Louis avenue, there will be a rifle drill team competition.

Final Business Sessions.

Concluding business sessions of the Legion will be held in the 3563-seat opera house of Municipal Auditorium at 9 a. m., Wednesday and Thursday. It was expected some seats might be available for the public. Officers will be elected Thursday. There is the usual keen competition for the national commandership, with numerous candidates carrying on campaigns, more or less along political lines.

The 40 and 8 will have a final business meeting at the auditorium at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday.

All city employes of New York belonging to the Legion have been granted time off with full pay for the convention; many are expected to come. A caravan of 44 automobiles is on the way with one group of Minnesota Legionnaires. The 16-piece "leetle Cherman band" from Winona, Minn., will be one of the hundreds of musical organizations here. The Louisiana delegation brough an old Negro "mammy" along to serve Louisiana drip coffee at its headquarters at the Mayfair Hotel. Legion men from Scranton, Pa., most of whom are coal miners, will arrive today in two special trains, wearing mining clothes and safety headlights.

Downtown streets echoed last night to the laughter, shouts, backfiring and can-dragging automobiles of arriving Legionnaires. The parade route was gay with bunting in the national and Legion colors, as were buildings throughout the business district and many outlying sections.

Convention of Auxiliary.

The American Legion Auxiliary, comprising 450,000 mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of Legionnaires, headed by Mrs. Albin Charles Carlson of Willmar, Minn., will hold its fifteenth annual convention here, at Moolah Temple, 3821 Lindell boulevard, with committee meetings at 2, 3 and 4:30 o'clock this afternoon and general sessions at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow and 8 a. m. Wednesday and Thursday. There will be 721 delegates and as many alternates. The auxiliary will have a music contest at 4 p. m. tomorrow at Sheldon Memorial, 3646 Washington boulevard.

The Women Veterans of the World War, with 40,000 members, will have many members here. They belong to Legion posts and will participate in the Legion convention. They will have a luncheon at Hotel Jefferson at 1 p. m. tomorrow, with addresses by Gov. Park, Mayor Dickmann, Gov. McNutt of Indiana, Congressman Patman, Miss Dorothy Frooks of Peekskill, N. Y., their national commander, and others.

Other women's groups to be represented will include the Shop of the Eight Hats and Forty Women, a 40 and 8 adjunct; the National Yeomen (F), women who served in the Navy in the World War and belong to the Legion; and the National Organization of World War Nurses. The Eight and Forty will meet at Hotel Jefferson at 10:30 o'clock tonight, at Municipal Auditorium at 4 p. m. tomorrow, at Hotel Statler at 10 p. m. tomorrow and at the Jefferson at 5 p. m. Wednesday. Its head is Mrs. Mary McClung.

Sons of the American Legion, consisting of boys of pre-scouting age, will take part in the Tuesday parade.

Many reunions of World War divisions, regiments and other units have been and are beng arranged. Most of them will be at banquets. The Second Division Association, for example, will have a dinner at 7 p. m. Wednesday at Hotel Statler, with an address by Hanford McNider of Iowa, former head of the association and of the Legion, former Assistant Secretary of War and former Minister to Canada. Enlisted personnel of Base Hospital No. 21 (Washington University) will meet at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Kings-Way Hotel.

British war veterans will gather at Cardinal and Lucas avenues at 1:30 p. m. Teusday to join the Missouri contingent in the parade.

Numerous entertainments of various kinds have been arranged in connection with the convention, including the "Streets of Paris Carnival and Folies Bergere" every afternoon and evening in exposition hall of Municipal Auditorium. A number of local Legion posts will have open house. Two burlesque theaters have been opened, in addition to the one usually running, and night clubs have looked for big business.

How the Legion Has Grown.

The American Legion was established as the great central organization of Americans who served in the nation's armed forces overseas and at home in the World War. From its small beginning in St. Louis it has grown to a membership exceeding 832,000, in 11,204 posts all over the country. Its greatest strength is in the Middle West.

Today the Legionnaires correspond in age with the men of the Grand Army of the Republic as they were in 1882, or 17 years after the Civil War, and with the United Spanish War Veterans as they were in 1915. The Legion, however, is much larger.

The preamble to the constitution for the Legion says: "For God and country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States, to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a 100 per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the Great War; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness."

Smoke Fills Sherman, Guests Flee From Rooms and Cafes.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21. — Smoke which filled the Sherman Hotel today caused many guests to flee from their rooms and routed those in the hotel's bars and restaurants, including the College Inn.

The fire started below the kitchen apparently in the grease pits. Smoke billowed through the air chute from the kitchen to the eighteenth floor. There was a rush for the elevators. The smoke entered the Harris Theater a block away. Henry Hull, playing there in "Tobacco Road," ended an exodus by berating the audience.

The fire at the hotel was soon under control and the damage was slight.

Simultaneously William H. Neblett, one of her attorneys in the divorce action against Jean Paul Getty, oil operator, sought a $100,000 fee.

DOWNTOWN TRAFFIC BARRED FOR PARADES

Area Extends From Grand to Fourth; Rules Apply Tomorrow Night, Tuesday.

Virtually all traffic will be barred Tuesday, the day of the American Legion parade, from the central downtown area, extending from Grand boulevard to Fourth street.

The same regulations will apply for the Forty and Eight parade tomorrow night, beginning at 7 o'clock.

The restricted zone will be bounded on the south by a line running along Market street from Grand to Seventeenth street, jogging then south to Clark avenue, and continuing on Clark to Fourth.

On the north the boundary line will run along Delmar boulevard from Grand to Twelfth boulevard, jogging north there to Wash street, and continuing east on Wash to Fourth.

Within that area the only vehicles which will be permitted on the streets after 4 a. m. Tuesday are street cars, busses, taxicabs and service cars, official Legion cars and mail trucks. Food trucks may enter up to 9 a. m.

During the parade, which will begin at 10 a. m. and continue until about 6 p. m., the only vehicles which will be permitted to cross the parade route will be fire and police cars, ambulances and emergency vehicles on emergency runs. Pedestrians will not be permitted to cross the route.

The parade will form on the streets west of Jefferson avenue, and the march will begin at Jefferson and Olive. The route will be east on Olive to Twelfth, south to Chestnut, west to Fifteenth, south to Market, and east to Eleventh street, where the parade will disband.

Northbound automobiles over the Twelfth boulevard viaduct, will have to turn east or west at Spruce street and circle the restricted area. If traffic should become jammed on the viaduct, automobiles will be halted at Chouteau avenue and sent east or west from there.

Street cars entering the restricted zone have been re-routed extensively. Olive street cars will be operated on Washington avenue, and those which regularly use Pine street will have other routes west of Ninth street.

The Lindenwood busses will use Clark avenue and Walnut street east of Eighteenth, instead of Market street, as usually. The Gravois busses will turn off at Clark avenue, instead of at Market.

Fifty-eight State Highway policemen will help regulate traffic on Market street from Seventeenth street to Grand boulevard. Four two-way radio cars will keep Police Headquarters informed of traffic conditions.

NEWSPAPER AND LAWYERS BALK ANDERSON'S PLAN

Information as to Whereabouts of Mother of Missing Baby, a Minor, Denied Him by Star-Times.

FINALLY RESORTS TO HABEAS CORPUS WRIT

Lawyers Then Oppose Court Proceedings to Find Child, Suggest Agreement by Parties.

The appearance yesterday at Clayton of Anna Ware, minor mother of one of the infants in the baby drama, in company of Thomas Bond, an attorney retained to represent her, relieved the persons named last week in a habeas corpus action to get custody of the young mother, from any necessity of explanation in court of the girl's whereabouts and the places where she had been sequestered.

The habeas corpus suit, filed by Anna's sister, Mary Ware, who is 25 years old, was directed against Wilfred Jones, attorney who arranged to bring the 19-year-old mother to St. Louis to have her baby, born last Aug. 17; Mrs. Homer Holliday, at whose boarding house at 9317 Manchester road Anna stayed while recuperating; the Star-Chronicle Publishing Co., publishers of the Star-Times, and Julius Klein, a reporter for that newspaper.

Search for Missing Sister.

Before the writs were issued Thursday afternoon, Mary Ware, elder sister and natural guardian of the young mother—since their mother is incapacitated by illness and their father dead—arrived in St. Louis and consulted Prosecuting Attorney Anderson of St. Louis County, hoping to get in touch with Anna so as to aid and comfort her and particularly to help her in her expressed desire to recover her child.

Anderson called upon the Star-Times, then publishing daily interviews with the young mother, to produce her.

The county officials were told by responsible officials of the paper that they did not know where the girl was. An outright demand that she be produced in the office of Prosecuting Attorney Anderson, investigating the case, brought a similar reply.

Meanwhile, Prosecuting Attorney Finnegan of St. Louis, and the St. Louis police department, had asked the newspaper to be placed in touch with the girl, with similar results. After all efforts of Mary Ware and the authorities to get in touch with her sister had failed she had recourse to an application for writs of habeas corpus.

In Reporter's Apartment.

In a formal answer filed Friday in the habeas corpus suit, it was stated by the newspaper that Anna Ware had been living, under no restraint, in the apartment of Harry T. Brundidge, Star-Times reporter.

It was stated that Thursday afternoon—when the habeas corpus suit was filed—she was turned over to Attorney Bond, who was retained by the newspaper to represent the girl.

The answers of Jones and Mrs. Holliday were to the effect that they did not know where the girl was.

Prosecuting Attorney Anderson and his associate, John J. Wolfe, had hoped to file yesterday an application for a writ of habeas corpus for Anna's baby, and incidentally to find out, in a regular court proceeding, where the baby has been and in whose hands it has been since it was taken from her more than a month ago.

This plan they were forced to abandon, Wolfe told the Post-Dispatch yesterday, due to the unexpected delay caused by the initial objections of Attorney Bond to this course of action.

Lawyer Bond's Proposal.

At the opening of the conference, Bond discussed the possibility of getting the baby back without court proceedings, a course of action which the prosecutors and William Berthold, counsel for Mary Ware, refused to accept, because it would not reveal the persons in whose custody the baby has been since Aug. 17.

Bond pointed out that Shepard R. Evans, counsel for Wilfred Jones, had announced he would seek to have the baby returned to its mother privately, and without court proceedings. Bond left the conference at one point saying he wanted to get in contact with Evans.

He returned shortly, said he had been in communication with Evans. He reported that Evans repeated his offer to return the baby without court proceedings, but with the added proviso that no questions were to be asked after the baby had been restored to its mother.

Prosecutors Anderson and Wolfe and Attorney Berthold then repeated that they would not accept Evans' offer under that or any other conditions. Attorney Bond then recalled that Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, defendant in the Kelley kidnaping case, had publicly offered to subject herself to medical examination to show that she was the mother of the baby boy now in

Information as to Whereabouts of Mother of Missing Baby, a Minor, Denied Him by Star-Times.

Lawyers Then Oppose Court Proceedings to Find Child, Suggest Agreement by Parties.

The appearance yesterday at Clayton of Anna Ware, minor mother of one of the infants in the baby drama, in company of Thomas Bond, an attorney retained to represent her, relieved the persons named last week in a habeas corpus action to get custody of the young mother, from any necessity of explanation in court of the girl's whereabouts and the places where she had been sequestered.

The habeas corpus suit, filed by Anna's sister, Mary Ware, who is 25 years old, was directed against Wilfred Jones, attorney who arranged to bring the 19-year-old mother to St. Louis to have her baby, born last Aug. 17; Mrs. Homer Holliday, at whose boarding house at 9317 Manchester road Anna stayed while recuperating; the Star-Chronicle Publishing Co., publishers of the Star-Times, and Julius Klein, a reporter for that newspaper.

Search for Missing Sister.

Before the writs were issued Thursday afternoon, Mary Ware, elder sister and natural guardian of the young mother—since their mother is incapacitated by illness and their father dead—arrived in St. Louis and consulted Prosecuting Attorney Anderson of St. Louis County, hoping to get in touch with Anna so as to aid and comfort her and particularly to help her in her expressed desire to recover her child.

Anderson called upon the Star-Times, then publishing daily interviews with the young mother, to produce her.

The county officials were told by responsible officials of the paper that they did not know where the girl was. An outright demand that she be produced in the office of Prosecuting Attorney Anderson, investigating the case, brought a similar reply.

Meanwhile, Prosecuting Attorney Finnegan of St. Louis, and the St. Louis police department, had asked the newspaper to be placed in touch with the girl, with similar results. After all efforts of Mary Ware and the authorities to get in touch with her sister had failed she had recourse to an application for writs of habeas corpus.

In Reporter's Apartment.

In a formal answer filed Friday in the habeas corpus suit, it was stated by the newspaper that Anna Ware had been living, under no restraint, in the apartment of Harry T. Brundidge, Star-Times reporter.

It was stated that Thursday afternoon—when the habeas corpus suit was filed—she was turned over to Attorney Bond, who was retained by the newspaper to represent the girl.

The answers of Jones and Mrs. Holliday were to the effect that they did not know where the girl was.

Prosecuting Attorney Anderson and his associate, John J. Wolfe, had hoped to file yesterday an application for a writ of habeas corpus for Anna's baby, and incidentally to find out, in a regular court proceeding, where the baby has been and in whose hands it has been since it was taken from her more than a month ago.

This plan they were forced to abandon, Wolfe told the Post-Dispatch yesterday, due to the unexpected delay caused by the initial objections of Attorney Bond to this course of action.

Lawyer Bond's Proposal.

At the opening of the conference, Bond discussed the possibility of getting the baby back without court proceedings, a course of action which the prosecutors and William Berthold, counsel for Mary Ware, refused to accept, because it would not reveal the persons in whose custody the baby has been since Aug. 17.

Bond pointed out that Shepard R. Evans, counsel for Wilfred Jones, had announced he would seek to have the baby returned to its mother privately, and without court proceedings. Bond left the conference at one point saying he wanted to get in contact with Evans.

He returned shortly, said he had been in communication with Evans. He reported that Evans repeated his offer to return the baby without court proceedings, but with the added proviso that no questions were to be asked after the baby had been restored to its mother.

Prosecutors Anderson and Wolfe and Attorney Berthold then repeated that they would not accept Evans' offer under that or any other conditions. Attorney Bond then recalled that Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, defendant in the Kelley kidnaping case, had publicly offered to subject herself to medical examination to show that she was mother of the baby boy now in her home at 4736 Westminster place.

It is this baby, announced to have been born to Mrs. Muench on Aug. 18, about 18 hours after the birth of the Ware infant, about which the present inquiry centers.

During the discussion of this offer by Mrs. Muench, Attorney Bond again left the meeting to get in touch with Paul Dillon, whom he described as a lawyer for Mrs. Muench. It was the first announcement that Dillon was a member of the numerous counsel of the Kelley case defendant.

Returning later to the conference, Bond said that he had recalled to Dillon Mrs. Muench's offer to subject herself to medical examination, but that Dillon had declined to comment on it, saying only that he would represent Mrs. Muench in court, in any proceedings concerning her baby, if that became necessary.

Attorneys' Agreement.

During this discussion, Anna sat quietly by, for the most part, and expressed confusion at the matter under discussion of the attorneys.

Finally, too late to take action yesterday, it was agreed that application for a writ of habeas corpus for the return of the baby, directed against Mrs. Muench and Attorney Jones, would be filed tomorrow morning, provided the scope and language of the application when drafted met the approval of all attorneys present.

The sisters were escorted to the Congress Hotel to spend the week-end and Berthold and Bond went there to discuss their further action. They were to meet Anderson and Wolfe in the prosecutor's office at Clayton this morning to draw the habeas corpus application.

NO COMPROMISE OUTSIDE COURT IN BABY CASE, PROSECUTOR DECLARES

WHEN Prosecuting Attorney Anderson was asked whether he would consent to the proposal of Shepard R. Evans, attorney for Wilfred Jones, to return Anna Ware's baby to Anna without court proceedings, he said no. He then gave the following statement:

"Nothing short of a full showing of where and in whose hands Anna Ware's baby has been from the time it was taken from her side the day it was born at the home of the midwife, Mrs. Winner, up to the present will satisfy this office and the demands of justice.

"Second, nothing short of a full record in court by testimony under oath identifying all of the persons who have had Anna Ware's baby or had any part in its disposal will be sufficient.

"Finally, the demands of justice can only be satisfied when the full purpose of the investigation originally started by this office and the St. Louis County grand jury has been achieved. The purpose of that investigation was to determine the truth or falsity of the reported birth of a baby to Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench. Obviously, the reason and the necessity for this investigation were the facts, first, that the alleged birth, all circumstances considered, challenged the credulity of medical opinion; and, second, the fact that Mrs. Muench is a defendant in the Kelley kidnaping case scheduled to go to trial at Mexico, Mo., one week from next Monday.

"The facts are what this office wants and nothing short of the facts will satisfy the requirements of my duty as Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County."

U. S.-LITHUANIA FLYER RUNS INTO RAIN, FOG

Felix Waitkus Has Apparently Headed to Sea on 4500-Mile Trip.

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Sept. 21.—A plane, not identified, passed over Harbor Buffett, Placentia Bay, going east, at 4:58 p. m. today. This is about 50 miles east of Bell Island, where a plane, believed to be that of Felix Waitkus, on a flight from New York to Lithuania, was reported earlier. Because of poor visibility, it was not possible to identify the plane heard at Bell Island or the direction of flight.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Headed into weather which meteorologists said "could scarcely be worse," Felix Waitkus, 28 years old, former Army flyer, was presumably over the North Atlantic tonight on a projected 4500-mile nonstop solo flight to Kaunas, Lithuania.

Highly favorable conditions prevailed when Waitkus took off in his monoplane from Floyd Bennett Field at 5:45 a. m. today, but later reports from Newfoundland indicated dirty weather ahead.

The Harbor Grace Airport reported cold, rain and fog. Waitkus, however, planned to fly as much as possible in the sub-stratosphere.

Although no definite word of the aviator's progress had been received here, Dr. James H. Kimball, Government meteorologist, estimated Waitkus should have swung seaward from Newfoundland during the afternoon. No anxiety was felt here for the flyer's safety.

The flight was arranged primarily in commemoration of Stephen Darius and Stanley Girenas, who crossed the Atlantic two years ago, only to crash 375 miles short of Kaunas. Both men were killed.

Waitkus' plane rose from the airport at dawn after he had kissed his bride of 18 months and received the good wishes of Kasimir Daubzvardis, Lithuanian Consul in New York, and Paul Zadeikis, Lithuanian Minister to the United States.

As the plane roared 3000 feet down the runway, two fire trucks, two water trucks, an ambulance and a police emergency car started in pursuit, just to be there in case of a crash.

SUIT TO RECOVER WARE BABY TO BE FILED TOMORROW

mother privately, and without court proceedings.

The prosecutor said he would insist that the child be restored only after a regularly constituted court proceeding has shown through whose hands the baby passed from the moment it was taken from the home of the midwife, Mrs. Rebecca Winner. 6015 Maple avenue, until it is again in the arms of its mother.

When Evans said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that he would use every effort to see that the child was returned with a minimum of publicity, he was asked if that action would leave an empty cradle in the Muench home. "Positively not," he replied.

The reason for this question was the obvious one that one man, Wilfred Jones, having already produced babies on order, would have no difficulty in procuring a third or even half a dozen, if that number were needed to meet the exigencies of the occasion.

THE REV. J. M. GRAY, 84, DIES

Fundamentalist, Long Head of Moody Bible Institute.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—The Rev. James M. Gray, 84 years old, president emeritus of the Moody Bible Institute and leader of the organization for 40 years until he resigned last November, died today in Passavant Hospital. He was taken there Sunday after a heart attack.

Dr. Gray, a noted fundamentalist, was the author of many books on religion. He succeeded the Rev. R. A. Torrey, first president of the institute, as pastor of the Moody church, and was an associate of Dwight Moody, founder of the institute. Private funeral services will be held at the residence tomorrow and burial will take place in New York City.

MRS. MUENCH OFFERS MEDICAL EVIDENCE

Statements of Drs. Marsh Pitzman and Maurice Thompson, Concerning Childbirth.

With Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench's offer to let Anna Ware attempt to identify the baby in the Muench home as her own—that is, Miss Ware's—interest in one phase of the complicated baby drama turns to the means whereby Mrs. Muench expects to prove that the baby is hers.

Chief among those means are statements which, as related last Thursday, Mrs. Muench has obtained from two physicians. Both, as shown in copies which she gave the Post-Dispatch, are addressed "To whom it may concern." The first, dated Sept. 14, follows:

> This is to certify that Mrs. Nellie Muench was examined on the above date by myself, and my conclusion is that within the past four to five weeks she had given birth to a child. All normal and physical signs of a recent delivery were present.
> (Signed)
> MAURICE THOMPSON.

The other, dated Sept. 16, at 6 Kingsbury place:

> This is to certify that I have seen Nellie T. Muench several times a week since early May, 1935; that she showed every internal evidence of pregnancy—that is, primarily, continual progressive lower abdominal enlargement; that on a number of occasions during July and August I saw and felt the movement of the child; that on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 17, I saw her in early stage labor pains; that on the next day I saw her after delivery of her baby boy, in a perfectly normal post-partum condition. (Signed)
> MARSH PITZMAN.

Dr. Pitzman, a surgeon of wide professional and social acquaintance, is a friend of the Muenches; Dr. Thompson is a young Kirkwood physician.

Other Doctors' Comment.

The statements were submitted by the Post-Dispatch to two obstetricians of national standing who said that, if accepted at face value, the certificates attested a birth.

Both of the qualified obstetricians commented on the surprising nature of such an occurrence in the case of a woman 43 years old, after a childless marriage of 22 years. Mrs. Muench has added her own commentary on the element of surprise in describing the baby in her home as "a gift from God."

Both obstetricians mentioned the increased hazards of the event for a woman of Mrs. Muench's years who had not given birth to a child at an earlier and more suitable age. One emphasized that the circumstances called for the hospital care and expert medical attention. It will be recalled that Dr. Muench, to whom, as a physician, such services were available on a basis of professional courtesy, reported to the Health Department that the birth occurred at the Muench home, and that his wife, on an occasion classified by the doctors quoted above as critical, was attended by himself and another physician whom he refused to name.

In that connection, one of the eminent men to whom the Post-Dispatch submitted the statements said the evidence of recent childbirth would be particularly marked when it had occurred, as happened sometimes but with comparitive rarity, in a patient so late in life.

He said this evidence would remain distinct for several weeks.

Turning to another of the many paradoxical details in the baby drama, he remarked that he would say a baby six weeks premature would hardly weigh more than four pounds. It might happen, he said, but it would be very unlikely.

The baby at the Muench home has been described as premature by six weeks and weighing 6¾ pounds at birth.

Identifying a Baby Difficult.

While Mrs. Muench's physicians' certificates may be her "Hindenburg line," her first line of defense is something quite different. She says Miss Ware may view the baby at the Muench home provided Miss Ware first gives her a sworn description of Miss Ware's baby.

Furthermore, Miss Ware has already given a description in writing to Midwife Winner, at whose home the Ware baby was born. Mrs. Winner has said she turned it over to her cousin and lawyer, Carl Dubinsky.

Eminent physicians say there would be only a remote possibility that a description of a baby, as it looked a few hours following birth, would fit the same baby a month later. They explained that babies change markedly in appearance in that period, sometimes even in some details of pigmentation, and that identification under such difficulties would be likely only if the baby had some striking characteristic of a more or less permanent nature, such as a marked family resemblance.

NEARLY 1000 AT REUNION OF 138TH INFANTRY VETERANS

Former Comrades in Arms Recall War Days in Meeting at Battery A Armory.

Their numbers augmented by the return of many former comrades who are in St. Louis to attend the American Legion convention, veterans of the wartime 138th Infantry held their fourth and largest annual reunion at Battery A. Armory last night.

Nearly 1000 former members of the St. Louis regiment were on hand to hear brief addresses by their old commanding officers and to gather at company "dugouts," renewing friendships with former comrades in arms. Most popular of the evening's activities, and most reminiscent of bygone days, was a game known to every soldier on pay day.

At another large stand, beer was dispensed in large, friendly cans, while case on case of vari-colored pop stood in the background. Distinctions of rank were all but obliterated after these 17 years. Majors slapped backs of buck privates and exchanged recollections of "back when."

Former colonels of the regiment who attended were: E. J. McMahon, now St. Louis Street Commissioner; Philip J. Kealy, now of Chicago; J. E. Rieger of Kirksville, Mo., and Leroy K. Robbins, St. Louis. The invocation at the opening of the program was given by the Rev. Thomas D. Kennedy, wartime chaplain of the regiment.

FORMER POSTAL CLERK FINED $245 FOR THEFTS FROM MAIL

Tells Court He Had Regularly Turned Over His $2100 Annual Salary to Wife.

Walter C. Lutz, former postal clerk, 6522 Scanlan avenue, who pleaded guilty a week ago of stealing quarters and half-dollars from letters, was fined $35 on each of seven counts on the indictment, a total of $245, by Federal Judge Davis yesterday.

Lutz, who had been employed in the postal service for 18 years, told the Court he had regularly turned over all his $2100 annual salary to his wife and had taken from the mails only enough for his small personal needs.

STOLEN AUTO IN FATAL CRASH

Unidentified Man Killed Near Fredericktown, Mo.

By the Associated Press.

FREDERICKTOWN, Mo., Sept. 21.—The State Highway Patrol will try to identify through fingerprints a man killed near here late today in the collision of a truck and an automobile. The car the man was driving was identified by its owner, Kenneth Lankford of Cape Girardeau, as one stolen from him earlier in the day.

E. M. Hale, East Prairie, driver of the truck, was not injured but his truck was wrecked. He was returning from St. Louis where he had taken a load of watermelons. Coroner W. Harry Barron of Madison County has set an inquest for Monday. The man killed was described as about 30 years old, 6 feet tall and weighing about 140 pounds.

DILLINGER'S DOCTORS PLACED ON PROBATION

Two Who Performed Face Lifting Operations and Lawyer's Aid Granted Leniency.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—The three men who told the "inside story" of how John Dillinger and Homer Van Meter had been hidden during a nationwide hunt received leniency today when they were brought into Federal Court for sentencing for their confessed participation in the plot to harbor the notorious outlaws.

The defendants were Dr. Harold Bernard Cassidy and Dr. Wilhelm Loeser, who admitted they performed face lifting operations on the outlaws in a futile attempt to hide them from the law, and Arthur O'Leary, investigator for Dillinger's attorney.

Dr. Cassidy and O'Leary were given suspended sentences of 11 months each and placed on probation for one year. No new punishment was accorde Dr. Loeser but he was ordered remanded to Leavenworth penitentiary as a parole violator to serve out a sentence imposed for violation of the narcotics law several years ago.

When the three appeared before Judge William H. Holly, Assistant Attorney-General Brien McMahon and Harry Connaughton, Assistant District Attorney, explained they had given valuable testimony in the trials of Louis Piquett, Dillinger's lawyer, on charges of concealing the gangsters.

Piquett was acquitted in the Dillinger case but was convicted of harboring Van Meter. His punishment was fixed at two years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine. He now is engaged in perfecting an appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

In recommending leniency to the Judge, the prosecutors pointed out the physicians already had spent eight and one-half months and O'Leary 14 months in jail.

The physicians and O'Leary testified during the trials that Piquett arranged a hideout for the gangsters and handled the money involved in the operations. Piquett, in turn, blamed O'Leary.

WHERE PRICE BABY WAS FOR A NIGHT STILL A MYSTERY

Mother Remembers She Gave Child to Wilfred Jones Evening of July 10, Not July 11.

THIS CLEARS UP TIME DISCREPANCY

Dr. Levy Did Not See Infant at Muench Home Until Day After Miss Oberg Surrendered It.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

Copyright, 1935, by the Pulitzer Publishing Co.—All rights reserved under Federal protection of property rights in news.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 21.—It was on the evening of July 10, and not on July 11, that the mother of the so-called Price baby surrendered her newborn son to Wilfred Jones for adoption by childless friends of his.

This was the statement made to the correspondent today by the baby's unmarried mother, Miss Estelle Evelyn Oberg.

The exact date is of consequence because it calls for an explanation of the whereabouts of the infant during the night of July 10 and up to 3 o'clock on the afternoon of the following day, when it was examined at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Ludwig O. Muench by Dr. Aaron Levy, a pediatrician who had been summoned there by Dr. Muench.

Confirms Dr. Levy's Story.

Miss Oberg's statement corroborates Dr. Levy's assertion that his visit to the Muench home was made at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of the eleventh, and the statement of a Jewish Hospital nurse that the infant was taken to that hospital by Jones about 8 o'clock in the evening of that day. The baby died at the hospital from pneumonia five days later.

Jones' statement has been that the baby was at the Muench home for only a brief interval, and that he took it there about 10 o'clock on the night of the eleventh, so that his old friend, Dr. Muench, might examine a rash he had noticed on the baby's body.

Clears Up Time Discrepancy

MISS ESTELLE EVELYN OBERG.

Miss Oberg was aided in fixing the date on which Jones took the baby from her by starting with the date on which she left the City Hospital, where the baby was born June 29, and recalling what had occurred after that.

Jones Gets the Baby.

"I went home on July 9," she said. Jones telephoned that day and asked for the baby. I told Christine (Miss Christine Krout, 1429 Hills terrace, at whose home Miss Oberg stayed before and after her confinement) to tell him the baby wasn't home yet. I wanted to keep it for a day or two.

"The next day Jones phoned again, and I said to tell him to come and get the baby before we became too attached to it. He came that afternoon and said he had talked to the man who wanted to adopt the baby and the man would send a nurse for it.

"That night Jones took the baby away in an automobile. He said the nurse was outside, but I did not see her. The baby was on the bed beside me. Christine picked it up, wrapped it in a blanket, and took it out of the room and I have not seen it again."

Miss Krout, who accompanied the Post-Dispatch reporter to Minneapolis to see Miss Oberg, was present during this conversation. Previously Miss Krout had said it was her recollection that the baby was taken about 9 or 10 o'clock on the night of the 11th, but she was uncertain, and accepted the mother's memory as better than her own.

In other details of the negotiations for her baby, Miss Oberg's narrative conformed with that given by Miss Krout, published exclusively in Thursday's Post-Dispatch.

Lawyer's Statement.

While the ultimate fate of her baby is established beyond doubt, her deal with Jones to place the child with friends of his for adoption is of interest in the St. Louis baby case because of Jones' statement to the Post-Dispatch that he procured Miss Oberg's baby for the same friends for whom, after its death, he obtained the baby of Miss Anna Ware, who now wants her baby back. Miss Ware's baby boy was born and taken from her on Aug. 17 within the 24-hour period announced as the time a baby boy was born to Dr. Muench and Mrs. Muench, who is soon to go on trial for the kidnaping of Dr. I. D. Kelley.

Miss Oberg, who returned to Minneapolis Aug. 1, is an attractive blonde, employed as a waitress in a night club. She told the correspondent of several conversations with Jones in which she pressed him with questions about the childless pair who wanted to adopt her child, without obtaining any substantial information from the attorney.

During one conversation, she recalled, Jones told her the husband was a professional man, and well-to-do. On one occasion, after the death of her baby, she said, Jones took her for an automobile ride, and pointed to a house in which he said her baby would have been had he lived.

"I don't recall just where it was," Miss Oberg said, "but it was on a 'blind' street that ended at the one along which we were riding. The house on the corner of that street, not the one Mr. Jones pointed out, had a fence around it.

"(The Muench home, at 4736 Westminster place, is in the middle of the block between Walton avenue and Euclid avenue. Westminster place "dead ends" at Euclid avenue. There are brick and stone pillars there, and the first house on the south side of Westminster place, is a low brick structure, flush with the sidewalk along Euclid avenue. Between the back of the house and the alley, a space of about 25 feet, there is a low fence of loose limestone, about 20 inches high.)

The Deal for Infant.

Miss Oberg told, as had Miss Krout, that the first step in arranging for a meeting with Jones looking toward adoption of her expected child was a visit to Miss Krout's home by Mrs. Mary O'Connell, a midwife at 5932 Easton avenue, who subsequently sent a "Mrs. Miller" to see them. Mrs. Miller, they learned later, was Mrs. Rebecca Winner, the retired midwife at whose home, 6015 Maple avenue, Anna Ware's baby was born.

"Mrs. Winner told us," Miss Oberg continued, "that a lawyer named Jones had a client then out of St. Louis who wanted a child because her baby would inherit a fortune from a wealthy grandmother. The baby would be taken to her while she was out of town, we were told, and then the woman would come back to St. Louis and say it had been born to her. We had to decide on something right away, and that seemed to be the best proposition."

Under the arrangement with Jones, Miss Oberg said, she was to be paid $50 for the baby and was promised a job. He paid $25 the night he took the baby, she said, and promised to be back with the rest of the money in the morning. But when he returned in the morning he said he had been arrested for speeding and did not have the money.

After the death of the baby, Miss Oberg continued, Jones made arrangements for the funeral, which cost him, he said, $150. The child was buried in Memorial Park Cemetery in a plain board box.

TIFF STRIKE CHIEF APPLIES FOR WRIT IN CONTEMPT CASE

Joseph Morris Petitions Missouri Supreme Court to Prevent Hearing by Circuit Judge Dearing.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 21.—A petition for a writ of prohibition to prevent Circuit Judge E. M. Dearing from conducting a hearing of the criminal contempt of court citation against Joseph Morris, leader of the recent strike of Washington County tiff miners, was filed with the Missouri Supreme Court today.

On receipt of the petition, entered by attorneys for the strike leader, the court telegraphed Judge Dearing at Potosi to take no further action until the Court has an opportunity to consider the petition.

Judge Dearing announced at Potosi that the hearing, set for Tuesday, would be postponed in compliance with the Court's direction. Sheriff Richards of Washington County notified officials of other counties, who had arranged to be present to guard against a possible demonstration, of the postponement.

Ruling Sought by Tuesday.

Chief Justice Frank of the Supreme Court said the application was filed late today, after most of the justices had departed. He said the Court would try to dispose of the petition before Tuesday.

The petition, filed by George E. Duemler and Victor B. Harris, attorneys of St. Louis, alleged that unless the Supreme Court prevented the hearing the defendant had no remedy in law and equity since criminal contempt does not permit a jury, appeal, change of venue, or limitation of punishment.

Allegations in the petition were to the effect that Judge Dearing entertained prejudice and prejudged the case. It recited the history of the case, criticised the appointment of two amici curiae who obtained the citation and said there was no opportunity for an impartial hearing.

Obtained Continuance.

Morris, who obtained a continuance Sept. 7, by informing Judge Dearing he had had no opportunity to procure counsel in the 16 hours since being served with notice of the citation, was cited because of his conduct as a leader of the strike.

Morris is alleged to have made a speech at a demonstration during the strike, in which he said of Judge Dearing: "He should be impeached. You elected him to represent you, not the company."

Reference was made also to banners carried by the strikers derogatory to Judge Dearing. The miners were protesting against a restraining order issued by the Judge, forbidding the strikers to interfere with operation of plants of the National Pigments & Chemical Co.

Cited on Second Count.

Morris was cited also for informing the strikers to disregard the temporary order, which was issued a few days before the strike, which began Aug. 5. The order was made permanent Sept. 6, after the strike, but was amended to apply only to the American Workers Union and "their sympathizers."

The strike ended Aug. 22 when the miners accepted an offer of an increase of $1.50 a ton for tiff mined on company property, 50 cents less than their original demand.

ITALY REJECTS LEAGUE PLAN BUT LEAVES DOOR OPEN

have engaged in war on all members of the League.

Consequently, economic and financial sanctions would automatically operate against it, and if the Council decided the situation justified graver measures, it would be empowered to invite member nations to contribute their armed forces "to be used to protect the Covenant."

If unanimity cannot be achieved in the Council's recommendations (only one member of the Council need vote against them) then members of the League have the right to take such action "as they shall consider necessary for the maintenance of right and justice."

In other words, if the situation should develop into war between Italy and Ethiopia following failure to attain unanimity in the Council, the British, for example, could take individual action against Italy without violating the covenant.

Announcement that the League Assembly would meet in plenary session Tuesday coincided with the news from Rome and it was rumored without confirmation that the League Council might meet almost immediately in order to save time.

An Italian spokesman dispelled fears that Italy might withdraw immediately from the League by saying: "Everybody is staying here for the present."

What Committee Proposed.

The League committee's project, designed to make Ethiopia into a modern nation and to satisfy the expansionist dreams of Mussolini, was undertaken to find a basis for conciliation.

It provided for the appointment of a series of foreign advisers to act as heads of various Ethiopian departments, including police, finance, communications and general administration. The appointments would have been made by the League but Emperor Haile Selassie would have had the power to veto them.

The League would have designated a general adviser to co-ordinate the work of the various departments. A force of gendarmerie, it was understood, would have been instituted with foreign officers.

The questions of what nationalities were to help Ethiopia would have been worked out later. But it was understood that to Italy would have been allotted the privilege of developing Ethiopia economically and financially, without impairing Ethiopia's political independence.

It was understood the plan said France and Great Britain were prepared to make certain territorial concessions to Ethiopia in the interests of a settlement of the dispute.

ETHIOPIA READY, EMPEROR SAYS

By the Associated Press.

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 21.—Ethiopia is ready with sufficient troops at vital points to offer the stiffest resistance shold Mussolini follow his rejection of the Geneva peace plan with hostilities, Emperor Haile Selassie told the Associated Press tonight.

He said he had hope that the increasingly grave relations between Great Britain and Italy might halt Mussolini in his threatened Ethiopian campaign.

Italy's action in refusing the plan caused little surprise here. Ethiopia, it was explained, had accepted the proposals in principle but telegraphed Geneva for clarification of certain proposals, especially those giving the League the exclusive right to appoint a chief supervisory delegate over various expert commissions and also suggestions that the entire civil population be disarmed. This proposal would be difficult to fulfill because in Ethiopia, where "every man is a soldier," the question of arms is a point of honor. Haile Selassie was encouraged by views expressed in some European capitals that Italy might change its position next week.

Ethiopia's long rainy season is due to end next week. Ethiopians think Italy has only delayed sending troops into this country because the rains have made transport impossible

If native tradition is fulfilled, the rains will cease a week from today, the day of the Festival of Mascal, as suddenly as if a plumber had turned off a faucet.

Rome Expects Further Negotiations With League.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 21.—Italy's rejection of the Geneva peace plan, a Government spokesman said tonight, left the way open for further discussion of the Italian-Ethiopian question and created a definite note of optimism that differences with Great Britain might be straightened out. The spokesman said Italy was vastly pleased by the action of the committee of five which supported Italy's claim that Ethiopia is a barbaric country and must be subjected to European tutelage.

The Giornale d'Italia said the committee proposals were "a reward to Ethiopia for her misdeeds and protect her because she is barbarous. Italy must be punished for her tolerance and left undefended because she is civilized. This is an inconceivable inversion of position and ideas. It is not in this way that the prestige and supposed justice of the League of Nations will be affirmed."

Military critics report 15,000 reinforcements have been sent to Libya. These troops were promised by Mussolini to Gen. Italo Balbo, Governor of Libya, when the flyer visited Rome recently.

13 Farmers in Sale Riot Sentenced pleas of guilty. I have found them less than frank. I found them untruthful.

"Arrogant and Impudent."

In particular he criticised Gall, farmer, editor of a farm paper, secretary of the State Farmers' Protective Association and the father of two children, who sought in vain to censor newspaper reports of the mob action.

"He was insolent, arrogant and impudent when he attempted to dictate the story of Kenneth Clark, Associated Press reporter, who had a perfect right to be in Plattsburg," the Judge said. "He continued that insolence when he went to the newspaper office of Mrs. Edna Pollard at Maysville, accompanied by 10 or 12 ruffians and attempted to dictate what she should print. Gall incited Divelbiss into this rebellion, this insurrection against the Government."

"The Unhappy Spectacle."

"We have here," said Judge Reeves, after detailing the history of the case, "the unhappy spectacle of a marshal of this court being captured and held prisoner for more than four hours.

"He was subjected, with his aides, to the most reprehensible abuse, called unspeakable names and exposed to assault. Putting the Marshal to death was in the minds of the men who attacked him and robbed his aides of their weapons and the Marshal of valuable documents. . . .

"The testimony is overwhelming that there was a conspiracy to violate the law by many individuals. They were knowingly in contempt of court and dangerously near to treason. Their threats to go to Washington and attempt coercion of the President, came near, I think, to a threat of war on the United States. . . .

"The testimony of these men's guilt has come here like an engulfing flood. I looked for a defense and saw none, and I highly commend the attorneys for these men, when they realized the irrefutable guilt of their clients, withdrew their pleas of not guilty. . . .

"Gall I regard as the more serious offender. He was the agitator, although he denies it. He is man of intelligence and appearance calculated to make him an influence among these people. . . .

"Gall incited Divelbiss into this rebellion, this insurrection against the Government."

"Talked of Ropes and Hangings."

Going then to the cases of various of the defendants, Judge Reeves said in part:

"Randall T. Arnold was there. His conduct at the time was calculated to invoke mob violence. He know he was adding fuel to the fire. He was ready to have murder committed and to have the fine servants of this court put to death. He talked of ropes and hangings.

"C. A. Jones meant to create a mob spirit. If not, why were the people notified to come there through his offices? He was one of the agitators of this thing which disgraces America before the world. This thing these men have done has done more damage to Missouri and to the nation than flood, fire and pestilence; more than an enemy battleship could do, shelling New York City. Missouri farm land values have decreased because of this and infamy of this act has been spread to the far corners of the nation."

"Pulled Hairs From His Chest."

The Judge continued: "Homer Crowley was there. He committed mayhem on the person of this fine old man, Colbern (65-year-old bailiff George Colbern), who has served the court so faithfully for more than 20 years.

"Dan Stoeffel knew why he went there. Old man that he is, he approached Crowley, helpless and captive and, inflamed with the mob spirit, also committed hayhem by pulling hairs from his chest.

"Harrison Nathan Jones is ill now. I will not pass sentence nor comment on his case until later.

"The guilt of A. A. Holman, I regard as somewhat less.

"For Sam Divelbiss, who, despite his denials, rushed up and struck the Marshal with his cane, there is the same indication toward leniency. He was distraught at losing his farm. He knows and knew then that this was a proper farm sale, that he had signed a note and that he could expect to pay it.

"This Unspeakable Affront."

"Frank Hixon says here that he tried to help the officers. There is testimony that he incited the crowd. I think of Hixon that, when he was with the leaders of the mob, he was with them and when he was with the officers he was on their side. He says he tried to help the officers but, I fear, not very diligently. Surely some voice could have been raised there to halt this unspeakable affront to the Government.

"Ivan Divelbiss admitted disabling the officers' car, although there is no indication he repented and attempted to repair the damage.

"Handley was both hot and cold, depending upon whom he was talking to at the time. If he was with the mob leaders, he advocated violence but he didn't want to commit it himself.

"Marvin Arnold was, in my estimation, among the least of the offenders. There was testimony that he made an inflammatory speech and that he didn't. I am inclined to give him the benefit of the doubt."

Testimony in Brief by Defendant Farmers in the Case.

In testimony by the defendants, the elderly Divelbiss admitted he asked Marshal Dillingham, "how do you like it now?" But denied he had flourished a "boughten cane" at the Marshal. In answer to a question by District Attorney Maurice Milligan, Divelbiss said Gall had agitated the demonstration and Gall and Anderson had talked to him about it. Charles Jones, he said, furnished him a mailing list of members of the Farmers' Protective Association to whom he sent postcard invitations to go to Plattsburg the day of the sale. He defended his son, saying Ivan had attempted to dissuade him from sending the cards.

Crowley admitted he had pulled hairs from the chest of Bailiff Colbern, Pipes said all he knew was that he came out of the melee with Dillingham's shoe.

Anderson denied the testimony of Government witnesses that he made a speech and said he had intervened in behalf of Dillingham and his officers.

Radolph (Skip) Arnold said he had given his name to Dillingham and told the Marshal, if he would let him know when the next sale was to be held, he would see that there was no trouble. He admitted he had "cursed everybody."

Ivan Divelbiss said he had removed a vital part from Dillingham's automobile at the crowd's request but replaced it. Charles A. Jones denied he was one of the organizers but admitted he was present.

Piece of Bailiff's Trousers.

Handley denied he had torn Bailiff Colbert's trousers and said someone handed him a piece as a souvenir. Marvin Arnold said Handley gave him a part of the trousers. Holman denied at first he had struck E. E. Fisher, a deputy, but later admitted he "might" have struck him.

Stoffel, who is 72, vigorously denied he had pulled hair from Colbern's chest and said he "didn't remember" taking the sales papers from Dillingham's pocket.

Hixon admitted he was around Dillingham's car but said he told officers "I'm your friend and I'm trying to help you out of this."

A grand jury convened in Kansas City, Aug. 26, to investigate the mob. After it heard many witnesses, contempt charges were issued against 15 men Sept. 11. The following day the grand jury returned the conspiracy indictment against the same men. Charges were dismissed against A. P. Frye for lack of evidence.

Judge Reeves presided at the trial at the request of Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis, whose order for the Divelbiss sale was torn up by the mob. Defense attorneys charged Judge Otis was prejudiced.

COURT REBUKES DEMOCRATIC WARD CLUB FOR STRIFE

Judge Baron, Himself Member of Party, Refuses Incorporation to Pro-Dickmann Faction.

Warring factions in the Democratic party received a rebuff from Circuit Judge Max G. Baron yesterday when he denied the petition of the Sixteenth Ward Democratic Women's Club for a pro forma decree of incorporation. It was charged that the club, said to be friendly to Mayor Dickmann, was formed in opposition to a ward organization headed by Mrs. Lottie Walsh Democratic City Committeewoman, who is identified with the anti-Dickmann faction of the committee.

Dismissing the petition, Judge Baron, himself a Democrat, said there seemed to be no doubt that a similar organization had been in existence in the ward for some time.

"This court," the Judge declared, from the bench, "will not resort to subterfuge and gloss over a situation. It seems to be an attempt to clothe an organization with appearance of educational and charitable purposes, instead of political. Be that as it may, it is clear there has cropped out dissatisfaction in one of the existing political parties of the ward and the court will not lend its aid in fostering strife. I believe the court should be used to bring about a better understanding of citizens in all the wards rather than solidify misunderstandings or whatever has caused strife.

"Such organizations seeking pro forma decrees will not tend to make it possible for factions to get together so that peace and harmony may be restored among citizens. I can't see what purpose will be served in aiding factionalism by the granting of a decree to any organization that has for its real purpose the widening of a breach or keeping alive irritations, hatreds or misunderstandings."

Signers of Petition.

The petition was signed by Mrs. Mamie J. Karst, 3809 Lafayette avenue, president; Mrs. W. A. Wheeling, 3818 Blaine avenue, secretary; Mrs. John Sampson, treasurer, and Mrs. Nell Placke, Mrs. Cora Shallenberger and Miss Erma Meier, vice presidents. It was set forth the object of the club was to "promote good fellowship among Democratic women and to advance civic, educational and legislative interest in the community." Membership was to be confined to residents of the Sixteenth Ward, but Negroes were to be excluded, it was testified.

A week ago Judge Baron granted the petition, at which time no one objected. However, the order was immediately vacated on motion of Mrs. Walsh, who said that she and other members of her organization considered the club unnecessary as there was a similar club already functioning under the same name. The objectors claimed they originally had been misdirected to Judge O'Malley's court, where they sat waiting for the case to be called. At the same time the hearing was in progress in Judge Baron's court across the hall.

Interested in Harmony.

Both Mrs. Karst and Mrs. Wheeling testified they were inerested in keeping the Democratic women together, many of whom, they said, would not attend meetings of the regular organization because of factional disturbance. Their club, they said, was formed last March, at which time Mrs. Walsh expressed no opposition. Later, it was stated, the committeewoman "locked the door of the club" and said she would call a meeting when she saw fit.

"We are not infringing on the objectors' rights to have a club," Mrs. Karst testified, "and we will be glad to have them as members. We have 35 members in our club and expect many more. The dues are 10 cents a month."

Cantwell Offers Objections.

Harry J. Cantwell, Democratic Committeeman of the Twenty-fifth Ward, was was attorney for the objectors. He argued that the club was not entitled to a pro forma decree under the statutes because it was a political organization and for the further reason that it drew a color line in prohibiting Negroes. He added that such an organization would be confusing to the voters of the ward but he suggested there would be no objection if the club called itself the "Sixteenth Ward Dickmannites."

When Mrs. Wheeling was on the stand she admitted she had told a witness to remain away from the hearing but apologized to the Court for her action, explaining the witness did not live in the ward. Judge Baron told her it made no difference "whether they lived in the ward or in China as they had a right to be heard."

Adolph Kirchner, representing the petitioners, said the club was regularly formed, having benevolent purposes, and was entitled to a decree. He was unable to say whether an appeal would be taken.

Senator Couzens "Up and About."
By the Associated Press.

ROCHESTER, Minn., Sept. 21.—Senator James Couzens has almost fully recovered from his series of operations at Mayo clinic, physicians said today, adding he was "up and about and taking his meals out." He sleeps in the hospital. They said he probably would be able to leave for his Detroit home late next week.

SALVATION OF U. S. LIES IN NEW DEAL, JOHNSON SAYS

Thinks "Constructive Criticism" on Speaking Tour Will Work for Fundamental Success.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Hugh S. Johnson said in a statement today that "the salvation of this country lies in the success of the fundamental principles of the New Deal and policies of Franklin D. Roosevelt."

His statement, issued through his Washington office, repeated plans announced Friday for a speaking tour as a friendly critic of the administration.

But Johnson said it was "simply crazy" to interpret that plan as meaning "I'm out gunning for the New Deal." He added:

"I feel that a constructive public criticism of the weak spots of the New Deal will work for the success of its fundamental principles.

"My intense loyalty to the President and these fundamental principles prompts me to point out these weak spots as I go along urging public support for the administration."

CAUSE OF POST-ROGERS CRASH

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—The Department of Commerce today formally attributed the cause of the Wiley Post-Will Rogers crash in Alaska to nose heaviness of the plane.

This explanation was given some time ago by Eugene L. Vidal, Air Commerce Chief, in a memorandum, and today's report represented the official finding of the Department's aviation accident board. After noting the change of pontoons, the report said:

"A study of the effect of the various changes made on the airplane indicated that it was decidedly nose heavy and must have been extremely difficult, if not impossible, to properly control without the aid of the engine (which failed almost immediately after the take-off). A statement made by the pilot after the change to pontoons confirms his conclusion.

FREDERIC H. BRITTON'S FUNERAL TOMORROW

Services for Editorial Writer to Be Held at Home; Burial in Kalamazoo, Mich.

The funeral of Frederic H. Britton, editorial writer for the Globe-Democrat, who died yesterday of a heart attack, will be held at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow at his home, 703 Harvard avenue, University City. The Rev. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt of St. John's Methodist Church will conduct the service. Burial will take place at Kalamazoo, Mich.

Mr. Britton, who was 69 years old, was born and educated in Kalamazoo, and began newspaper work there. Later he worked for the Detroit daily papers as reporter, legislative and Washington correspondent, and was editor-in-chief of the Detroit Free Press. He came to St. Louis in 1911, and was an editorial writer for the Republic, the Post-Dispatch, and since 1922, for the Globe-Democrat He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Thomas V. Koykka of Cleveland, and a sister, Mrs. O. C. Howson of Kalamazoo.

MAN RUNS INTO SIDE OF AUTO AND IS KILLED

Frank Schulte, Newspaper Carrier, Leaps Off Truck and Against Machine.

Frank Schulte, a newspaper carrier, was killed by an automobile while delivering papers in the 3400 block of Lemp avenue yesterday afternoon. He was 40 years old and resided at 3936 California avenue.

Schulte was riding on the rear step of his truck, which was driven north in Lemp avenue by George Kayarin, 3711 Wisconsin avenue. He jumped off and started toward the west curb, running against the side of an automobile driven by Leon Brumoff, a salesman, 5014 Raymond avenue. He was pronounced dead at Alexian Brothers' Hospital.

Brumoff was booked for the Coroner.

Glenn Johnston, 4, suffered a fractured leg when he was struck by an automobile in the alley back of his home, 1422 Farrar street, yesterday afternoon. The driver continued on. Two companions of the boy described the machine as a Plymouth coach.

NEW BILL OF PARTICULARS DENIED IN MOVIE SUIT

Government Charges Motion of R. K. O. Distributing Firm Is Merely to Gain Time.

Federal Judge Moore yesterday denied the application of Jacob M. Lashly, counsel for R. K. O. Distributing Corporation, and Ned Depinet, its president, for a further bill of particulars with which to prepare the defense of his clients, indicted jointly with seven other film producers and distributors, at the trial set for Sept. 30.

Russell Hardy, Assistant Attorney-General in charge of the prosecution, came here from Washington to oppose Lashly's motion. In response to an order of Judge Moore, Hardy served Lashly with a bill of particulars which the latter characterized as "so vague and indefinite as to be useless to the defense."

Hardy in his reply to Lashly's argument said the latter was pursuing the course he had adopted merely as a means to fight against the time when his clients must go to trial and to cause every possible delay.

The producers and distributors face charges of violating the Sherman anti-trust act in conspiring to withhold first-run feature films from the Missouri, Ambassador and Grand Central theaters.

When all the evidence of better performance stacks up on the side of one spark plug, that spark plug must make every engine perform better. We feel that the use of Champion Spark Plugs by practically every victorious racing champion, for the last twelve years, nails that point down pretty firmly and makes the prevailing preference for Champions obvious and logical.

CORONER FOR CLOSING COUNTY HOSPITAL

Dr. Tiernon Assails Rule by 'Political Spoilsmen;' Proposes Special Tax.

Dr. Luke B. Tiernon, Coroner of St. Louis County, in a letter to the St. Louis County Chamber of Commerce yesterday, suggested that the St. Louis County Hospital should be closed until a special tax can be imposed to support it.

While no reference is made to the reinstatement by the County Court last Wednesday of Dr. Edwin L. Sheehan as superintendent, who was dismissed last June 27 after the grand jury had reported his administration had made the hospital "a menace to public health and safety," the letter stated:

"The disregard of the public interest by the political spoilsmen who are playing football with the hospital at the expense of the sick and needy seems to know no bounds. Soon there will be nothing left but a discredited institution that will be more of a menace than a help to health."

Urges Bi-Partisan Board.

Dr. Tiernon, who, himself, operates a private hospital at Pine Lawn, suggested that "a bi-partisan board of 12 outstanding citizens of the county, selected by the American Hospital Association or the St. Louis County Medical Society and approved by the County Court, be given complete control of the hospital, with authority to select a physician as superintendent and all its personnel, who shall have absolute power to operate the hospital, unhampered by political pressure."

Following the report of the grand jury which found that "the hospital is mismanaged to such an appalling extent that it constitutes a menace to the public health and safety of St. Louis County," Associate Judge Eugene Tighe, Democrat, moved that Dr. Sheahan be removed as superintendent. His motion was seconded by Associate Judge Emil Wohlschlaeger, Republican, and their votes carried the motion over the objection of Presiding Judge Thomas Thatcher, Democrat, who entered into a bitter exchange of words with Judge Tighe, but declined to vote.

After Dr. Sheahan had been removed, the County Court asked the Citizen's Committee on Cost of County Government, a group appointed by the St. Louis County Chamber of Commerce, to recommend a superintendent for the County Hospital. It recommended a committee composed of Dr. Evarts A. Graham, dean of the Washington University School of Medicine, Dr. Llewellyn Sale, superintendent of Jewish Hospital, and Alphonse M. Schwitalla, dean of the St. Louis University School of Medicine, to suggest a medical director.

The committee nominated Dr. Curtis H. Lohr, Hospital Commissioner of St. Louis under Mayor Miller, as superintendent and medical director. The Chamber of Commerce recommended that Dr. V. Ray Alexander, formerly superintendent of City Hospital, be named assistant superintendent and business manager.

How Court Lined Up.

No action was taken by the County Court for six weeks and last Wednesday, on motion of Judge Wohlschlaeger, who had previously voted for the removal of Dr. Sheahan, the former superintendent was reinstated by the affirmative vote of Judge Thatcher. Judge Tighe objected strenuously and voted against the motion.

"As a citizen and public officer of St. Louis County whose chief interest in politics is improvement of medical and health conditions," Dr. Tiernon wrote, "I am appealing to the St. Louis County Chamber of Commerce to consider my proposals to end the chaotic condition in St. Louis County Hospital.

Proposes Two-Cent Tax.

"The hospital should remain closed until a special tax of about two cents on each $100 property valuation can be imposed to support it.

"It requires about $276,000 a year to administer the hospital efficiently and the only way to obtain it is to provide a special tax. Perhaps it would be necessary to fix a higher rate for the first year to wipe out the debts now owed.

"With regard to the bi-partisan board of 12 to administer the hospital, I believe that it should be composed of public spirited citizens of various walks of life. It should include two physicians, a dentist, an attorney, an educator and several persons of diversified business, none of which should be of a type doing business with the hospital."

FOUR FINED $180 EACH ON LOTTERY CHARGES

Defense Contends Games Were Legitimate and No Tickets Were Fraudulent.

Four men, indicted by a Federal grand jury here January last, on charges of sending lottery tickets by express to Oklahoma, Arkansas and other states in violation of Federal statutes, were fined yesterday by Federal Judge Moore, after they had entered pleas of nolo contendere (no contest).

They were Charles T. Stevens and William Barney Taber, fined $180 each or $15 on each of 12 counts; Taber's son, Melvin ,and Mark Anthony Barutio, fined $60 each. The maximum penalties under the statutes were fines of not more than $10,000 and penitentiary sentences of not more than five years.

George Dyer, former Assistant United States Attorney, counsel for the men, told Judge Moore they had conducted a legitimate lottery and had sold no fraudulent tickets. They conducted lotteries, he said, on clearing house totals, weather readings and horse races, and were not aware that they were violating any Federal Statutes.

The men were arrested in April, 1934, in a raid on a printing shop at 610 Pine street when 137,000 lottery tickets were seized. They reside in St. Louis.

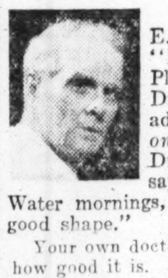
UNIVERSAL TRANSFER SYSTEM PUT INTO EFFECT IN CHICAGO

Permits Passengers to Shift From Trolleys to Elevated Trains at 52 Points.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—A universal transfer system went into effect at midnight tonight.

It extended for the experimental period of one year to an estimated 1,818,000 riders the privilege of transferring from street cars to elevated trains at 52 designated points.

Patrons are charged 10 cents, regular elevated fare, for any transfer entailing a trip on those trains. Transfers involving only the surface cars remain at the former rate of seven cents.



Constipated?
DO AS DOCTORS DO
For Years Thousands of Doctors Have Used or Recommended
PLUTO WATER
for Quicker, Surer Relief
When a doctor is constipated, what does he take for relief, that ought to prove beyond question how safe, how gentle, how effective a laxative is.
Now here's an amazing fact! For years, thousands have used or recommended Pluto Water. For they know, from personal experience, that Pluto is the sure way to eliminate dangerous accumulated poisons. They know it is an efficient, sure medicine. They know its action is gentle and quick.
What Doctors Say
For instance, Dr. C. E. B. of Indiana says: "Have prescribed Pluto for years." Then Dr. W. M. of Michigan advises: "Pluto is the only laxative." And Dr. L. R. E. of Ohio says: "By taking Pluto Water mornings, I always stay in good shape."
Your own doctor, too, will tell you how good it is. And—will warn you against habit-forming drugs of all kinds. That's why you also can always depend on this famous laxative.
So, the next time you are constipated, do as doctors do. Follow the gentle "water way" to relief. Take it in this easy efficient dose—1-5 Pluto with 4-5 glass hot water. In one hour or less you'll get relief. And what a remarkable difference it makes!
Remember, too, Pluto Water is simply a saline laxative mineral water, fortified and bottled at famous French Lick Springs, Indiana. All drug stores have it. Two sizes—25c and 50c. Two hundred million bottles of Pluto have already been used—millions more each year. One of the most economical, most effective laxatives you can buy! Get some today.

DR. JAY LIEBMANN'S WIFE ALLOWED $150 A MONTH

Court Awards Lawyer's Fees to Her Also, Pending Decision of Her Divorce Suit.

Mrs. Helen Liebmann, 7440 Somerset avenue, Clayton, was granted $150 a month for living expenses by Circuit Judge Fred E. Mueller at Clayton yesterday, pending settlement of her divorce suit against Dr. Jay Liebmann, who has offices at 220 North Fourth street.

Judge Mueller also awarded $300 on account to the law firm of Mark D. Eagleton, representing Mrs. Liebmann, and $150 for their expenses. She had asked for $350 for her personal expenses and the upkeep of her home. A motion that Mrs. Liebmann's divorce petition be made more definite was taken under advisement.

Mrs. Liebmann filed suit for divorce June 28 in Clayton and the followin gday filed in the Federal Court in Chicago a $100,000 alienation of affections suit against Mrs. Maude Lepman, wife of a Chicago physician.

BELGRANO TELLS HOW CASH BONUS BILL WAS LOST

Legion Commander Reports Effect of Hostile Propaganda and Inflation Element.

Membership of the American Legion which suffered losses during 1932 and 1933 because of the economic depression has increased during the past two years and at the present rate will reach 850,000 by the end of this year, according to the official report of National Commander Frank N. Belgrano Jr., prepared for the seventeenth annual convention which begins tomorrow.

"The highest total membership was recorded in 1931 when the million mark was surpassed," the report stated. "A small decline in membership was noted in 1932, and in 1933 depressed economic conditions caused a rather sharp decline.

"The year 1934, however, saw a 62,000-member increase, and at the end of that year the membership reached a paid total of 831,681. I am happy to report to you that the year 1935 has brought another increase in paid membership.

15,000 Over Year Ago.

"At the opening of this convention the lead is approximately 15,000 over the corresponding date last year, and with the maintenance of that lead for the balance of the year we will close 1935 with approximately 850,000 members.

"The American Legion had exactly 11,000 posts chartered on Aug. 31, 1934. On Aug. 31, 1935, the total number of posts chartered was 11,204."

The bill for cash payment of the bonus supported by the Legion would have had a "fair chance" of passage by Congress if it had been considered on its own merits, in the opinion of Belgrano. It did not specify a method of financing payment. Concerning the bill, introduced by Representative Fred M. Vinson of Kentucky, the Commander said:

"Immediately upon introduction sharp and biting criticism and denunciation came from a group in the House of Representatives who sponsored a bill calling for payment of the certificates through a system of expansion or inflation of the currency.

Campaign of Propaganda.

"A nation-wide campaign of propaganda was immediately entered into by this group, attacking the Legion and directing personal assault upon the National Commander and the National Legislative Committee. Throughout the long period when the issue was before the Congress the attacks continued through every channel of propaganda and publicity.

"I am not concerned and did not concern myself about the personal malignment, but I am and was vitally concerned about its effect on the pending legislation, and am convinced that this campaign had a telling effect in the defeat of the veterans' cause.

"It is my considered opinion that had the issue of payment of the adjusted service certificates been presented to and considered by the Congress on its own merits, any bill would have had a fair chance of passage. But when loaded down with a provision for expansion or inflation of the currency, a question more controversial than that of payment of the certificates, it was doomed from the very beginning."

Conscription of "Capital."

Belgrano expressed confidence that the next Congress would enact "at least the basic principles" of the universal service law which has been urged by the Legion for the past 12 years. It provides for conscription of "capital, industry, labor and all the national resources on the same plane with man power if called upon to serve in another war."

The McSwain bill, which would put the plan into effect, was passed by the House with only 15 dissenting votes and the Senate adjourned without taking action.

AGUINALDO CHARGES FRAUDS IN BALLOTING

His Leaders Announce Cable to Roosevelt Accusing Murphy of Partiality.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, Sept. 21.—Leaders of Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo's National Socialist party, which was defeated in Tuesday's election, announced today they had cabled to President Roosevelt a protest against conduct of the balloting. They charged frauds had occurred and accused Governor-General Frank Murphy of partiality.

The election named Manuel Quezon as the first President of the Commonwealth Government to be inaugurated soon. Aguinaldo and Bishop Gregorio Aglipay were the defeated candidates.

The protest message was signed by former Senator Emiliano Triatrona, president of the National Socialist party and Aguinaldo's campaign manager. Triatrona also was an unsuccessful candidate for the National Assembly.

The message said:

"The National Socialist party directorate and leaders today passed a resolution denouncing to you the partiality of the Governor-General in the last elections in permitting Filipino department secretaries and executive officials working openly for coalition candidates.

"This attitude encouraged active intervention of officials not permitted by law and commission of threats, coercions and election frauds.

"There were instances of constabulary and police meddling with the free exercise of constitutional rights. Election results were an adulterated expression of popular will.

"Evidence of frauds cannot be submitted to Murphy as we are losing confidence in his fairness. Such frauds are causing general discontent among the masses. Immediate action is earnestly requested."

SALE OF RIVERFRONT BONDS AUTHORIZED BY ALDERMEN

No Action to Be Taken Till Word Is Received of Federal Payment.

An ordinance authorizing Mayor Dickmann and Comptroller Nolte to sell $7,500,000 in bonds voted Sept. 10 for the site for the proposed Jefferson Memorial on the Mississippi riverfront was passed unanimously by the Board of Aldermen at a special meeting yesterday.

No immediate sale of any of the bonds is anticipated, as the Board of Estimate and Apportionment announced Tuesday that the bonds would be sold only in such amounts as the Federal Government advances three times as much, that is, on the basis of $1 for $3. The Government's share of the riverfront project is $22,500,000, and the city has not yet been notified when the first payment by the Government will be made.

It was announced at the meeting yesterday that the Special Natural Gas Committee of the Board would meet Friday at 11 a. m. to consider a bill appropriatiing $7500 for a survey by the United States Bureau of Mines to determine whether Illinois coal can be made smokeless, in an effort to abate smoke here.

COLLATERAL ON BRINKMAN $77,000 LOAN BRINGS $14,300

No Offer on Three of Eleven Items of Bankrupt's Property Put Up for Sale.

Securities posted by Ben G. Brinkman, bankrupt promoter and financier, with the Lafayette-South Side Bank & Trust Co., as collateral for a loan of about $77,000, were sold yesterday at the Civil Courts Building for $14,377. P. A. Thias, a vice-president of the Manufacturers' Bank & Trust Co., which is liquidating agent for the Lafayette-South Side Bank, offered the property for sale.

There were nine blocks of stocks offered in addition to two real estate notes. No bid was made for three of the items, including $35,000 face value debentures of the National Exhibition Co., which operated the Arena. The real estate notes and two blocks of securities was purchased by a representative of the liquidating agent, and Milton K. Lederer & Co. purchased the remaining securities sold.

Brinkman's note as evidence of the loan was executed in October, 1932, and fell due in April, 1933. It was reduced to $76,702. Last March a bankruptcy decree was entered against Brinkman at Miami, Fla.

SUIT OVER TRUTH CENTER ROW FORMALLY DISMISSED

"The Matters and Things Have Been Amicably Settled," Court Is Told.

Formal dismissal of the suit of the St. Louis Truth Center, Inc., against the Rev. Emil C. Hartmann and three members of his congregation was entered yesterday before Circuit Judge O'Malley. The suit sought an accounting in connection with affairs of the corporation.

An injunction to prevent the Rev. Mr. Hartmann from using the Truth Center's building at 4030 Lindell boulevard also was requested. His brother, the Rev. Charles H. Hartmann, and sister, Miss Catherine C. Hartmann, were his active opponents. A stipulation set forth that "the matters and things have been amicably settled." The case was dismissed at cost of plaintiff.

PROCESSING TAX 'REFUND' PLAN

Oklahoma Miller Proposes Giving Impounded Money to Red Cross.

By the Associated Press.

PONCA CITY, O., Sept. 21.—D. J. Donahoe Jr., milling company executive, has proposed to 1200 millers that more than $50,000,000 in impounded wheat processing taxes be given to the American Red Cross if the United States Supreme Court knocks out such taxes and orders the money refunded.

Donahoe said today first replies to his proposal were favorable. The suggestion was based on anticipation of victory in the millers' attack on constitutionality of wheat processing taxes levied by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. "The consumer is the one entitled to the refund but he cannot be found," said Donahoe. Giving it to the Red Cross, he said, would aid "all Americans in distress."

CLEVELAND SEEKING 1936 LEGION MEETING

City Offers Check for $25,650, Ohio $50,000; Delegation of 500 Here.

A strong bid for the 1936 convention of the American Legion will be made this week by Cleveland, O. The delegation of 500 Legionnaires from that city offer a check for $25,650, and a representative of Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio will present a draft for $50,000 from the state.

The checks will be deposited with the Convention Corporation in the event that Cleveland is selected as the place for next year's meeting. Business interests of Cleveland raised the $25,650 and have pledged an additional $25,000. The $50,000 was voted by the Ohio Legislature.

With "Cleveland—for a perfect '36" the slogan for their persuasive efforts, the Cleveland Legionnaires will wage their campaign by distributing copies of a six-page folder recounting the facilities of the city for such a large gathering, and 50,000 badges bearing the slogan.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. blimp, "Reliance," will circle over St. Louis all this week, trailing signs, "Akron wants you to come to Cleveland." An airplane sent by an oil company will do skywriting.

The advertising folder points out that Cleveland is in the center of the Legion population of the country, and that the Public Auditorium offers adequate space for all convention meetings. The American Legion 1936 Convention Corporation of Cleveland was formed in 1934 under a state charter.

David Ingalls, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy in charge of Aviation, is president of the corporation. Representing the organization here before the 1935 convention are K. W. Kitchen, executive vice-president, Glenn Campbell, Vernon Charnley, Thomas Herbert and Earle Johnson. Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, is honorary president of the corporation.

Colorado Delegates to Parade Tonight in Bid for Convention.

Colorado delegates to the American Legion convention will participate in a parade at 6 o'clock this evening, as a demonstration in behalf of Denver's bid for the 1936 Legion convention.

The parade, headed by the box car and engine of the 40 and 8 Voiture of Denver, will start at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. and move over the route of the main parade Tuesday. In the line will be a float depicting a letter 12 by 16 feet, addressed to Commander National Commander Frank N. Belgrano and bearing Denver's invitation.

WOMAN KILLS HERSELF BY DRINKING DISINFECTANT

Mrs. Edward Cornell Had Been Patient in City Sanitarium, Husband Says.

Mrs. Mae Cornell, 28 years old, of 2117A Penrose street, died at City Hospital shortly before 6 o'clock last night after drinking most of the contents of a bottle of disinfectant at her home.

Her husband, Edward, a clerk, told police that he and his wife were in the dining room eating dinner, when she arose from the table, went to a front room and returned a few minutes later. Noticing that her eyes were dilated, he called police, who took her to the hospital.

Her husband could offer no explanation of her act besides, telling police that his wife had been a patient at the City Sanitarium from April 17 to Aug. 19.

FEE BILL OF $152,000 IN FOX RECEIVERSHIP

Judge O'Malley Hearing Claims on Theater Realty Co., Owner of Movie House.

Legal fees totaling $152,000 were sought in the receivership of the Theater Realty Co., owner of the Fox Theater, in a hearing yesterday before Circuit Judge O'Malley, who will hear further evidence this week.

The receivers, James T. Blair, former Judge of the Missouri Supreme Court, and Edmond Koeln, former Collector, each petitioned for $35,000, while their attorneys, John S. Leahy and Guy A. Thompson, ask for $32,500 each. The St. Louis Union Trust Co., plaintiff in the snit, asked for a fee of $2000. Its counsel, the law firm of Bryan, Williams, Cave & McPheeters, presented a bill for $15,000. The trust company was trustee under a mortgage deed of trust covering a bond issue secured by the building.

The receivers and their counsel were appointed in January, 1932, and have so far worked without compensation. It was pointed out that the receivers have collected $3,644,041 since taking charge.

A Bondholders' Protective Committee is about to effect a reorganization which will terminate the receivership, the court was informed. The proposed fees were said to have met with no objection from the committee. However, William W. Sleater Jr., attorney for William L. Reiman, owner of a defaulted $1000 bond, questioned Leahy and Thompson in reference to a contract whereby the receivers are paying $1000 a week to the St. Louis Theater across from the Fox on Grand boulevard. The contract enables the receivers to control the operation of the rival theater when it has shows. Sleater contended it was not an advantageous contract. This was denied by the receivers.

Reiman sought to file an intervening petition in the receivership suit, but his petition to intervene was overruled yesterday by Judge O'Malley.

'Toyland' to Be Theme of Veiled Prophet Parade

Devises to Amuse Children Depicted in 19 of 20 Floats in 56th Annual Procession October 8.

"Toyland" is to be the theme of the 56th annual Veiled Prophet's parade, to be held Tuesday night, Oct. 8. Nineteen of the 20 floats will display devices for the amusement of childhood.

Float No. 1 will be devoted to the Veiled Prophet, who always holds this position of honor in the street pageant. The subsequent floats will be:

2. Jack in the Box, someone having just opened the box and set his head bobbing.
3. Dolls of various races and nations.
4. Drums, with drummers and drum majors.
5. Alphabet Blocks.
6. Spinning Top, with a bevy of spinners.
7. Circus, a glimpse under the big top.
8. Hobby Horse and a troop of riders.
9. Wooden Soldiers doing a Victor Herbert march.
10. Mechanical Toys, including a train and a sand derrick.
11. Candy Canes, with lollypops thrown in.
12. Celluloid Toys.
13. Punch and Judy and all their puppet crew.
14. Playground, with the gymnastic equipment at work.
15. Horns and their blowers, awakening people who would prefer to sleep.
16. Sleds coasting and being pulled back uphill.
17. Story Books, with their characters stepping right out, Old King Cole, Little Jack Horner and the rest.
18. Sailboats, with the boys and girls who launch them.
19. Merrymakers, balloons, paper caps and the like.
20. Santa Claus' workshop at its busy season.

Oscar E. Berninghaus, scenic artist, designed the floats, which are now approaching completion in the Veiled Prophet's workshop.

Dr. Raymond Robbins Hurt in Fall

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 21.—Dr. Raymond Robbins, educator, suffered injuries to his back this afternoon in a 10-foot fall from a tree he was pruning at his home near Brooksville. Dr. Robbins was brought to the Municipal Hospital here for treatment. Dr. Robbins disappeared several years ago when he failed to keep an appointment with President Hoover at the White House. He was found later dressed in workingman's garb in the North Carolina Mountains. Relatives said he was a victim of amnesia.

Noted Pilot to Talk With Air Show Crowd While Skywriting Today

Col. Art Goebel to Carry on Conversations by Radio From Plane High Above Ground.

A demonstration of aircraft-radio communication is scheduled as a feature of the Air Show to be held at Curtis-Steinberg Airport this afternoon. Col. Art Goebel, Hawaiian flight ace, and his new air radio car were to arrive in St. Louis from Chicago late yesterday to give a demonstration of radio communication between his skywriting plane and spectators on the ground.

Col. Goebel is flying a Boeing P-12 Pursuit plane, fully equipped with a two-way short wave radio unit known as Station W5XAR. The air radio car, a Chrysler Imperial Airflow sedan, said to be the only portable sound unit of its kind in the United States, is also equipped with a two-way short wave radio station known as W5XAS.

By means of this equipment, direct communication can be established with Goebel where he is skywriting at an altitude of from 8000 to 15,000 feet.

Persons in the crowd at the airport will be invited to talk to him or ask questions, and the conversation will be broadcast from the speaker which projects vertically through the roof of the car.

Both radio units, including the sound equipment, were designed and manufactured especially for the Phillips Petroleum Co., sponsor of Goebel's demonstration here today, and have been licensed as experimental stations by the Federal Communications Commission.

Col. Goebel is a World War veteran. He will remain here for the first two days of the American Legion Convention. Weather permitting, he will skywrite over the city tomorrow and Tuesday afternoons. The air radio car will be offered as a musical and broadcasting unit in connection with the Legion parade Tuesday.

The sound car and ground demonstrations will be in charge of C. S. Hansen, radio announcer. He will be assisted by Ralph D. Strout, first class radio telephone operator, formerly with the United States Navy Department at Washington, D. C.

Pontiac Executives To Leave Wednesday For Factory Meeting

W. P. Winslow, zone manager, and his field staff of district managers and service supervisors for the Pontiac Motor Co., will depart for Chicago Wednesday to join similar groups from the Chicago, Minneapolis, Oklahoma City, Dallas and Kansas City zones on a special train on the Wabash Railroad for Detroit and Pontiac, Mich.

The occasion is the annual two-day meeting of Pontiac field men from all over the United States. The special train and the party from Chicago will be in charge of Allen Wright, manager of the Pontiac Midwest Region.

Goodyear Dealers At Celebration Dinner

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. held a meeting and dinner at the Jefferson Hotel Wednesday night to celebrate the local organization's making its July and August quotas. The dinner was attended by more than 300 dealers from St. Louis and the surrounding territory in Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky and Indiana who made their quota.

A. P. Bethel, general sales manager for the St. Louis zone, was toastmaster, and extended a welcome to the dealers on behalf of R. S. Wilson, general sales manager for the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.

Dr. Raymond Robbins Hurt in Fall

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 21.—Dr. Raymond Robbins, educator, suffered injuries to his back this afternoon in a 10-foot fall from a tree he was pruning at his home near Brooksville. Dr. Robbins was brought to the Municipal Hospital here for treatment. Dr. Robbins disappeared several years ago when he failed to keep an appointment with President Hoover at the White House. He was found later dressed in workingman's garb in the North Carolina Mountains. Relatives said he was a victim of amnesia.

Sinclair Co. to Stress, In Advertising, Service On Cars for Winter

Announcement of a new fall and winter advertising campaign in which newspaper are to play a leading role has just been made by the Sinclair Refining Co. Among the newspapers selected for the campaign is the Post-Dispatch.

One of the purposes of the campaign will be to remind motoriists, when the time is ripe, of the need of having their cars put in shape for winter driving. This Sinclair dealers will be prepared to do with their "Sinclair-ize for Winter" service.

In rendering thiis service, a trained man goess over the motorist's car from bumper to bumper—getting it ready for winter driving and guarding it against the troubles that winter usually brings.

The dealers specializing in this get-ready-for-winter service will identify themselves by posters at their stations, special window displays and cap trims on which the far-sighted thrifty squirrel, storing up his winter supply of nuts, is a prominent feature. Stations marked with this symbol will be found throughout the city.

Lubrite Offers Trophy For American Legion's Competition for Bands

The Lubrite Division of the Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., Inc., announces the donation of a trophy which will be awarded as the first prize to the band adjudged the best in the American Legion band contest to be held at the Municipal Auditorium this wek.

This trophy is on display at Boyd's Clothing Company, Sixth and Olive.

"We welcome the American Legion to St. Louis and we are eagerly awaiting the coming band contest, which we know will be interesting to all lovers of martial music. If arrangements can be made, we hope to be able to broadcast a program by the winning band over KMOX," said T. T. Ashton, general manager for Lubrite.

The Lubrite Division, through several thousand jobbers and dealers in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri, serves the motoring public with Mobilgas and Mobiloil, Socony-Vacuum products.

Dodge Co. Dealers Meet to Discuss Plans for New Season

Hear Company Executive Outline Campaign and Tell of 90 Per Cent Sales Gain.

Six hundred Dodge dealers and members of their organizations met Tuesday in German House here with J. D. Burke, director of truck sales for the Dodge factory, and other executives, to discuss plans for the new automobile selling season which will begin earlier this year than in the past. Burke pointed out that deliveries of Dodge passenger cars rose from 67,463 in the first eight months of 1934 to 132,106 in the corresponding period of this year. Thus, he said, Dodge's gain over 1934 thus far is 90 per cent, whereas the average gain for the industry as a whole is reliably estimated at about half that percentage.

The total of retail deliveries by Dodge dealers between Jan. 1 and Aug. 31, 1935, comprising Dodge passenger cars, Dodge trucks and a proportion of the output of Plymouth cars, was 259,674 vehicles, as against 169,372 deliveries made between Jan. 1 and Aug. 31 of last year.

Talks on Economic Outlook

"Today economic conditions are such that we have every reason to look forward to an even more prosperous season," Burke said. "Wherever we turn, we see evidence of advancing prosperity. In many lines business is right now at its highest since the decline of 1926. Railroad loadings of steel, coal and oil show noteworthy gains. The garment industries report the best fall buying in years. The wool market, influenced by the demand for men's clothing, is running double its normal volume.

"Tourist travel on railroads was nearly 50 per cent greater the past summer. The resort business, chiefly catering to motorists, is better than in a long time. The chemical industries report unusually large banks of orders. Sugar refineries are operating at full tilt. Bus transportation has reached a new five-year high in its revenues. Home building is showing growing activity, in many sections. The leather and shoe market is enjoying an upturn, despite higher raw material prices—and so on.

Hints as to New Models.

"The rate at which the public invests in new transportation affords one of the most reliable indications of the state of general business. Of significance in this connection is the fact that while passenger car and truck sales are steadily increasing everywhere, their increase is more than twice as great in communities under 10,000 population than in towns and cities over 10,000. This makes it obvious that returning prosperity, first manifest in larger cities and industrial centers, is penetrating the entire United States at a rapid rate. The farm market affords another proof of this conclusion.

"While it is too early for advance information about details that will distinguish the Dodge models, for 1936, some 1936 features which the new cars will have may be indicated. Beauty will, of course, be a predominating element in the impending changes. Economy will be even more pronounced. Comfort will be provided in greater measure than ever and quiet operation will have been brought still closer to the ideal."

Synod Urges Driving Courtesy.

The California synod of the Presbyterian Church recently adopted a resolution calling for automobile driving "with a courtesy and grace which becomes Christians." "Whoever else may drive in disregard of the rights of safety of other people, let us at least not do so," the resolution stated.

Brayton Flying Service To Distribute Plane Designed for Economy

The Taylor Aircraft Corporation of Bradford, Penn., has appointed the Brayton Flying Service as distributor of its new Taylor Cub airplane in Missouri.

C. E. BRAYTON

Clyde E. Brayton, president of the distributing firm has been in aviation since 1920 operating at Lambert Field.

The new planes are on display and arrangements are being made to take care of student flying.

The Taylor Aircraft Co. says that the plane will land at a speed of 28 miles per hour and that it is one of the slowest speed landing planes manufactured. The company has been in business for four years, and has concentrated on a light plane at moderate price.

This plane cruises at 65 miles per hour on 2¾ gallons of gasoline and one-half pint of oil per hour.

Ford Trucks Play Part in Development Of New Food Service

The motor truck has opened up recently vast new markets for perishable foods. By cutting transportation costs and speeding up deliveries, light, fast units like the Ford V-8 also have reduced the prices of such foods to the consumer, and taken them out of the luxury class.

There was a time when, only a few miles back from the sea, fresh seafoods were not to be had, when even the rich couldn't have strawberries in January, and if a city-dweller had to have a cucumber out of season, it came from a local hothouse.

Now fast transportation, combined with improved refrigeration, is taking fresh, perishable foods—fish from the Atlantic, Pacific and the Gulf of Mexico, meats from Chicago, Kansas City, Cincinnati and Denver, fruit from the Imperial Valley, from Florida and the Gulf Coast, milk and dairy products from distant plants, vegetables from the Southeast and Southwest—to consumers many hundreds of miles away.

Buick Co. Outlines Definite Plans to Sell 135,000 Cars in 1936

Expects 50 Per Cent Increase in Sales Over Total for This Year.

A 50 per cent increase in sales in 1936 with a heavy volume in the last three months of this year, is the goal set by the Buick Motor Co. before visiting dealers from all over the United States called to Flint to inspect the new Buick line for next year and lay plans for a 135,000-car objective next year.

The new cars received the approval of W. S. Knudsen, executive vice-president of General Motors, and R. H. Grant, vice-president of the corporation in charge of sales, who were among guests at the first factory pre-view of the new cars.

"Fundamentally, our operations for next year are the direct result of definite objectives set up nearly two years ago," Harlow H. Curtice, Buick president and general manager, told the dealers. "The first of these objectives was to put Buick dominantly in the lower price market. The second was to return to mid-year announcements of new models.

"We are going to market for 1936 with the finest and best rounded program Buick has had in many years. Our new cars are not simply new models. They represent an amazing regeneration of the product, stepped up and designed up to these modern times and to the desires of the people.

"In designing and engineeirng the new cars we made a departure from the past wherever necessary, building to meet the modern mode, to take Buick out of the utility class and put it in the smart style class. This has been accomplished with no sacrifice of basic durability and economy. Every sound and solid element of quality that distinguished the Buick of old and that serves as the foundation of the priceless Buick reputation, has been retained."

W. F. Hufstader, Buick vice-president and general sales manager, said: "We feel that we are entitled to anticipate a 20 per cent increase in the over all market. Buick's share of this expected general increase, which next year will be greater than in the past, means an increase of 50 per cent over the 1935 business. This year should produce sales of approximately 85,000 Buick units. Our goal for 1936, then, will be 135,000 cars."

Price reductions ranging from $40 to $385 on Buick 1936 models were announced by H. H. Curtice, president of the Buick Co. The new line will be formally announced Sept. 28. These will be the first 1936 cars to appear under the fall announcement plan to which the industry agreed with President Roosevelt as a step toward leveling production peaks.

Standard Oil Makes R. W. May Manager Of Decatur Division

R. W. May, assistant manager of the St. Louis field of Standard Oil Co.'s sales department, has been promoted to manager of the company's Decatur (Ill.) division. May will have supervision of the company's sales activities in the Decatur field.

May, a native St. Louisan, entered the Standard Oil organization in 1921 as a salesman and became sub-station correspondent in September of the same year. He was made sales manager in 1922, sales promoter in 1924, and assistant manager at Quincy, Ill., in 1927, he remaining for a year before coming to St. Louis in the same capacity.

Local Goodyear Force Wins National Contest

T. Hughes, J. Degenhardt, B. Lang, J. Boyd and E. Wells, sales representatives for the local Goodyear Service stores, are credited with being largely responsible for the local organization winning a national sales contest conducted by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. this year.

This group also led the retail sales crews nationally by placing 11 men in the Hi-Man Club during the July-August G-3 sales campaign.

DON P. FIELD.

B. A. LYMAN.

APPOINTMENT of Don P. Field as assistant zone manager for the Pontiac Motor Co., and of B. A. Lyman as city sales manager, is announced by W. P. Winslow, zone manager here. Field rose in the Cadillac branch in Milwaukee from retail salesman to general sales manager. In 1934, he went with the Pontiac Motor Co. as an executive. Lyman came to this zone from Chicago last year to become a district manager with headquarters at Springfield, Ill., which position he held until appointed city sales manager here. He was secretary and treasurer of the Cadillac Merit Men in 1932.

Supercharged Auburn Cars in Caravan That Is Here for Few Days

A caravan of Auburn supercharged motor cars, all painted white, and accompanied by a six-cylinder Auburn sedan with public address system, is here for several days.

The caravan is made up of three 150-horsepower super-charged Auburn cars—a speedster, a cabriolet and a phaeton sedan. The six-cylinder sedan, with public address system, heads the caravan.

This method of displaying the super-charged Auburns which have created comment nationally, is to be carried on in several hundred cities in the next three months. The caravan visits these cities, stopping at Auburn dealers' showrooms and parading through the business sections.

While here the cars, when not parading, will be on display at the showrooms of the Southwest Motor & Truck Co., 4022 West Pine.

The leader of the super-charged line is the torpedo body type speedster with exposed exhaust pipes of racing-car design. This has a top speed of more than 100 miles an hour and at 75 to 80 miles an hour responds to the accelerator as easily as other cars do at 35 to 40 miles per hour.

The super-charger is of the centrifugal type, friction drive, thus eliminating the necessity of complicated gears, and is capable of a sustained speed of 24,000 r. p. m.

Fenders are of the airstream type, while the rear end of the body comes to a point in torpedo style. Running boards have been dispensed with, and passengers step directly from the car to the pavement. In racing car fashion, engine exhaust is dispersed through four pipes covered with three-inch polished, stainless steel tubing that extends out through the hood and turns down under the chassis where they connect with the muffler.

The super-charged phaeton sedan, brougham and sedan, are more conservatice but have the exposed exhaust pipes.

Chevrolet Truck Makes Fast Time To Top of Pike's Peak

Comes Within Seven Minutes of Fastest Time Made by Any Stock Passenger Car.

A 1½-ton truck speeding up the 12.4-mile climb to the summit of Pikes Peak, to set a record for trucks within seven minutes of equalling the fastest time ever made by a stock passenger car, was the spectacle that greeted tourists on the world's highest auto highway Sept. 17. The run was one of a series of tests conducted by Chevrolet, the first formally observed and timed runs of motor trucks ever held over the perilous hairpin turns and steeply pitched switchbacks leading to a finish line 14,109 feet above sea level.

Power, endurance and efficiency were tested over this difficult proving grounds, where not only a long distance over stiff grades must be overcome, but also the unfavorable effects of altitude on carburetion and compression. Even at the bottom of the course, the altitude is 9150 feet above sea level, while the finish is 4959 feet higher. At these altitudes engines suffer the same difficulties as do human beings; that is, their ability to develop energy is reduced by the low atmospheric pressures and lack of oxygen.

A Chevrolet ton-and-a-half truck, with cab and stake body, carrying a full 3000-pound load, covered the official course of the Pikes Peak national hill climb in 37 minutes 52½ seconds, at an average speed of 20½ miles an hour, then repeated the climb without load in 26 minutes 12 seconds, averaging 29.8 miles an hour. On both runs, the truck was driven by W. P. Bentrup of Colorado Springs, winner of the Penrose trophy in one of the annual Labor day climbs for race cars, and also winner one year in the stock small-car class in slower time than his fastest Chevrolet truck record.

Harry Hartz, the racing driver who was present as a technical advisor, suddenly yielded to a desire to try the course himself, and started out in the only vehicle at hand—a Chevrolet half-ton truck with cab and pick-up body, which had been run only eight miles. Although he had never piloted any car over the dangerous and tricky course, where speed depends so much on intimate knowledge of the road, and although the truck had not been tuned for the high altitude, having been taken directly from the Colorado Springs dealer's stock, Hartz drove the half-ton model around the sharp bends and up the switchbacks to cover the full course in 25 minutes 3 seconds.

On each ascent, the trucks were timed by six observers, representatives of newspapers and of automobile trade papers, three stationed at the start and three at the finish. The timers at the summit received instantaneous signals of the starts from an official at the telephone installed at the starting line, and in turn signalled the finish by telephone from the summit to the timers at the start. The average time of the stop watches was taken as the official time of the run.

U. S. MARKETS DISTURBED BY FOREIGN SITUATION

First Time in More Than Year That Developments Abroad Exert Influence Here—Improved Tone as Week Closes.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21. — The beating of plowshars into swords has become a new incalculable factor in the world struggle for economic recovery.

Wall street and Threadneedle street, at first inclined to look with some complaisance upon the business created for steel, copper and chemicals by rearmament, grew uneasy and securities prices took a pronounced plunge, during the week.

a pronounced plunge, during the The American markets, long intent upon domestic recovery, were disturbed by foreign developments for the first time in more than a year. Just how American recovery might be impaired by a European conflict developing in the Mediterranean is not clear. But Wall street, which has previously shown inclination to "bull" the so-called war stocks, clearly does not like the prospect as international tension becomes sharp.

The probable adverse effects upon Great Britain, which since early 1932 has been a leader in world recovery, however, are more obvious to Wall street economists. By pursuing a balanced budget and cheap credit policy, England has stimulated domestic construction. Her capital goods industries have started to move. London has resumed her functions as world banker. England's foreign trade has lagged, but she has restored her industrial production to 1929 levels.

Possible Effects.

Huge expenditures for armament might well disrupt her easy money policy. Heavy deposits of foreign funds in London, which have helped to make money cheap there, would presumably be sharply drawn down. Another run on London such as that of four years ago would be conceivable, according to Wall street experts. Aside from the industries helped by the rearmament program, British trade has already shown some signs of hesitancy.

On the continent, the latest and more tense phase of the Italo-Ethiopian controversy finds what is left of the gold bloc still in the throes of deflation. A further slump of the Holland guilder was checked this week, but the French franc was unable to get back to a level high enough to stem the renewed flow of gold out of Paris. The gold bloc's troubles ante-dated the Italian developments, but appear to have been aggravated by them, particularly insofar as France is concerned.

More Hopeful View.

The world of finance, however, took a somewhat more hopeful view of the international controversy in Europe today.

The London stock exchange and the Paris bourse were closed for the Saturday holiday, but prices stiffened in Wall street, and although gold continued to flow from London and Paris to New York, there was less active demand for dollars in foreign exchange dealings in principal financial capitals.

The Berlin boerse, the only important European securities market open, registered a substantial recovery in German issues, but Wall street was somewhat skeptical of any favorable international implications, pointing out that owing to the rigid foreign exchange control, the German market is practically isolated, and in any case, a dispute between Italy and Great Britain might help the Reich in extending its influence in Central Euorpe.

Boom in Other Markets.

This week's unprecedented boom in the Tokio and Osaka stock exchanges have received a somewhat similar interpretation here. Wall street observers felt that Japan's ambitious program to extend her power on the continent of Asia could only be furthered if the Occident should become involved in a conflict of its own.

A further $21,854,000 in gold was engaged for shipment to New York today, of which $9,539,000 was from England, $9,486,000 from France, and $2,829,000 from Canada. Some banking circles wondered if the American stabilization fund might not be engaging gold in an effort to help support the pound and the franc. Some months ago, it cooperated with the French to check a run on the franc.

Quieter Week-End Trade.

The stock market swung back to a relatively even keel in the short trading session at week-end.

There was a little buying in the rail shares and a few specialties, but other classifications were narrowly irregular.

News that the Italian Cabinet had rejected the League of Nations proposals in regard to the Ethiopian dispute appeared to leave the market unmoved.

It was thought in some quarters that peace prospects appeared to have been aided by the fact that another meeting of the Italian Cabinet was scheduled for Tuesday, thus leaving a loophole for further negotiations.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks finished without change at 48.4. The 30 industrials were level, while a small improvement in the 15 rails was offset by a minor price shading in the utility group.

Dealings proceeded at a gentler pace, on an hourly basis, than in the two previous sessions when the market was under pressure. In the stock exchange 673,500 shares changed hands.

In the bond market foreign issues held the spotlight. Italian 7s came back sharply to gain 3 points at 59½, but French 7s were off more than 2 points at 174. British issues, easy at one time, finished only slightly lower. U. S. Government obligations were generally a little easier. Corporate classifications were mostly narrow, although there was a little selling of low-priced rail liens.

News stimulus, other than the disturbed international political outlook, was generally lacking for either the bull or bear factions in the securities markets.

COMMODITY INDEX AVERAGES

Other statistical data showing economic trend.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity was slightly lower today at 70.1, compared with 70.2 last week and 58.0 for the comparable week a year ago.

The reduced level of automobile output—manufacturers are still in the throes of preparing for new models—again was the most important factor in the decline.

Steel mill activity and electric power production received seasonal setbacks according to the indices, largely reflecting the transition staged in the automobile industry. Cotton manufacturing activity, on the other hand, improved somewhat. Total carloadings were up sharply more than seasonally, with gains not only in the coal classification but in the merchandise groups as well.

The index, based on 1929-30 as 100, and adjusted for seasonal variation, follows with the corresponding index figures for its component parts:

	Latest Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.

FINANCIAL NOTES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Irvin F. Lehman, president of the Blaw Knox Co., said that lack of improvements and rehabilitation in industry since 1930 are building up a demand for industrial spending which is resulting in the current placement of actual orders. Blaw Knox will show a good-sized profit in the final half year, unless there are unforeseen developments, he said.

General Telephone Corporation has been advised by the Bankers Trust Co. that about 75 per cent of the 97,391 purchase rights, issued to purchase shares in the reorganized corporation, have been exercised. As a result the new company has increased its cash position by about $3,675,000.

Speyer & Co. and J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, fiscal agents for the State of San Paulo 7 per cent coffee realization loan of 1930, announced that funds have been deposited with them for the payment in U. S. currency of the face amount of the Oct. 1, 1935, coupons of the dollar bonds.

Favorable dividend changes in the past week totaled 33, compared with 39 in the previous week, according to Standard Statistics Co., Inc. Although lower than the previous week, the total still is well above the average of the past few months. Unfavorable changes totaled six compared with five the preceding week.

Banking circles expect the issue of $29,-500,000 4½ per cent series "A" refunding mortgage bonds of 1960 of the Central Maine Power Co., to be publicly offered about Oct 10. It is understood that the maximum offering price of the bonds will be 105.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Exports of cotton this week totaled 94,000 bales, compared with 96,000 in the like week last season, according to the New York Cotton Exchange. This brought exports for the season to date to 422,000 bales, compared with 512,000 in the corresponding period last season. The world visible supply of American cotton totals 3,743,000 bales, compared with 3,426,000 a week ago and 5,542,000 at this date last year.

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, Sept. 21 (U. S. Department of Agriculture).—Wool moved very freely in the Boston market during the past week, and prices continued the upward trend of the previous week despite some slackening in demand. Sales of graded fresh combing 64s and finer territory wools at 74@76c scoured basis, and of original lines ranging from 71@73c for short French combing to 76@77c for choice French combing with some strictly combing staple were made in sizable volume. Medium fleece and territory lines were strong. Late sales of strictly combing Ohio fleeces included 64s and finer and 58s, 60s, ½ blood at 31@32c in the grease, 56s, ⅜ blood at 34@35c, and 48s, 50s, ¼ blood at 34c.

NEW YORK BANK STATEMENT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing House shows: Total surplus and undivided profits, $731,624,400, unchanged; total net demand deposits (average), $56,992,000 (increase); time deposits (average), $2,623,-000 (decrease); clearings week ending today, $3,806,113,509; clearings week ending Sept. 14, $3,245,462,331.

WHEAT WEAKNESS ABROAD WEIGHS ON PRICES HERE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—Refusing to take Italy's "no" today as a final rejection of peace offers, the wheat market responded with a moderate downturn of prices.

Cautiousness in regard to possible surprise developments in Europe over Sunday ruled dealings, especially as trade drew to an end. A firm undertone in wheat values was evident, with rallies easily achieved, and the bulk of selling appearing to come from recent buyers who were in a position to realize profits.

Wheat in Chicago closed unsettled ⅛@1¼ under yesterday's finish, Dec. 99⅛@¼, corn ½ off to ⅛ up, Dec. 58¾@⅞, oats at ¼ decline to ⅛ advance, and provisions varying from 5 cents setback to an equal gain.

From the outset, sharp attention of Chicago wheat traders was given to weakness of foreign markets. Liverpool wheat quotations in particular were noticed as showing a material decline, whereas an advance there had been looked for. Cables attributed this decline to profit-taking, but the immediate effect here was bearish, and did much to restrain any outburst of unusual buying enthusiasm.

A good deal of comment was heard that the action of Italy was only a beginning of negotiations, and [illegible] be regarded as yet but a preliminary step. Meanwhile, word of a pause in overseas demand for wheat shipments acted as something of a handicap for values here. On the other hand, reports current left scant room for doubt as to seriousness of the foreign political situation. Furthermore, Argentine advices mentioned no substantial relief from drouth.

Corn and oats developed relative firmness after first sympathizing wheat price downturns. Cash houses were buyers of corn futures. There was much spreading with December corn being purchased against sales of May. Rye chiefly followed wheat.

Provisions averaged higher. Offerings of lard were meager and shorts were buyers.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 54,315,000 bushels, corn 4,873,000. Open interest in wheat was 112,952,000 bushels, and in corn 26,647,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 21.—Prices on the local board nominally followed the trend of Chicago with the final quotation 1¼c lower. Corn was nominally a fraction higher.

Winnipeg wheat opened unchanged to ⅝c lower.

Liverpool wheat opened ¼c lower and closed ⅞@1⅜c net off. The close was ⅞@1¼c net lower.

In the cash grain market Saturday soft wheat was ½@1c lower. Choice grain moved fairly well, but low grades were difficult to sell. Hard wheat was nominally 1c lower. Inquiry was good, especially for choice wheat. At the close No. 2 was figured about $1.18. Corn was 1c@1½c lower for the white variety. No. 2 yellow was held for 86½c but there were no bids. Demand for the white was fair and a clearance was made. Industries were the only buyers interested. Oats were unchanged. Supply was small. Demand for heavy weight cereal was good, but the low grades were hard to move. A fair amount was carried over. Elevators furnished the main outlet.

HEDGING AND REALIZING SEND COTTON LIST OFF

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The cotton trade appeared to have been pretty well prepared for the reported rejection of peace proposals by the Italian Cabinet today, but prices eased off under increased Southern hedging and week-end realizing.

December sold down to 10.51, or 10 points net lower, and the market closed barely steady at net declines of 6 to 11 points.

Hedging increased after the opening and prices worked off gradually, with December months selling about 24 to 28 points under the high levels of yesterday. Closing quotations were the lowest of the day.

Trade interests were again good buyers here during the morning, and there was some further buying for Bombay account. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 55,000 against 85,000 bales last year.

Spot, quiet; middling, 10.80c.

MEMPHIS SPOT COTTON.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 21.—Spot cotton had a steady tone; middling closed at 10:20c, compared with 10.35c yesterday. Sales amounted to 17,033 bales.

New Orleans Spot Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—Spot cotton closed steady 8 points down. Sales, 731; low middling, 10.00; middling, 10.75; good middling, 11.20. Receipts, 13,005; stock, 389,930.

WHEAT WEAKNESS ABROAD WEIGHS ON PRICES HERE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—Refusing to take Italy's "no" today as a final rejection of peace offers, the wheat market responded with a moderate downturn of prices.

Cautiousness in regard to possible surprise developments in Europe over Sunday ruled dealings, especially as trade drew to an end. A firm undertone in wheat values was evident, with rallies easily achieved, and the bulk of selling appearing to come from recent buyers who were in a position to realize profits.

Wheat in Chicago closed unsettled ⅝ @ 1¼ under yesterday's finish, Dec. 99⅛ @ ¼, corn ½ off to ⅜ up, Dec. 58¾ @ ⅞, oats at ¼ decline to ½ advance, and provisions varying from 5 cents setback to an equal gain.

From the outset, sharp attention of Chicago wheat traders was given to weakness of foreign markets. Liverpool wheat quotations in particular were noticed as showing a material decline, whereas an advance there had been looked for. Cables attributed this decline to profit-taking, but the immediate effect here was bearish, and did much to restrain any outburst of unusual buying enthusiasm.

A good deal of comment was heard that the action of Italy was only a beginning of negotiations, and that her stand could be regarded as yet but a preliminary one. Meanwhile, word of a pause in overseas demand for wheat shipments acted as something of a handicap for values. On the other hand, reports current left scant room for doubt as to seriousness of the foreign political situation. Furthermore, Argentine advices mentioned no substantial relief from drouth.

Corn and oats developed relative firmness after first sympathizing wheat price downturns. Cash houses were buyers of corn futures. There was much spreading, with December corn being purchased against sales of May. Rye chiefly followed wheat.

Provisions averaged higher. Offerings of lard were meager and shorts were buyers.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 54,315,000 bushels, corn 4,873,000. Open interest in wheat was 112,952,000 bushels, and in corn 26,647,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 21.—Prices on the local board nominally followed the trend of Chicago with the final quotation 1¼c lower. Corn was nominally a fraction higher.

TRADE TRENDS

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Progress in the farm equipment trade achieved constantly accelerated momentum with sales reaching a five-year peak, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., says. Estimates in the trade which were made at the beginning of the year have been exceeded. The survey states that in view of the rising trend of wheat and livestock prices, farm income estimates may be revised upward before the end of the year.

Railroads—The railroads are approaching the fall months of 1935 with clearly defined prospects of improvement, according to a survey by Poor's Publishing Co. This forecast is based on the prospect of further recovery in the heavy industries, on the favorable harvest outlook, and on the benefits to be derived from freight rate surcharges.

Sugar—During the first eight months of 1935, the distribution of raw sugar totaled 3,999,531 long tons, compared with 3,874,811 in the like period of 1934, an increase of 3.2 per cent, according to Lamborn & Co., sugar brokers. Cane sugar distribution totaled 3,167,370 tons against 2,834,193 tons in the first eight months of last year, an upturn of 11.7 per cent.

Wool—Consumption by woolen and worsted mills is running at the highest level in 17 years, according to the New York Wool Top Exchange. The underlying force which has lifted wool tops, both spots and futures, by about 7 cents a pound since the beginning of August has been the extraordinary demand for woolen goods. Conditions in the goods market continue highly favorable, the review says.

EXCHANGE MARKET IS QUIETER BUT NERVOUS

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—The foreign exchange market still reflected nervousness over the European-African situation today, although the abbreviated Saturday session was appreciably quieter than Friday's.

Operators went home for the half-day holiday before Italy's rejection of the Geneva peace plan was announced. Dealings were brisk, especially in continental demand for dollars for transfer of funds, but the turnover did not approximate Friday's, when holders rushed to cover currencies for shipment to America.

Dealers described transactions as more normal, which indicated the fact control was operated only sparingly to keep the franc steady.

Gold valued at nearly £9,000,000 is going to America within the next 10 days, as a result of the transfer of capital from Europe.

The Europa today took £1,500,000, while seven liners will carry £1,000,000 each.

In Paris the Italian lira fell slightly in unofficial trading on the foreign exchange market. The bourse was closed for its usual Saturday holiday.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Leading foreign exchanges displayed a much steadier tone today as a little more cheerful view of the European war situation appeared despite Rome's rejection of the League of Nations peace proposals. It was generally felt that a loophole had been left open for further negotiations.

In addition to a mildly hopeful attitude toward the Italo-Ethiopian controversy, the British pound was said to have been helped somewhat by trade demand. This unit showed a slight improvement in London at 4.91¾ to the dollar. In New York later sterling closed at $4.91¾, up ½ cent.

Although most of the gold currencies held their own, the guilder, at New York, slipped back .05 of a cent to 67.68 cents. Holland funds, however, were still above the point at which shipments of gold from Amsterdam could be made profitably.

At the same time gold funds continued to point toward America. A further $21,854,000 of the yellow metal was engaged for shipments here by New York bankers. Of the total, $9,539,000 was from England, $9,486,000 from France and $2,829,000 from Canada.

The controlled Italian lira was off .00½ of a cent at 8.13 cents. While the Paris market was closed as usual on Saturday, the franc at New York finished with a gain of .00⅛ of a cent at 6.58¾ cents. At this rate the dollar was at a premium of 70-100 of 1 per cent, compared with 72-100 Friday. A month ago the dollar was at a discount of 1-100 of 1 per cent.

ADVANCING METAL PRICES MARK TRADING OF WEEK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Further larger purchases of copper brought an additional advance of ½ cent to 9 cents per pound for electrolytic in the domestic market this week.

The tense European situation stimulated buying for export at advances of fully ¼ cent.

With domestic commitments thus far in September in excess of 80,000 tons, following purchases of 125,000 tons in August, consumers are said to have supplied needs well ahead and buying was reduced sharply at the advance but the undertone ruled firm with the approach of the export price to within a fraction of domestic quotations.

Lead and zinc prices were both marked up $3 per ton during the week in response to sustained consumer buying. In the lead market, this demand represented practically all branches of the trade and exceeded smelters' daily ore intake.

The advance in zinc preceded that in lead by several days. It was stimulated by what were described as unusually large sales. Increased operations of galvanizing plants as well as larger demand for zinc in other industrial lines were primarily responsible for the buying.

Antimony also rose ¼ cent largely because of tightness of the Chinese market. While importers were said to be showing increased interest in obtaining supplies, business was difficult in the absence of firm Chinese offers. Domestic buying, however, was mostly routine.

Domestic tin prices moved irregularly, but showed little net change for the week despite firmness abroad, owing to scarcity of prompt straits tin at London and reports of larger demands from the continent.

Steel prices were unchanged. Better demand for pig iron reflected threats of a coal strike.

LEAD, ZINC AND COPPER

Lead and zinc were nominally unchanged in St. Louis Saturday.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Copper steady; electrolytic spot and future 9.00; export 8.75. Other metals nominally unchanged.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The St. Joseph Lead Co. reports that there were no sales of pig lead from Southeast Missouri mines yesterday, quoting $4.35 per 100 pounds St. Louis.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Lead production in August totaled 34,856 tons, compared with 34,424 in July and 27,328 in August, 1934, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. Shipments were 38,195 tons in August, compared with 34,575 in July and 33,606 in August, 1934. Stocks of lead in the United States at the end of August totaled 227,583 short tons, compared with 230,915 at the end of July and 234,312 at the end of August last year.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Lead and zinc futures were dull. No sales were reported.

NEW YORK RUBBER MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Crude rubber futures opened quiet; 2 to 4 higher. Sept. unquoted; Oct., 11.52b; Dec., 11.72.

Crude rubber futures closed quiet, one to four lower: Sept. 11.43n, Oct. 11.48n, Dec. 11.66 @ 67. Smoked ribbed spot closed 11.48n.

STEADIER TONE MAIN BOND LIST FEATURE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The best that could be said of Saturday's bond market was that it displayed a steadier tone, with the subsidence of yesterday's somewhat panicky selling.

Traders and investors seemed to feel a little better about the European war situation, despite the rejection by the Mussolini Cabinet of the League of Nations peace proposals. The interpretation of Rome's "no" to Geneva was that it did not have an emphatic ring and that a loophole was left open for further negotiations.

Although some further weakness was observed in scattered foreign obligations, due largely to thinness of the marekt, recoveries were general among those issues that have recently been under pressure. Italian Government 7s rallied 3 points to 59½, Milan City 6½s were up 2 at 44½ and Rome 6½s gained 1¼ at 47¼. French 7s lost 2⅜ at 174⅛, but the 7½s were unchanged at 174. British bonds came back to around their Friday's closing levels.

The Associated Press averages of domestic industrials and rails were off .1 and .2 of a point, respectively, and that for the utilities was unchanged. The foreign composite edged up .1 of a point. Transfers of all bonds totaled $5,941,000, par value, against $5,176,000 last Saturday.

U. S. Government securities were quiet, but still somewhat recessionary. Declines ranged from 1-32d to 15-32ds of a point. The turnover in this department amounted to only about $1,510,000, compared with $1,980,000 on the previous Saturday.

LEADING CURB SHARES STEADY AT WEEK END

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Leading Curb shares steadied at week end following the selling disturbance of the two preceding sessions. Activity was restricted, transfers approximating 118,000 shares compared with 126,000 a week ago.

Aluminum Company of America extended its recent firm tendencies, advancing some 3 points to 67. Gulf Oil was up a point at 60, while issues holding to level ground included American Gas & Electric at 32¾, International Petroleum at 33¾, Electric Bond & Share at 11 and Distillers Corp.-Seagrams at 24⅛. A. O. Smith dipped 2 points to 46.

Chicago Stock Market

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—Total stock sales today on the Chicago Stock Exchange amounted to 18,000 shares, compared with 16,000 corresponding day last year. Total stock sales for the week amounted to 258,000 shares, compared with 102,000 corresponding week last year.

HOG MARKET FIRM, CATTLE, LAMBS OFF

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Sept. 21.—(U. S. Dept. of Agriculture).

Porker values advanced sharply on Monday, the top reaching $12.05, broke at midweek but later recovered to finish mostly steady, spots 10c higher than the close of last week. Packing sows were an exception and finished 25c lower. Supplies totaled around 26,600 compared with 26,899 last week and 57,964 similar week last year. Saturday supplies were too scanty and not sufficiently representative to establish quotations although some sales looked unevenly higher. A load and a bunch of choice medium weights reached $12, some good kinds going at $11.75. On Friday, most 170 to 250-lb. weights cashed at $11.70@11.85, a few at $11.90, heavier kinds being too scarce to quote. Good and choice 140 to 160-lb. averages sold that day at $11.25@11.75 and 100 to 130-lb. pigs $10@11, lightweight plain pigs down to $8.50. Packing sows moved mainly at $9.40@10, a few smooth lightweights higher.

Cattle: 1800; calves 400; compared with close last week: Natives and Western steers, cow stuff and bulls 25c lower; mixed yearlings and heifers 25 to 50c lower; vealers steady; stock cattle 25c lower; top for the week 1236-lb. steers $12; 1095-lb. yearlings $11.50; Kansas grass steers $7.65; 788-lb. mixed yearlings $9.75; 615-lb. heifers $9.40; beef cows $6.50; sausage bulls $5.50; vealers $9.75; stock steers $7.75; bulk for week; Native steers $8@10.50; Western grass steers $6@7.15; mixed yearlings and heifers $5@8.50; beef cows $4.25@5.25; cutters and low cutters $3@3.75; stocker and feeder steers $4.85@7; closing top on choice bulls $5.25; on vealers $9.75.

Sheep: 1500; compared with week ago: Lambs 25c to mostly 50c lower; sheep steady; top lambs late and for week $9.75; bulk for week $8.50@9.25; late bulk $9@9.50; buck lambs $1 less; throwouts $6@7; few yearlings $6.25@7.25; fat ewes $2.50@3.50.

Horses and Mules.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Sept. 21.—A commission run of 500 horses and 300 mules was disposed of during the past week and prices were well maintained on desirable offerings. Some of the kinds not wanted, however, sagged.

There were too many mules with strong age here and this class dragged. All young stock, however, received good support and sold at satisfactory rates. Dealers say it is too early for good results on smooth mouthed mules unless they have a lot of quality and are possessed with good square mouths.

Horses maintained a steady level except for a few heavy work animals which were not active. Thick made young mares, broke or halter broke, good fillies and big mares with strong colts sold as well as at any time recently.

*NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft, $120@150; medium to good draft, $90@110; good to choice chunks, $95@125; smooth-mouthed chunks, $70@90; young farm mares, $90@115; Southern mares, $50@85; small cheap horses, $30@50.

*MULE QUOTATIONS.

Farm mules, 15.2 to 16 hands, $110@140; colt mules, good size and bone, $80@125; colt mules, small, $50@75; draft mules, $125@150; mine mules, 15.3 to 16 hands, $120@140; mine mules, 14 to 15 hands, $75@100; choice cotton mules, 15.1 to 16 hands, $135@160; choice cotton mules, 14.2 to 15 hands, $110@125; small green mules over 3 years old, $40@70.

*Quotations are for average animals and do not cover those of outstanding quality or the very cheapest grade.

BUREAU TO REGULATE EXPORTS OF ARMS

J. C. Green Made Chief of Division Created Under Neutrality Act.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Establishment of an office of arms and munitions control to carry out provisions of the recently enacted neutrality legislation and supervise Federal control of the munitions traffic was announced today by the State Department.

Secretary of State Hull said the office would be under the direction of R. Walton Moore, Assistant Secretary, with Joseph C. Green as chief, and Charles W. Yost as assistant chief.

The official announcement listed the following duties for the division:

Registration of manufacturers, exporters and importers of articles proclaimed by the President to be arms, ammunition and implements of war, the export or import of which without a license would be in violation of any law of the United States.

Issuance of licenses for the exportation or importation of arms, ammunition and implements of war under such regulations as may be promulgated by the Secretary of State.

Such supervision of international traffic in arms, ammunition and implements of war as falls within the jurisdiction of the Secretary of State under treaties and statutes.

Embargoes Now Effective.

Green, the State Department's munitions expert, has handled most of the questions involved over a period of years, and organization of the new division will concentrate all of the questions under his direction.

At present embargoes on munitions shipments are in force with respect to China, Nicaragua, Cuba, Honduras, Paraguay and Bolivia, and the new division will supervise the continuance of regulations concerning those countries.

The embargo against shipments to China has been in effect since March 4, 1922.

Embargoes against arms shipments to Latin American countries, under laws which permit an embargo against arms shipments to any nations on this hemisphere where civil strife prevails have been in effect as follows: Nicaragua, since Sept. 15, 1926; Cuba, since June 29, 1934; Honduras, since March 22, 1924, and to Paraguay and Bolivia since last year when efforts were made to halt the Chaco War.

Guarding Military Secrets.

The new division will also supervise provisions of the espionage act of June 15, 1917, under which the export of arms and munitions may be prohibited if they are designated by the Secretaries of War or Navy as military secrets.

State Department officials emphasized in making the announcement that it had no direct bearing on the threatening European situation, since it would have been necessary in order to carry out provisions of the neutrality law and the National Munitions Control Board, set up under that act.

The act specified that administration would be vested in the State Department.

RISE IN INCOME TAX RECEIPTS

$226,352,401 Collected in First 20 Days of September.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Income tax collections of $226,352,401 were reported by the Treasury today for the first 20 days of September. This compares with $160,359,334 collected in the like 1934 period. Income tax receipts of $1,188,000,000 have been estimated for the 1936 fiscal year ending next June 30.

The Treasury's latest condition statement, for September 19, showed income tax payments of $252,143,000 thus far in the fiscal year. This did not include telegraphic reports on which the announcement of September collections was based. Treasury estimates on income tax receipts are expected to be revised this week, when a supplementary budget giving an up-to-the-minute account of the Government's financial condition, is made public.

DETROIT AGAIN WINS AMERICAN PENNANT

Details of Detroit's double victory over the Browns yesterday, 6-2 and 2-0, on Page 3.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Sept. 21.—The Detroit Tigers today won their second consecutive American League pennant by sweeping a doubleheader with St. Louis. The Bengals, with Elden Auker in the box, took the second game, 2 to 0, after Tommy Bridges had trimmed the Browns, 6-2, in the opener.

Even should Detroit lose all of its remaining seven games, the second place New York Yankees, who beat Boston today, could not overhaul them by sweeping their eight remaining contests. Should that outcome eventuate the teams would stand:

Detroit—Won, 92; lost, 59.

New York—Won, 91; lost, 59.

Detroit, under the leadership of Manager Mickey Cochrane, made an uphill fight for its second straight junior major league title. In April, hitting the skids in a bad losing streak, the Bengals dropped into the league cellar. The pitching which Cochrane had counted upon strongly was weak and the team's batting and fielding were far from championship caliber.

Cochrane kept driving his club, often playing when leg injuries would have kept many players on the bench. In June the pitching began to improve under Mickey's handling and in July Detroit caught, then passed the New York club. Once ahead of the Ruppertmen, Detroit made the race a breeze, at one time holding a lead of 10 games.

LUCKITE VICTOR IN FOXCATCHER 'CHASE

By the Associated Press.

FAIR HILL, Md., Sept. 21.—J. W. Y. Martin's Luckite outclassed a choice field of 14 today to gain a brilliant four-length victory in the second annual running of the Foxcatcher National Cup steeplechase before 15,000 spectators at the estate of William duPont Jr., here.

Luckite, given a good ride by S. H. Hirst, defeated Mrs. T. H. Somerville's Oliver C., S. Banks up. Louis D'Or, owned by F. Ambrose Clark and ridden by F. Bellhouse, international junior steeplechaser, was third.

The time in the Foxcatcher Cup steeplechase, about three miles over brush and 22 difficult jumps, was six minutes, 16 seconds, 18 seconds better than last year. Nine horses finished out of the 14 starters.

The Lewisville flat race for three-year-olds and upward, about seven furlongs over turf: Won by Sable Muff, owned by Mrs. T. H. Somerville and ridden by C. K. Bassett; second, Lassitude, owned by Mrs. Davis Dallas and ridden by S. J. Harrison; third, Sir Gareth, owned by Mrs. Verne Z. Reed Jr.

Len Koenecke Buried.

By the Associated Press.

ADAMS, Wis., Sept. 21. — The body of Leonard Koenecke, outfielder on the Brooklyn Dodgers' baseball team who was killed in a fight aboard an airplane near Toronto several days ago, was buried here today. Funeral services were conducted in the Norwegian Lutheran Church. Among the floral offerings were pieces sent by the Brooklyn and Nw York teams of the National League.

Occidental Eleven Wins.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 21.—Occidental College defeated the University of Mexico, 26 to 7, in an international football game today. Occidental showed too much power and deception for the visitors from Mexico, but the losers played a strong defensive game.

Cochrane Predicts Victory for Tigers In World Series

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Sept. 21.

A CROWD police estimated at 100,000 roared approval today as Manager Mickey Cochrane predicted, through loudspeakers in downtown Detroit, that his Detroit Tigers "will be the next world champions."

Cochrane spoke briefly at the unfurling of a mammoth victory banner on a department store. With him was Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball, here for a banquet honoring Frank J. Navin and Walter O. Briggs, co-owners of the Detroit club.

Traffic was blocked in most of the downtown section by the huge throng.

Wray's Column

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.

JOE LOUIS may hold the spotlight for the present, but the most interesting figure to many of us, who want to know the whys and wherefores of the young heavyweight's meteoric rise to fame, is named Jack Blackburn.

Jack is a 53-year-old former fighter, a Negro, and one of the wisest men that ever drew on a glove. It may be just as well to know, in the beginning, that Blackburn, who never attained even the official welterweight limit of that day—142 pounds ringside—was one of the greatest fighters of the period. He fought all the men of his weight and beat them. He had to go out of his poundage to fight men like Sam Langford, Larry Temple and Young Peter Jackson. Look through his record and you'll be surprised to find that none of these men beat him.

Blackburn came up on a day when boxers knew how to box and one of the reasons why he thinks Baer hasn't got a chance to beat Louis is that Joe does know the principles of defense and Baer does not.

Jack Blackburn Says:

"LOTTA people think that I'm the man that taught Joe how to box. That's wrong," commented Blackburn today. "I didn't know nothing about Joe until June, 1934. 'Bout that time Mr. Roxborough wrote me and ast me if I was interested and told me that Joe needed a lot of straightenin' up before he could expect to fight professional.

"You know me—I like a fighter and Joe's record looked like he might be one. I hooked on. Well Joe, he was just out of the amateurs, he had some rough spots. I looked him over. And could that boy hit. That was point number one. Then I watched him fight. No funny stuff with Joe. He just waded in and did it. He could hit. Still, he wasn't ready. But I was glad I took the job. Tain't every day you get a chance to handle a boy that even looks like a champ.

"You know that Joe turned out to be the doggoned easiest fellow to handle. He don't never argue with you. If you tell him, it's so, with Joe. Maybe Joe thinks I oughtta know. Anyway, it was easy.

Watch Him Box.

"YOU watch Joe box. You'll find him fighting clean and breaking clean. Don't see many boxers doing that today, do you? I always tell boys that you can get best results by fighting clean unless the other fellow starts to fight foul. In that case Joe can take care of himself, too. But that isn't the way to fight."

Jack showed all of $500 worth of gold teeth as he smiled to back up his assertion.

"You tell me that you expect Louis to win within six or seven rounds," we said to Blackburn. "Of course you must have reasons for this belief. What are they?"

"Youth, a better punch and a better courage," was the substance of Jack's comeback. "Baer has lost the youthful feeling that belongs only to a boy who is striving to climb. Max is on the downhill trying to scramble back. It's different with Joe. And Max, he ain't sitting pretty a bit. All the worry is on him. If Joe's beaten, what does it matter—they'll just say that he'll be along next season. And we know Max

PITTSBURGH BEATEN, 4-3, IN CHICAGO'S 17TH IN ROW

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21. — For 10 thrill-packed minutes the sensational Chicago Cubs' winning streak hung by a thread today but the Pride of the Ozarks, Lonnie, Warneke, came to the rescue to weave it into the sexenteenth straight victory by stopping the Pittsburgh Pirates and giving the men of Grimm a 4 to 3 conquest.

Stopped dead in their tracks for eight innings under the spell of Roy Henshaw's southpaw slants, which had limited them to one run and only four scattered hits, the Pirates staged a ninth-inning uprising that chased the dimunitive Cub Left-hander and forced Warneke to give one o fthe most brilliant relief exhibitions in baseball to halt their drive.

Renowned as "Little Poison" to Pirate hitters because of his complete mastery over them in six out of seven games this season, Henshaw seemed a certain winner until the near fatal ninth.

Four Hits, None Out.

None of the 38,624 spectators stirred much when Woody Jensen opened with a hit that Billy Herman couldn't quite handle, but the explosion was quick and almost disastrous. Dan Hafey singled over second and Lloyd Waner dropped another high single down the first base line, scoring Jansen and sending Hafey to third. Arky Vaughan, hitless all day, then responded by hitting deep to Herman, landing safe at first and scoring Hafey when Phil Cavarretta failed to get back to first. It was the fourth successive hit and two runs were in and still nobody out. The score was 4 to 3.

It was then that Warneke came to the rescue as the tense crowd, joyous as the Cubs had belted the revenge-bent Guy Bush for four runs and eight hits in seven innings, groaned. But Warneke had just what it took.

Floyd Young, first batter to face the tall Arkansan, topped a vicious swing. The ball rolled weakly to Warneke and he whirled around with a perfect throw to force Waner at third for the first out.

Harry Lavagetto was next, and the prospects were dark as it was Lavagetto who had cracked out three of the four hits off the tiny Henshaw in eight innings. But the law of averages and a sweeping curve forced him to roll to Bill Jurges, who threw to Herman to force Young at second. It was a dead set-up for a double play, but Herman pulled Cavarretta off the bag with a high threw and Lavagetto was safe, prolonging the suspense. Gus Suhr walked, filling the bases and Red Lucas, "Big Poison" for years to Cub pitchers, batted for Catcher Tom Padden. As the crowd stood in a frenzy of excitement, Warneke worked the count on Lucas to 3 and 2 and then forced him to tap weakly to Herman, who made an easy put-out at first, ending the rally and a mas-

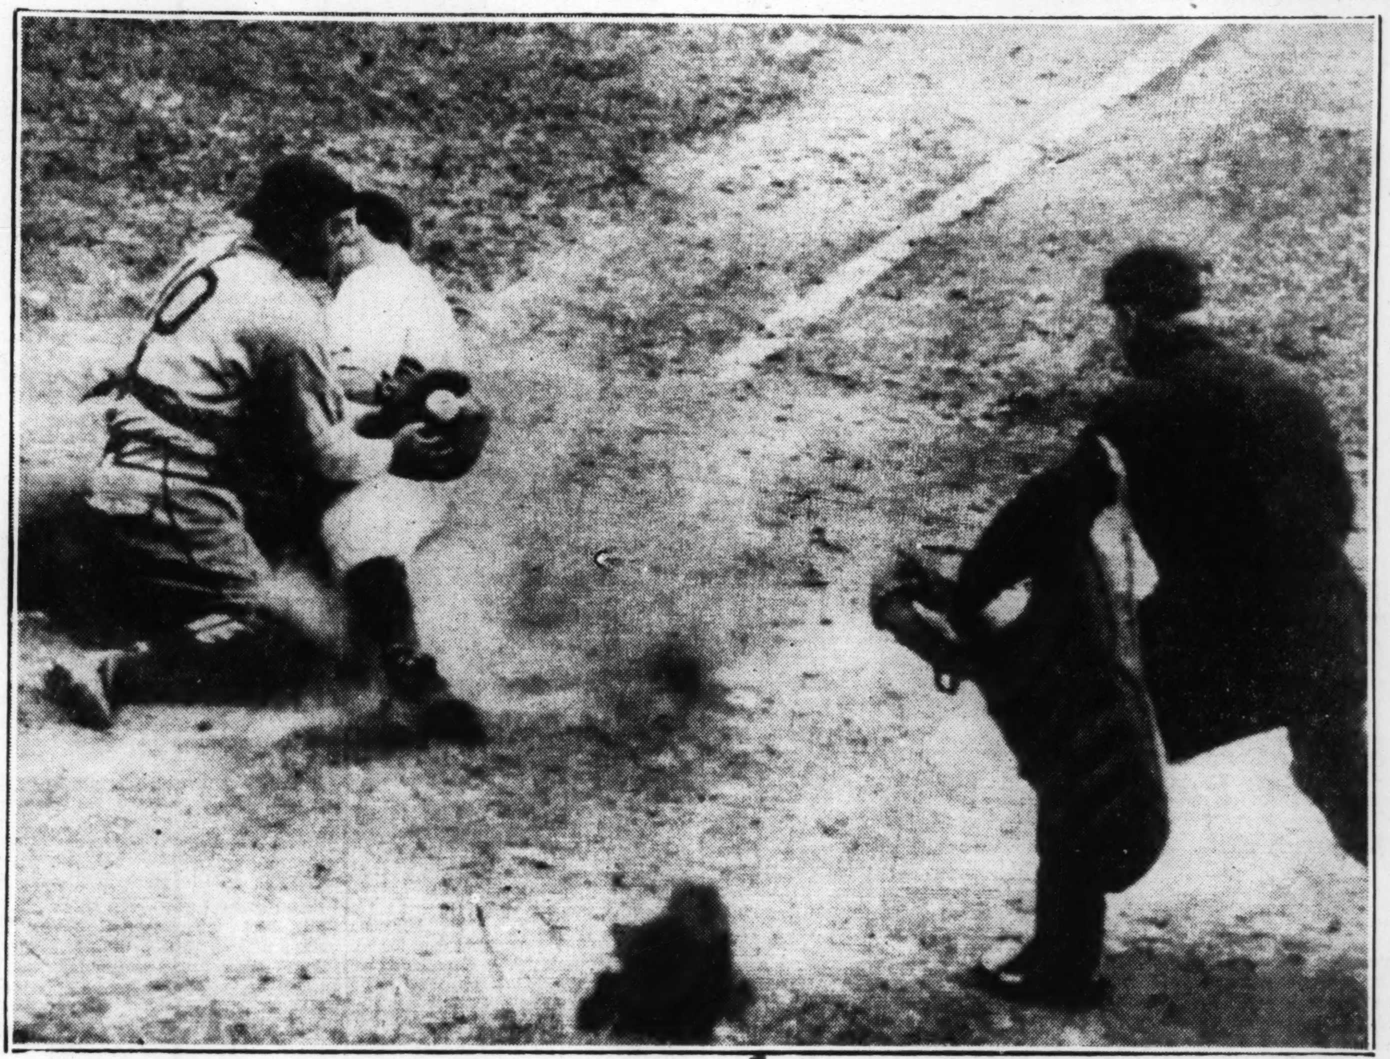
PENNANT-WINNING TALLY: —Fox Crosses Plate With Deciding Run



—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Pete Fox, Detroit outfielder, is shown scoring the marker that gave the Tigers their second successive American League pennant, in the third inning of the second game of yesterday's doubleheader, in which Mickey Cochrane's men defeated the Browns twice. Fox got on base when he hit a grounder on which Pitcher Auker was forced at second, stole second and raced home on Gerald Walker's single. Catcher Rollie Hemsley of the Browns and Umpire Louis Kolls are shown in the photograph.

Bill Burke Wins Cascades Open Golf Tourney

By the Associated Press.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Sept. 21.—Bill Burke of Cleveland, today won the $2500 Cascades Open Golf Tournament with a closing 73 and a four-round total of 291 as Sam Snead, Hot Springs pro and leader for three rounds, blew up and took an 80 on the final round.

Johnny Revolta of Milwaukee, was second with 294. He also had a finishing round of 73. Snead, whose total was 295, was tied for third with Bobby Cruickshank of Richmond. Cruickshank had a 74 on the last round.

MARE PACES FASTEST THREE HEATS IN THE HISTORY OF RACING

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 21. — Calumet Evelyn, flashing black mare owned by McConville Brothers of Ogdensburg, N. Y., in winning every heat of the Almahurst free-for-all pace in today's opening of the last Grand Circuit meeting of the season, lowered the world's record for four-year-old pacers and paced the fastest three heats ever paced by a horse of any age.

Driven by Vic Fleming, Calumet Evelyn won the heats in 1:59¼; 1:59¼ and 2:00¾. J. E. Vonian was the main contender.

GREENTREE FOUR WINS U. S. OPEN POLO TITLE, 7-6

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Greentree, led by Tommy Hitchcock, today won the national open polo championship for the first time as it rode to an exciting overtime 7-6 victory over Aurora before a shouting crowd of 25,000 on Meadow Brook Club's international field.

The winning goal was scored by little George H. (Pete) Bostwick after the gong had already sounded ending the first 7½-minute overtime chukker and climaxed a period of thrilling play which had the crowd on its feet most of the time.

Over-Eagerness Hurts.

Each team had appeared to have the winning score within its grasp in the overtime period only to miss or override the ball through over-eagerness but there was no stopping the final winning drive which Bostwick and Gerald Balding, the transplanted Briton engineered.

The whole game was played at a fast pace and was as close as the score. Aurora was away to an early lead as Jimmy Mills, Knox and then Mills again scored in the first and second periods but at that point Hitchcock rallied his team and they tied the score in the third.

Aurora went ahead again in the same period when Post banged through a beautiful angled drive from 40 yards out but Greentree soon tied it up again to send the teams off the field at half-time deadlocked 4-4.

With Hitchcock and Balding hitting up tremendous drives to Bostwick, Greentree rode out for two goals and a 6-4 lead in the fifth and sixth periods but Post then scored on a three hit run and Ebby Gerry drove through the tying score near the end of the eighth period in a scramble in the goal mouth, Knox's drive having hit a post and dropped in front of it.

Gerry Is Hero.

Gerry was the hero in the losing cause. Riding against Hitchcock he constantly harassed the former 10-goal star, held Tommy scoreless and tallied once himself.

It was the first national open title for Greentree since the championships first were played in 1904. Aurora was seeking its second victory, it having won in 1933 when Elmer J. Boeseke, who was raised to 10 goals that year, played at No. 3 in place of Gerry. The other three players from the 1933 team were the same as today.

Templeton, eliminated by Greentree last Sunday 10-9, won the title last year and was favored to repeat until it ran against Hitchcock and his mates.

MISS STAMMERS BEATS MRS. VAN RYN

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 21.—Miss Katherine Stammers, England's leading feminine player, advanced to the semi-finals of the Pacific Southwest Tennis Tournament today, when she easily defeated Mrs. John Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, 6-4, 6-2.

The British Wightman Cup player earned the right to meet Miss Carolin Babcock, Los Angeles, in the semi-final round.

PAUL DEAN, HEUSSER FAIL IN 9-7 SWATFEST

By J. Roy Stockton

Pennant prospects of the Cardinals were impaired materially yesterday afternoon when a fighting Redbird machine struggled desperately to overcome the handicap of impotent pitching, but lost the first game of a series of three to the Cincinnati Reds, 9 to 7.

The defeat increased the astounding Cubs' first-place margin to three and a half games, the world champions now having suffered two extra defeats and are five behind Chicago in the victory column.

Paul Dean, making his fourth appearance in the last six games, plainly showed the effect of over work. His fast ball lacked its usual fire and his curve was deceptive not at all.

The Reds pounded him for 11 hits and six runs in seven innings and he escaped his twelfth defeat of the season only because of a courageous Cardinal rally that tied the score in the eighth inning and made Ed. Heusser, who worked the ninth, the losing hurler.

Farm Products Beat Cards.

Heusser, the Wild Elk of the Wasatch, didn't have any horns to scare the Redlegs. Ival Goodman greeted him with a single in the ninth and Lew Riggs, a product of the Cardinal farm system, delivered the blow that sank the good ship Cardinal, a triple that drove in two runs in the ninth frame.

Riggs was not the only former Redbird who figured in the downfall of the world champions. Paul Derringer, who helped the Cardinals to win pennants in 1930 and 1931, and then was traded to Cincinnati in the deal that brought Leo Durocher to St. Louis, entered the game as a relief pitcher in the eighth and emerged with his twenty-first victory of the season.

Ernest Lombardi and Babe Herman, two strong-armed, wild-swinging gentlemen, played a prominent part in the Cincinnati victory. Lombardi drove two runs over the plate with a homer and a long fly and Herman hit two four-baggers to the pavilion roof, each with a comrade on base. The Babe's first four-bagger tied the score in the fifth after the Cardinals had rallied in the third to give Paul a two-run advantage and in the seventh the Babe's second clout to the pavilion roof broke the 3-3 tie that he had created.

"Summer's Nearly Over."

The Cardinals' situation in the pennant race is approaching the desperate. If they win the remaining games with the Reds and two with the Pirates and the Cubs are victorious tomorrow, the Cubs could clinch the league championship in the five-game series that starts Wednesday, by winning only two of the five.

Frankie Frisch and his men fought valiantly before they bowed to the Redlegs. The leader of the Redbirds showed once more his qualities of a "money" player. He hit four straight singles, drove in two runs and scored two. Pepper Martin with two doubles and Virgil Davis and Leo Durocher, each with one two-bagger, also would be heroes today if the game had been made a victory.

Louis in Mediocre Final Workout; Baer Lonely in Belief He Will Win

Detroit Negro Amazes 3000 Fans by Poor Showing as He Finishes Training.

Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., Sept. 21.—Adding another puzzling complication to the much talked of problem "Can Joe Louis beat Max Baer?" the youthful Negro sensation of the boxing world, almost stupefied an admiring throng of 3000 or more spectators here today, by displaying mediocre form against three sparring partners.

Louis was supposed to be taking his last serious workout and the clans gathered from far and near to see an exceptional display of speed and power.

Whether Joe decided to "cross" the spectators, or whether his sparring partners had an unusually successful afternoon, we don't pretend to say. But the facts are that Joe made an indifferent showing against his spar mates, the com-

Louis' Camp Is Getting Jittery, Hoffman Thinks

By the Associated Press.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Sept. 21.

ANCIL HOFFMAN, Max Baer's manager, thinks the Joe Louis camp must be getting "jittery" and said so today after hearing that John Roxborough, one of the Negro's pilots, would ask official action against the use of "artificial stimulants" in Baer's corner.

"No one ever broached that subject before," said Hoffman. "What are they getting jittery about?

"We have spirits of ammonia in Baer's corner for use in emergencies. No commission in the world can prevent me from carrying such a restorative.

"Before the Carnera fight I carried sherry wine into the corner. Baer wouldn't touch it. I drank it as part of the celebration in his dressing room afward."

Max Stresses Financial Side of Bout Rather Than 'White Race Supremacy' Angle.

By W. J. McGoogan

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Sept. 21.—Max Baer is prepared, physically, to wage the battle of his life against Joe Louis, Detroit Negro, in the Yankee Stadium Tuesday night.

He realizes what the bout means to him, financially, and that is his chief concern. He isn't interested, if he thinks about it at all, in the "supremacy of the White race" angle.

Baer has put in seven hard weeks of training and he is at the top as to condition. He weighs about 210 pounds and there is not an ounce of superfluous flesh on him. His hands have improved, if there was anything really wrong with them, by the exercise he has taken here.

LOUIS IN MEDIOCRE FINAL WORKOUT; BAER SURE HE'LL WIN

DETROIT NEGRO ENDS TRAINING WITH VERY POOR SHOWING IN RING

ments of spectators leaving the arena, were far from complimentary.

Joe boxed six rounds, two each with Leonard Dixon, a Negro heavyweight, weighing 216 pounds, Paul Cavalier, a white heavyweight of considerable skill, and Bob Moody, a Negro light heavyweight.

The arena at Pompton Lakes was packed to its capacity. Perhaps 2000 persons were present. And when the display of Joe's talents was completed there were very few rousing cheers. The fact is Joe left a rather unfavorable impression on the public.

Perhaps this was due to too much praise of Joe's "murderous punches." But as a matter of record, each of his sparring mates landed frequently on Joe, and there were old timers at the ringside who declared that it will be fatal to Louis if Max Baer, with all his punching power, is left such openings as Louis left today.

Leonard Dixon, a lanky Negro heavyweight of considerable skill, was Louis' first opponent of the afternoon. During the first round Dixon, walking away from Louis, managed to make a fair showing. Louis blocked a lot of Dixon's punches in mid-air with his gloves like a real old-time defensive boxer. But, becoming careless, he also had to take some slaps to the head and body which good judges of boxing at ringside thought should never have been landed.

Paul Cavalier, a white heavyweight, followed and he more than gave Louis a workout. He stepped into Joe and used his left with great success. He had Louis' admirers shaking their heads as though they were not at all pleased with the display.

Bill Moody, a fast Negro light heavyweight, wound up the exhibition with two rounds and, although he was tired at the finish, he managed to make Louis miss some of his left leads and especially his attempts at right uppercuts.

Little to Enthuse Followers.

From the standpoint of Louis' admirers, the final hard work of Louis certainly revealed little to enthuse backers of Louis at odds of 1 to 2. When questioned, his camp associates remarked that there wasn't any real reason for Louis to cut loose, since Joe knew all about his sparring mates and didn't want to hurt any of them in any case.

To this writer it appeared as though Joe really were not extending himself. But, since such assumptions cannot be of real record, it will have to be stated that Louis' final workout was not at all pleasing to the boys who have bet their money on him.

"Pretty lousy workout", remarked Joe Jacobs, manager of former champion Max Schmeling, as he left the ringside. "Either he didn't let go or he hasn't got it. And I'm picking the Negro to beat Baer. What's the laugh? Well, I think you'll have to forget this final workout and remember what Joe has done in the ring. Very few fighters cut loose with everything they have, even when it's advertised as their last real tryout.

"Regardless of Louis' showing today I still don't see what Baer has got that will beat this fast, clever boxer, who can also hit hard with both hands."

Louis will display his wares today but, according to camp officials, he will not extend himself. Trainer Jack Blackburn and Manager John Roxborough both believe that Louis needs not boxing, but relaxation to bring him into perfect shape for his battle with Baer next Tuesday night.

Waves of potential ringsiders swept over Louis' camp today. As early as 9 o'clock this morning autos, bearing curious fans began to arrive at Joe's quarters. And shake hands with him.

When this writer saw Joe at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, he was playing pool with one of his camp companions and did a good job of it, banking the final shot to clinch his victory.

"Are you getting nervous about the fight, Joe?" a newspaper friend queried. Joe pocketed a ball and said, "Nervous; what about? One fight's just like another, ain't it?"

Joe meant that it was a question of outsmarting and outhitting the other fellow. But there were plenty of fight experts at Pompton Lake today who were seriously thinking of modifying their hitherto unqualified support of Louis, after his workout.

Joe Not Pressing.

It's hard to pass an opinion on a fighter who, after all, is not worrying about whether he flattens sparring partners. To this writer it appeared that against all three opponents Louis was not pressing or trying to do his best. If this impression is wrong and Louis was really leveling against his spar-mates, it will be just too bad for Joe when he meets Max. The Californian is really tough, when in shape, and no phony punch or half-hearted fighting is going to stop Max, who has his entire future at stake on the result, as well as his pride.

Reports from the ticket office of the big show indicate a million dollar gate, although there are still skeptics who contend that the big advance sale doesn't necessarily mean money in the box office. Reservations sent out to distant points are counted as cash. Until this comes in there can be no certainty as to the exactness of the pre-sale figures.

It does seem reasonably certain, however, that there will be almost a sell-out of the 80,000 available seats and this will mean a return to the seven figure receipts for the first time since the Dempsey-Tunney fight in Chicago.

One of the visitors at ringside yesterday was Jack Johnson, wearing his cane and French beret as usual. Jack, whose main job is now selling whiskey wholesale, declined to put himself on record about the fight.

"I guessed wrong when I told you that Carnera would beat Louis," he explained. "And I still can't see how a youngster can beat an experienced fighter, but he done it once and may be he'll do it again I'm not predicting but I will say Joe is a better fighter than I first thought he was."

Don't let Louis' showing against his spar-mates today affect your judgment too greatly. Even wnen he was ambling around the ring some of the experts who had followed his history since his arrival at training camp remarked that he was "savin'" his opponents and "not cutting loose."

A Bad Impression.

On the other hand, many expert followers of fights were very unfavorably impressed by Joe's laziness, particularly Joe Jacobs.

"Joe ought'ta look better than that," said Jacobs, as he jotted down notes for the newspapers to which he is selling his stories. "Still—," and as with all observers, he condoned Joe's showing. "But if Max Baer is real tough, and Louis boxes like he did today, I can't say that the bet I now have on Joe is any too safe," Jacobs admitted.

NAGURSKI IS INJURED, OUT OF BEARS' LINEUP FOR GREEN BAY GAME

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—The Chicago Bears will open their National Professional Football League schedule against the Packers at Green Bay tomorrow, minus their star fullback, Bronko Nagurski.

Nagurski has not yet recovered from a hip injury suffered several weeks ago in training for the all-star game at Chicago. Jack Manders, ace place-kicker, will replace Nagurski in the starting lineup.

EAST ST. LOUIS WINS FROM ROUGH RIDERS ON EAST SIDE GRIDIRON

Although the East St. Louis High eleven eked out a 6-0 decision over Roosevelt's Rough Riders, yesterday afternoon at the Parsons Field, in East St. Louis, neither team showed unusual qualities and the victors had to rely on the excellent kicking of Eddie Posage to keep Roosevelt from scoring. The only touchdown came in the first quarter on a pass. From that point on play hinged in mid-field.

Captain Bobby Stephens proved the mainstay of the victors offense. Stephens tossed the eight-yard pass to Johnny Vallina in the opening quarter that gave the victors the advantage. The touchdown came after Roosevelt's kicker got off a bad punt that went only 15 yards and then, through the plunging of Stephens, East St. Louis advanced the ball into scoring position.

In another game on the East Side, Wood River defeated Jerseyville, 12 to 0. Wood River outplayed its opponents throughout, totaling 10 first downs to Jerseyville's three. The two touchdowns came in the first half. A 35-yard pass, Hudson to Premas, netted them the first in the opening quarter and another pass, Hudson to Eberhardt, in the second quarter, gave them their second.

Joe Fills the Bill.

WE ASKED Blackburn, who flourished in a day when boxing, especially defense, enjoyed some favor among the elite, if Joe Louis really is a boxer in a defensive way?

"Joe," replied Blackburn, "is one of the few fighters of today who knows anything about the science of boxing. I'm not saying I taught him all of it. He just knew it naturally. But I did polish up his defense a bit and I think the fighters throughout the country today would be better off if they studied how to stop punches instead of devoting all their time to throwing them.

"Sure, you can't win a boxing match without hitting the other fellow. But you can lose it by the other fellow hitting you It's a good, reasonable argument, therefore, that 50 per cent of the fight game consists of keeping from getting hit.

"You watch Joe box—bet you'll say you haven't seen a boxer in years who can pick off the enemy's glove in midair as Joe can. He's just a natural, when it comes to guarding, parrying and blocking. Of course a lot of these everyday fighters of these times wouldn't know what I mean. But Joe does. If he wants to just defend himself they ain't nobody goin' to hit him. And you don't have to take that from me—just watch him.

"You know a lot of people are doubting Joe because they say he has never been hit hard and they don't know what'll happen to him when Max Baer does this and that. But I know what Joe'll do. It it happens when he can get 10 seconds to recover, they're never going to know he was hurt.

"Joe was fighting a fellow named Wiater, who was tough. In the fourth round he threw a wild swing and it landed on Joe's chin. The birdies began calling Joe. He hung on to the ropes. Then the bell rang. He came back to the corner. His eyes turned up. He looked at the ceiling. I says to him, 'Joe, don't look up above. It won't do you no good. you look at me.' And he did.

"That boy was bad then. But I shook him together and he went back into the ring and won the fight. I ain't taken credit for any masterminding stuff. But you know that a friendly voice in your corner sounds wonderful when you begin to thing that it's easier to quit than it is to fight.

"Don't you never worry about this Joe Louis. For the last year I know that baby has been headin' for the top. He ain't goin' to lose, so don't look for no excuses."

Strafaci Golf Victor.

By the Associated Press.

HERSHEY, Pa., Sept. 21.—The first Pennsylvania public links golf championship went out of the State today. Frank Strafaci, the Brooklyn, N. Y., youngster and national champion, captured the inaugural of the tournament over the Hershey Park course by firing a 72-hole aggregate of 290, six over par, finishing out in front of his nearest rival by 14 strokes. Trailing him was Harry Varelle of Philadelphia, whose 72 on this afternoon's final round gave him a 304 total. Carl F. Kauffman, Pittsburgh, national champion in 1927, '28 and '29, was third with 306.

MAX APPARENTLY IN GREAT SHAPE BUT HIS BOXING LOOKS "FUTILE"

But there the optimistic part ends. His mental condition is not a pleasant thing to contemplate and his boxing technique, never very good, has all vanished whether through soft living for several years or because the little love he had for the game has disappeared, cannot be said.

He apparently has been thinking and dreaming of meeting Louis for many weeks and most of his dreams have been nightmares. He knows that a victory means perhaps an additional half million dollars profit for him and that defeat means oblivion.

His state of mind is indicated when he meets people that he has not seen for some time. He is pathetically eager for their opinion of him.

"How do I look? What do you think will happen Tuesday? Don't you think my breathing is better? (And he'll inhale and exhale to show his lung capacity). Don't you think I'm in better condition than ever before? What do you think will happen if I hit him Tuesday? And what will happen if he hits me?"

Such are the questions he propounded to a group of newspapermen visiting his camp for the first time. And one of them was from California, Baer's home, who had picked Louis to win.

For him, Max had nothing but scorn although the writer was a man he had known since he (Max) had his first fight.

"What did you pick Louis to beat me for?" he demanded belligerently.

"Because I think he will, Max" was the reply, "Not that the wish is father to the thought."

"You know I gotta win this fight," Baer said desperately, "Why it means a half million dollars to me. I'll get back into the movies, maybe, I'll be on the radio. I'll be on top. Think what that means! And I will win! Why I'll run him right out of the ring and down the street!"

That last declaration was made with the air of one whistling his way past a grave-yard and as he looked around for the accustomed confirmatory pats on the backs, verbally and physically, he was met with a ring of stony faces.

Some half heartedly said "That's right Max, you're looking better every day." But that was all. His listeners were convinced that Max, on the strength of his showing in work-outs, had little or no chance against the sharp, hard-punching Negro.

His training has left nothing to be desired. He is in the hands of Izzy Kline, Chicago trainer, who acted as Louis' second in his amateur days and has handled two men who have fought Louis since he turned professional. One of them was Adolph Wiater who, Louis declares, gave him his hardest fight and the other, King Levinsky, who probably gave Joe his easiest.

Seven weeks ago Baer came to this secluded spot in the Adirondack Mountains. For some time he spent his time chopping trees, rowing a boat on Lake Pleasant and doing other things designed to strengthen his hands and the result was fairly good.

Those Worrisome Hands.

At that one of Baer's supporters claims that his hands are still not perfect and that heroic measures will be necessary to put them in condition for the fight. Those measures, it is said, will be taken.

Otherwise his daily routine has been that of the average fighter in training. He has done his road work conscientiously, five miles or more daily on the road and in the afternoons he has boxed with proficient sparring mates.

These sparring mates, including George Turner, Abe Feldman, Lou Scozza and other pretty good boys have made Baer look so bad that observers here have been almost unanimous in their predictions that Baer hasn't a chance.

Max never has been regarded as a great boxer and surely he isn't. His spar-mates have hit him almost at will particularly with a left hand (and that's a dangerous weapon which Louis possesses). He has used big gloves which boxers wear in training so the fact that the most damage he has done was to upset Feldman does not necessarily mean that his attacking power has gone.

At the same time he has appeared futile in the ring. He would put on a flurry of gloves for a few seconds then hold, apparently for a rest. He would laugh in these intervals in a studied effort to make onlookers feel that it was all a joke anyway.

Boxing writers visiting the camp have looked aghast at these performances and have not hesitated in picking Louis to win by a knockout, and even one of them, who describes himself as in on the "build up for this fight," a manager of an outstanding boxer, declared that he couldn't say so publicly, but he felt that it was a mortal cinch that Louis would knock out Baer. "I saw this fellow work for Braddock," he asserted, "and he looked even worse. We would go down to Asbury Park, see him look putrid, but on the way back everybody would say, look at that fine build! Think of his tremendous lung capacity! And I was taken in. I wish I had taken some of that 8 to 1 against Braddock. But, instead, I was surrounded by fellows every night who demonstrated, with gestures, how Max would finish Jim and I fell for it. I should have realized that some time that bum would fight that way in the ring. And he did. He'll do it again. He looks good, but he's all burned out inside."

Baer's conduct has been above reproach. He has not smoked a cigarette or taken a drink for the full seven weeks, according to those close to him.

Out in the Woods.

Shortly after coming to Speculator he was quartered in a cottage in the village, but autograph hunters became so insistent that his handlers moved him to Olmstead camp, a spot deep in the woods, some five miles from the center of the bustling (?) town, where they roll up the sidewalks at 9 o'clock.

"He can't even look anyway but up," laughed Frank Pacassi, one of his trainers, who has been in St. Louis numerous times with boxers, including Primo Carnera, "he's so deep in the woods, with his father, mother, Brother Budd; and his trainer for company."

In the setting of beautiful nature, with trees on the mountains putting on their gorgeous fall hues and the wild life about him interesting and pleasant, his disposition has not improved.

Max likes the lights of Broadway and that's all there is to it. Perhaps they have overdone this "back to nature movement" somewhat. In any event he "wants out of here."

Destroying his carefree manner may have also destroyed his natural capabilities. His wise cracks are the same catalogued remarks of the small-town drug-store cow boy, studied and with no effect.

Max has his supporters of course. One veteran writer has been holding out against all and sundry, declaring that Baer would knock out Louis, that in the face of the derision of his fellow-workers. Braddock, of course, picks Baer to win on points "because Louis will get tired hitting him," but that's only to avoid belittling his own performance in defeating Max.

One Who Has Faith.

There is one Baer picker, however, who can't be overlooked. He is Pete Reilly, manager of Freddy Miller and one of the real smart men of the game. Smart as to all the dodges and his money is usually placed where it will do the most good. And he's picking Baer.

"I saw Louis wince from one right-hand punch to the body in the Carnera fight," Pete asserted, "and if he winced when Carnera hit him, it will be worse when Baer tags him. Max has a chin of iron and he can throw a right hand punch harder than Louis has ever been forced to take before. So I believe that Max will win on a knockout."

The consensus seems to be, however, that Max will have to wrap it all up in one package, deliver it with his right hand and do that very quickly or it will be just too bad for him.

Max went through his penultimate workout for his scrap with Joe Louis, here this afternoon, under threatening skies and in chill, damp weather. Three rounds of boxing with Abe Feldman and some calisthenics constituted his day's work.

While he appeared to somewhat better advantage than on previous occasions, Feldman found no trouble hitting him and Max did no damage to Abe, although he let his famous right hand fly occasionally. However, it was encased in a 22-ounce glove which softened his blows considerably.

Two more rounds of boxing tomorrow will finish his preparation. He will take it easy Monday and fly to New York City by airplane Tuesday in time for the weighing in ceremonies.

Lyda Belle Wins Race at Esquire

Lyda Belle, with Jockey Harry Stutts up, won a five-eighths of a mile running race at the opening program of the Esquire race track at Creve Coeur yesterday afternoon. A crowd of about 200 watched the races from the grand stand, while several hundred more watched from various vantage points around the track.

Our Sweetheart, ridden by Charles Collins, was second by about a half length to Lyda Belle, and Creve Coeur Lad, ridden by Mike Robbins, was third. The mounts Kansas, Blagdon and Punk finished out of the money. Time of the winner was 1 minute 4 seconds.

A mule race over the half-mile distance completed the program, a grey mule named Aba Dabba running first in 1 minute and 30 seconds. He finished five minutes ahead of Louis and Burp, the other entrant,s who staggled in later.

A longer program will be held this afternoon, with four running races and two trotting races scheduled. The program is scheduled to start at 2 p. m.

A Deputy Sheriff of Creve Coeur was detailed to the track, ready to take action at the first outbreak of bettting, but the crowd failed to show any inclination toward betting, the majority of them remaining in their cars, which they had pulled up to the outside rail.

Bonita Potempkin, driven by Ed Erwin, won all three heats of the "half-mile county trot."

ILLINOIS INTERCITY LEAGUE TITLE SERIES

The Granite City Verhovays will play the East St. Louis Verhovays this afternoon at East Side Park in the first of a three-game series for the championship of the Southwestern Illinois Intercity Baseball League.

Granite City will send George Grimm to the hill today, while Smalling will pitch for the East Siders. The second game of the series will be played next Sunday at Granite City.

ALL-DAY LEGION REGATTA WILL BE DECIDED ON THE RIVER TODAY

What promises to be the outstanding regatta of the year will be held on the Mississippi River today between the Eads and Free bridges, under the joint auspices of the American Legion and Inland Yachting Association. Sea scout sailing races and maneuvers get the program under way at 10 o'clock this morning and all classes of swimming, rowing, outboard and inboard races will continue throughout the day, to be brought to a grand climax by a fireworks display at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

About 75 cruisers will participate in the mass parade up the river, escorting the American Legion Commander, between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock. The cruisers range in size from 32 feet to 65 feet and this event will be one of the highlights of the day. After the mass parade competitive races start and take up the remainder of the afternoon.

Three swimming races are scheduled, with the first at 12 o'clock. The men's free-style is the first and some 25 swimmers will participate over the three-quarter mile course downstream. The women will be active in the second, at the same distance, while another men's event, the breast stroke, will compete in the third and final.

At 1 o'clock the rowing races begin. The first will be a six-oared barge event. In the second the eight-oared clubs represented include Western Rowing Club, St. Louis Rowing Club, North End Rowing Club, Central Rowing Club, South End Rowing Club of Quincy and the Lincoln Park Rowing Club of Chicago. The finish of the two events will be just below Eads Bridge, the race being rowed upstream.

Ten entries have been received for the outboard events between 2 and 2:30 o'clock, while some 30 runabouts will vie for honors in the inboard races starting at 2:30 o'clock. Four different events will be held in the inboard class. A 225, 330 and 500 cubic inch displacement or less will be three classes, while the step boats that promise to attain a speed of about 60 miles an hour will be the feature.

Cruiser maneuvers begin again at 4:30 o'clock and will continue through the rest of the program.

terful rescue that netted Warneke a tumultous ovation.

The Cubs, who now have rolled over the four Eastern clubs in four-game series and turned back the Pirates, were held to two scattered hits by Bush, the man they traded down the river last winter, for four innings, but they found the range on the "Mississippi Mud Cat" in the fifth.

How Cubs Won No. 17.

Henshaw opened the inning by reaching first on Lavagetto's error on his ground smash, but was forced at second by Galan. Herman sent Galan to third with a single to right and Augie dashed home as Fred Lindstrom singled to right. Gabby Hartnett was hit on the left elbow with a wicked fast ball as the crowd booed, but the crowd forgot that as Herman scored on a fielder's choice as Demaree forced Gabby. A single by Henshaw and Galan's homer into the right field stands scored the other pair of Cub markers.

Ralph Birkofer replaced Bush in the eighth and set the Cubs down in order.

Madison Ties Webster Eleven; Kirkwood Loses

Webster Groves' football eleven, although outplaying its opponents from Madison (Ill.) for three quarters, was forced to come from behind in the fourth quarter to score a touchdown and convert the extra point to tie Madison, 7-7, in the opening game of the season for both schools yesterday afternoon at Webster Groves. In another practice contest, Belleville's veteran eleven had little difficulty in winning from Kirkwood, 19-0.

Webster's fourth-quarter attack was led by Seth Robins, halfback, who gained most of the ground in the march to score, and also carried the ball over. He also made the tying point by plunging through the line.

TWO VICT

CROWD OF 31,000 SEES BRIDGES AND AUKER BEAT HORNSBY'S CLUB

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Sept. 21.—Detroit won the American League pennant this afternoon by defeating the Browns in both ends of a doubleheader at Navin Field. The scores were 6 to 2 and 2 to 0.

As a result of the twin triumph, the Tigers made their position at the top of the standing secure for the second season in succession. No matter if they drop all their remaining games while the Yankees go on an uninterrupted winning streak, Detroit will be a contender in the next world series.

To Elden Auker, a rawboned right-hander, went the distinction of gaining the victory that definitely sewed up the flag. Pitching against Ivy Paul Andrews in the second game, the former Kansas State football player limited the Browns to six hits to win in shut-out figures.

Hemsley Falls for Old Trick.

Andrews was highly effective himself, holding the league leaders to seven hits, but Auker earned the edge in a brilliant battle of the mound. He was assisted by perfect support and a hidden ball trick that Bill Rogell worked at the expense of Rollie Hemsley when the Browns mildly threatened in the seventh.

With one down, Sam West smashed a single to center. Hemsley forced him at second. Harland Clift singled to center and Hemsley went to second. He forgot to notice where Rogell put the ball, when it was thrown in by Goose Goslin. He wandered off the bag and Rogell tagged him out.

Auker had a part in scoring the first run off Andrews. He singled in the third inning but was forced at second by Pete Fox. Fox stole second and scored on Gerald Walker's single to right. E. Coleman made a great throw to the plate but Fox beat it by half a stride. Any doubt that he was safe was removed when Hemsley dropped the ball.

The Tigers' other run resulted in the sixth when Fox doubled to right field corner and scored on Charlie Gehringer's single.

Tommy Bridges was the winning pitcher in the first game, excelling Merritt Cain, it was Bridge's twenty-first victory of the year, the highest total among Detroit pitchers.

Extra-base hits figured in both the Browns' runs off Bridges. In the first inning Jack Burns and Coleman doubled and in the fifth Julius Solters doubled behind Lyn Lary's infield single. Aside from these innings, Bridges was never in serious trouble.

The Tigers also did some extra-base walloping. Their first run developed in the first inning when Charlie Gehringer walked and scored on Hank Greenberg's triple. When Tom Carey fumbled the throw from the outfield, Greenberg also scored.

31,000 See Twin Bill.

Detroit widened its lead in the third when Greenberg walked, took third on Goose Goslin's single to left and scored on Pete Fox's infield hit.

Cain became wild in the sixth and the Tigers added another run. With one out Bridges scratched a single to short. Jo Jo White and Mickey Cochrane walked, filling the bases. Bridges scored as Carey tossed out Charlie Gehringer.

Cain was removed for a pinch-hitter and Detroit made its last two runs off Russell Van Atta. In the seventh Bill Rogell drew a pass and scored on Marvin Owen's double into left field corner. In the eighth Gehringer tripled and tallied on a wild pitch.

The doubleheader was attended by a crowd officially announced as 31,000. Th Browns play here again tomorrow when the Tigers make their last appearance of year before the home folks until the world series.

Tommy Bridges was the winning pitcher in the first game, excelling Merritt Cain, it was Bridge's twenty-first victory of the year, the highest total among Detroit pitchers.

Extra-base hits figured in both the Browns' runs off Bridges. In the first inning Jack Burns and Coleman doubled and in the fifth Julius Solters doubled behind Lyn Lary's infield single. Aside from these innings, Bridges was never in serious trouble.

The Tigers also did some extra-base walloping. Their first run developed in the first inning when Charlie Gehringer walked and scored on Hank Greenberg's triple. When Tom Carey fumbled the throw from the outfield, Greenberg also scored.

31,000 See Twin Bill.

Detroit widened its lead in the third when Greenberg walked, took third on Goose Goslin's single to left and scored on Pete Fox's infield hit.

Cain became wild in the sixth and the Tigers added another run. With one out Bridges scratched a single to short. Jo Jo White and Mickey Cochrane walked, filling the bases. Bridges scored as Carey tossed out Charlie Gehringer.

Cain was removed for a pinch-hitter and Detroit made its last two runs off Russell Van Atta. In the seventh Bill Rogell drew a pass and scored on Marvin Owen's double into left field corner. In the eighth Gehringer tripled and tallied on a wild pitch.

The doubleheader was attended by a crowd officially announced as 31,000. Th Browns play here again tomorrow when the Tigers make their last appearance of year before the home folks until the world series.

YANKS' 5-2 VICTORY FAILS TO KEEP THEM IN PENNANT RACE

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 21.—The Yankees did their best to stay in the pennant race today when they trimmed the Red Sox 5 to 2 in the series opener as Johnny Murphy pitched seven-hit ball for his ninth victory of the season. The Yanks lost their mathematical chance to win the pennant when Detroit won a doubleheader.

ST. LOUIS TEAM IN SOFTBALL FINAL

The Wagners were the only local team to survive in the American softball tournament, the semifinals of which were played last night at the Sisler South Side Park. The Wagners will play the Dixies of Detroit for the championship tonight.

The Detroit team defeated the Maiers of St. Louis, 3 to 1, and the Wagners won from the Milius team, also of St. Louis, 6 to 4, in the semifinal games played last night.

Preceding the championship contest tonight will be a semifinal girls' game, starting at 7:30 o'clock between the White Way team and the White Lines.

Shontz and Son Win Golf Event

John A. Shontz and his son, Lyle, won the play-off for the St. Louis district annual father and son golf tournament yesterday afternoon at Woodlawn with a 73 to a 74 for the team of Harold Macoy, senior and junior. The Shontz victory broke the string of five consecutive championships which Dave Garroway Sr., and his son had won.

In the play last week the Shontz team tied with the Macoys, each carding a 77 medal total. Yesterday, the Macoys evened the match on the sixteenth green, the seventeenth was halved and the Shontz team won the eighteenth with a par four to five for the Macoys.

The medal score:

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 21.—The Hellrung team of University City, Mo., only remaining team from the St. Louis area in the U. S. M. B. A. tourney here, tasted the dregs of defeat for the first time this afternoon, falling before the Stegner Turtles of Cincinnati, 4 to 3, in the semifinals.

Meyer, starting hurler for the Grimms, went well under a three-run lead until the sixth when he weakened and went to the showers with the score tied 3-all.

Hellrungs drew first blood, scoring two runs in their half of the first inning, when Barbiere reached base on error, Corcoran doubled and Johnston singled. They scored another in the fifth when Meyer doubled and scored on Barbiere's single.

Three triples and two perfect bunts tied the score in the sixth and Cincinnati took the lead in seventh on a walk, a sacrifice, an error and a squeeze play.

The Turtles were never headed, although the Hellrungs threatened in the seventh, eighth and ninth. Hess, a left hander who relieved Gurth when the going became tough, pitched well in the pinches. He struck out the last man in both the seventh and eighth innings and with men on bases and in the ninth inning ragged base running on the part of the visitors smothered a fine chance of victory.

Under tourney rules, two defeats are necessary for elimination for championship play.

Tomorrow, College Hill will meet the Hellrungs, and the Stengers will take on the winner of that game for determination of the municipal title.

MONTREAL DEFEATS SYRACUSE NINE, 6-4

By the Associated Press.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 21. — A big fourth inning featured by Hal King's homer with two aboard gave the Montreal Royals a 6 to 4 victory over Syracuse before 8000 fans in the final game of the year here today. The victory gave Montreal a 3 to 2 edge in the International League's final series for the Governor's Cup.

The sixth game in the four-out-of-seven series will be played tomorrow at Montreal, with the Royals needing one more victory to annex the trophy, while Syracuse must take two.

DODGERS DEFEAT GIANTS, 13 TO 6, IN SECOND GAME, AFTERLOSING 3-2

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21. — The Giants, back from a Western trip that put them out of the pennant race in all but the mathematical possibilities table, broke even with the Dodgers in a doubleheader today. They won the opener, 3 to 2, in 11 innings, then took a 13 to 6 shellacking.

Harry Gumbert, rookie from Baltimore, went the full route in the first encounter, giving only seven hits and outlasting Watson Clark and Johnny Babich. Travis Jackson drove in all the Giants' runs, hitting a homer with one on in the fourth and driving home Phil Weintraub with a single in the eleventh.

The Dodgers cut loose against Roy Parmelee in the second inning of the afterpiece, driving him from the hill in his ninth successive attempt to hurl a full game and scoring eight runs before Allyn Stout checked the rally. Van Mungo pitched the whole game, giving nine blows, including homers by Bartell, Cuccinello nad Myatt.

Bill Terry, Giant manager, remained on the bench, breaking a streak of 296 consecutive games, while Weintraub played first.

the plate and scored on Frisch's single to center.

The two-run lead survived until the fifth when Cuyler led with a bounder that coromed off Paul Dean's glove for a scratch single. Goodman took a called third strike, but Herman hit the screen above the pavilion for a homer, scoring behind Cuyler.

Luck Goes Against Paul.

Luck went against Paul Dean to start the Red's three-run rally in the seventh. Goodman led with a line drive to center. Rothrock misjudging the ball, started in. He realized his mistake too late and his desperate leap failed to reach the drive, the ball rolling to the center field wall for a triple. Herman then hit his second homer and the Reds were two runs ahead. Bottomley followed with a double to left, Riggs sacrificed, Lombardi hit a long fly to Rothrock and Bottomley ran home to make the score Cincinnati 6, Cardinals 3.

Tony Freitas disposed of the Cardinals easily in the seventh, striking out Martin and Rothrock after Sam Narron, the rookie, had batted for Paul Dean and singled with one out, but Frisch opened the eighth with a single to center and Medwick's pop fly fell in front of Cuyler for a safety, moving Frisch to second. Rip Collins forced Medwick at second but Davis punched a double to right, scoring Frisch and moving Collins to third.

Cardinals Tie Score in Eighth.

Derringer then replaced Freitas and thought he had put over a third strike on Durocher, but Umpire Rigler called it a ball and Durocher took advantage of the break by sending a double to right center that scored Collins and King, running for Davis, to make the count 6 to 6. Derringer then fanned Gelbert, walked De Lancey, batting for Kaufmann and Goodman helped the Red cause by hauling down Martin's drive to right center.

Heusser quickly had two strikes on Goodman, first up in the ninth, But Ival then picked on a half-speed ball and singled to right. Herman sacrificed and after Bottomley walked, Riggs tripled to right center, scoring Goodman and Sunny Jim. A single by Bill Myers, another Cardinal farm hand, sent Riggs home with the third run of the inning.

The Cardinals kept on fighting and threatened in the ninth. Rothrock opened with a single and was forced by Frisch. Medwick then singled to right and when Goodman missed the bounding ball, Frisch scored and Medwick reached third. However Derringer struck out Collins and Whitehead, batting for Heusser, ended the game, with a pop foul to Lombardi.

The result was a disappointment to the Redbirds and their followers, though the Ladies' day crowd seemingly took great enjoyment out of the show. There was a cheer when the scoreboard showed the Cubs had beaten the Pirates and there were cheers when the Cardinals scored and when the Reds scored. There was much scoring and always cheers.

Redbird Notes.

JESS HAINES and Dizzy Dean probably will be the starting pitchers for the Cardinals in this afternoon's doubleheader with the Reds. Gene Schott and Al Hollingsworth will work for the visitors.

The first game will be started at 1 o'clock so darkness will not be so likely to prevent completion of the second.

The series opener attracted a Ladies' day crowd of 12,814 women, 2638 girls and 4735 cash customers. It was final free gate of the season for women.

Cuyler opened the game with a single to center and went to third when Goodman followed with a one-bagger to right, but Paul pitched out of the inning without a score. Herman popped to Gelbert, Bottomley sent a short fly to Martin and the Wild Horse also caught a drive from Riggs' bat.

Paul was in trouble in the third when Goodman walked with one out and went to third on Herman's bouncing double over Rip Collins' head, but Bottomley fouled to Davis and Riggs ended the inning with a pop foul to Gelbert.

Cards Were Three Games Behind This Time Last Year

THE Cardinals at this time last year were three games behind the New York Giants and they won the National League pennant by a two-game margin. Today the Redbirds are only half-a-game worse off than they were in 1934.

Here's the way they stood after games of Sept. 21 in 1935:

	W.	L.	Pct.	Beh'd	To Play
New York	92	54	.630	..	8
Cardinals	88	56	.611	3	10
Chicago	81	51	.570	9	12

And here's the way they stand today:

	W.	L.	Pct.	Beh'd	Play
Chicago	96	52	.649	..	6
Cardinals	91	54	.628	3½	9

CLAIR M. BRUNTON, MANAGER OF EAGLES, IS IN ST. LOUIS

Clair M. Brunton, general manager and vice-president of the St. Louis Eagles of the American Hockey League, who represented the Canadian owners of the club last season when it was operated at the Arena here, is in St. Louis. Rumors immediately arose that the Eagles would be operated again, although it has been announced that the major league franchise of Ottawa, which was used here, would remain unused the coming season. Also the St. Louis Flyers, of the American Association, have obtained a lease to play at the Arena the coming winter.

Brunton has talked with C. D. P. Hamilton Jr., general manager of the Arena, but friends said his business here was to wind up affairs of the 1934-35 season.

IRENE'S BOB WINS FAIRMOUNT'S INAUGURAL HANDICAP

OUTSIDERS ARE VICTORIOUS IN OPENING RACES; 10,000 AT TRACK

By Dent McSkimming

That crowd of 10,000 that welcomed the return of horse racing at Fairmount Park yesterday afternoon was by no means the largest in the 10-year history of the track, but it certainly was one of the most enthusiastic.

Even when the favorite, Judge Leer, disappointed in the Inaugural Handicap, there was no groan to take the edge off the wild yell of pleasure. Five horses came up the home stretch, almost in a straight line, with Irene's Bob out in front by less than a length and for almost a quarter of a mile these five leaders fought a thrilling battle. Irene's Bob, hard urged by Jockey Pete Martinez, refused to wilt under terrific pressure and flashed past the judges' stand a winner by half a length. Only noses and half lengths separated Sora, Judge Leer and Thistle Jock in a really remarkable finish.

Three Long Shots Win.

Good racing and close finishes had the crowd on edge all afternoon and in the main it was one o fthe most promising openings in recent years.

Three long shots ran past the favorites, Poppin Along in the third, and Indian Boy in the seventh and Saucy Maria in the eighth, but on the whole it was a formal day.

Saucy Maria furnished the real surprise of the day when she beat 11 rivals in the final race of the day and paid $46.40.

The new young starter, John Morrissey, had to stretch his patience to the breaking point to get the field of 10 off to a good start in the first race. Butch, second choice in the betting, was extremely fractious at the gate and Morrissey had to withhold the word to start for four and one-half minutes. Then all but Skirl got off in a line, Dorsays showing most early speed and taking the lead. He faded at the head of the stretch and was passed by three horses. Vonnie was the winner.

The best part of the second race was run in the last eighth of a mile, right in front of a howling packed grandstand. It was evident when the field reached the half-mile pole that Magna Mater and Inspection were going to overtake Servant Pride, the pacemaker, and despite the fact that he had the longer route to travel, Magna Mater, under R. G. Coopers terrific urging, charged down on Inspection, cutting his lead at every stride. There was not more than a couple of inches between the tips of their noses at the finish, Inspection in front. He paid 4 to 1.

Poppin Along Surprises.

Those fiction stories you read about the race track have some basis in fact. Witness: The filly Poppin Along was beaten by 22 lengths in a race at Fairmount late last September. She won but one race in nine starts in 1934 and she looked like she was ready for the glue factory. Yesterday, after having grazed and rested a full 12 months, she started in the colors of R. E. Gowin, and the big crowd didn't even know she was in the race. At the rise of the barrier, it was not the short priced favorite but the 10 to 1 shot, Poppin Along. She was still in front at the finish with Nervous Lady and Brilliant Miss battling for second place. Chances are you could have bought Poppin Along last winter for a bale of hay but this is a different day.

Lowes Rides Second Winner.

Jockey Lowes' second victory was scored with Chief's Troubadour in the fourth race, and again he displayed excellent skill. In its earlier stages, the pace lay between Adrian and Discobolus. At the head of the stretch it was between Discobolus, Judge Urban and Chief's Troudabour, but at the wire Chiefs Troubadour had a two-length advantage.

Getting tossed out of the saddle and out of the race is just a trifling incident in the life of a jockey. When the barrier was sprung in the third race, Jockey R. Tilden was thrown to the ground by the filly Star Player. He was shaken up but the spill didn't affect his nerve. Came the fifth race and he had the mount on Frankie Serembas horse Zekiel. Tilden had a great deal to do with getting "Zeke" clear on interference in the back stretch and he caught and passed Bunty Ann at the half-mile pole. From that point on it was Zekiel's race.

Indian Boy Was Seventh.

Too often when a pacemaker finds a horse hammering at him right down the stretch, he weakens but not so Indian Boy from the barn of Mrs. C. C. Kranz. Rex Regent came right up to him as they thundered down the home stretch and seemed sure to steal the lead but Jockey J. Hernandez asked Indian Boy for just one more effort and the way he responded leads one to believe he must have had quite a lot in reserve. He pulled right away from Rex Regent. Sorcery finished third.

Man of Many Jobs.

Kayo Lam, 147-pound quarterback at Colorado, leads a 14-piece orchestra playing over the radio, and finds time to be the boxing and wrestling champion at his weight.

$2 Mutuels paid: Vonnie, $11.20 win, $620 place, $4.40 show; Penthouse, $8.60 place, $7 show; Elihu, $7.60 show.

Vonnie, rated close to the pace from the break, responded well to hard urging in final quarter disposed of Dorsays and held Penthouse safe. The latter improved his position gradually and finished gamely. Elihu saved ground throughout but was unable to menace the winner.

SECOND RACE—$400 claiming, three-year-olds and up, five and a half furlongs: Start, good from gate; won, driving; place, same. Went to post, 2:36; at post, 3½ minutes. Winner, Mrs. F. E. Turner. Two dollar mutuels paid: Inspection, $9.80 win, $5 place, $3.20 show; Magna Mater, $5.40 place, $3.80 show; Servant Pride, $2.80 show.

Inspection, going in her best form and well handled, gained rapidly in the stretch run, disposed of Servant Pride with ease, but had to be hard ridden to outstay Magna Mater. The latter moved up steadily, lost ground racing wide, but continued gamely to the end. Servant Pride was much used in early stages and weakened when challenged.

$2 mutuels paid: Poppin Along—$22.60 win, $8.20 place, $5.00 show; Brilliant Miss: $13:60 place, $8.40 show; Nervous Lady: $4.80 show. Poppin Along, away alertly, took a commanding lead early, and held sway the remainder of the journey. Brilliant Miss made a determined challenge, but was not good enough. Nervous Lady, well up from the start, weakened slightly in the drive.

The daily double, Inspection and Poppin' Along, paid $179 for $2.

Trolley League Clubs in Second Game of Series

Manager Bob Ittig of the Collinsville Red Birds will send his team against the Stags of Belleville today in the second game of the series to decide the 1935 semi-pro title of the Missouri Illinois Trolley League at Athletic Field, Belleville, starting at 3 o'clock.

The Stags can win the title by taking today's game, having won the opener last week, 6-5, with a ninth inning rally which produced five runs, when George Govenat, Collinsville's no-hit hurler, yielded seven hits after two baatters had been retired.

Ittig announced last night he will start Ollie Eckert, ace right hander, who recently returned from the Three I League against Belleville. The Red Birds' manager intends to change his batting order around, using Joe Spanga as lead-off man.

"Red" Hoffman of the home team is expected to send "Ham" Gregory to the mound. Last week, Gregory relieved Glen Barthelme in the eighth after the Red Birds had hammered Barthelme's offerings for nine hits and five markers.

DIZZY DEAN IS GIVING AWAY
TO THE
GET IN ON IT!

HERE'S WHAT YA DO—

I want you to write me a letter telling me why ya think the Cardinals should again win the National League pennant. Now for gosh sakes keep your letter short, not more'n one hundred words at the most, cause long letters cross me up plenty. I got to see smart reasons, too.

Then when you've got your letter all written step down to your favorite drug or department store and buy yourself a tube of that swell Dean-O-Dent Tooth Paste or that smooth Dean-O-Shave Shavin' Cream or one of my autographed tooth brushes. They got a brushless shavin' cream, too, for you fancy fellers. Send in the carton top or wrapper with your letter an' if you write the best reasons you'll be ole Dizzy's guest at the World Series—every game, includin' hotel bills, railroad fare, all expenses.

An' don't think them Dean-O-Dent products aren't swell, neither. I wouldn't let 'em put old Diz's name on the boxes if they wasn't. So get busy, now, and let's see you hustle with them letters.

Ole Diz'll have yore tickets waitin' for ya!

NOTE TO PARENTS—You don't have to coax your kiddy to use a Dizzy Dean tooth brush.

CONTEST RULES:

1. All letters must be of 100 words or less. They must tell why you think the Cardinals should again win the National League pennant. Letters will be judged according to logic and coherence.
2. Print your name and address plainly at the bottom of your letter. The decision of the judges will be final. All letters become the property of Super Products Company.
3. All letters must be enclosed with either a Dean-O-Dent or Dean-O-Shave carton top or a Dizzy Dean tooth brush cellophane wrapper, or a reasonable facsimile of same.
4. Contest closes midnight, September 30th. Winner will be notified October 1st. Address all letters to Dizzy Dean, care of SUPER PRODUCTS COMPANY, MART BUILDING, ST. LOUIS.
5. Contest is open to everyone except professional ball players and members of the Super Products Company and their families.
6. Duplicate awards to tying contestants.

If your dealer can't supply you, send 25c for Dizzy Dean Tooth Brush or 35c for large tube Dean-O-Dent Tooth Paste, Brushless or Lathering Shaving Cream to—

Football makes a successful "delayed steal" on the baseball season tomorrow night when, a week earier than usual, the 1935 gridiron campaign is opened with an "American Legion game" between the St. Louis University Billikens and the Tigers of the University of the South, at Walsh Memorial Stadium. The contest is rated the chief sport attraction of the Legion convention program.

Play tomorrow night will start at 8:45 after a half-hour Legion program which is to feature leading bands of the organization and drill teams which, later, will compete for convention prizes.

Little is known here of the strength of the Southern eleven. It is known to be light and fast and, as always, well-coached by Hec Clark and his assistant, Al Lincoln, former University of Missouri star. Not much more is certain of the prowess of the Billikens. Many of Coach Muellerleile's players are sophomores and, early in the season, they always are question marks. The game should, therefore, tell the story of the Billikens' 1935 prospects.

Billikens to Be Heavier.

The Tigers — perhaps better known as Sewanee—use both single and double wing-back from a balanced line. It is a fairly veteran combination with "Lefty" Poage—he kicks that way, too—as the outstanding threat of the backfield. As for the passing attack, much depends on the form shown by several of the reserves coming up to the varsity team. Some of the passing combinations of 1934 are available and it is probable, outweighed as it will be, that Sewanee will press its attack through the atmosphere.

According to weights of players issued by the two schools, the Tigers' line will average 179.3 pounds to 194.5 pounds, a difference of some 15 pounds per man. In the backfield, the Billiken quartet will average 171 to 169 to the Tiger combination—practically no difference. Team averages will be St. Louis U., 186 pounds; Sewanee, 175 pounds—a margin of 11 pounds per man in favor of the Billikens.

Weights, however, in this modern game, are about as helpful in predicting a result as are comparative scores, which are entirely useless.

Team in Fine Shape.

The Billikens have been working hard, officially, since Sept. 10, pointing toward tomorrow night's game. For a few days before the 10th the players were in conditioning work and, as a result, appear in better physical shape at this time than any St. Louis University squad in several seasons. The line is rugged and heavy with Krause, a real star, at center; Rossini and Baker at tackles and flankers Mitchell and Fitzgerald are veterans. Three of the four backfield men also are experienced—Halfbacks Hudson, the captain; Carl Wood and Fullback Norman Kloepper. The signal calling will be done by Lou Drone, a junior, who had some experience as a sophomore a year ago.

Coach Muellerleile appears fairly well supplied with reserves and many of them probably will see action against Sewanee—that is, if circumstances permit the frequent use of substitutes. His eleven has one asset, however, which the Billikens of 1934 were without, and that is a fine morale. Lighter by many pounds than a year ago, the Billikens are trying to make up for the loss of weight by spirit and dash.

With a good night and with thousands of Legionnaires in the city, it is considered likely that a record crowd will watch the teams battle under the lights. All the auxiliaries of the Legion are working on the ticket sales and booths have been erected in the various hotels for the sale of admissions.

The last time Sewanee and St. Louis met was in 1908 when the teams battled to a 6-6 tie.

H. B. Davis, manager of the Salem (Ill.) 1899 Sewanee Team, With Only 12 Men, Won 5 Games in 6 Days

It may be just as well that the St. Louis University Billikens are opposing the 1935 University of the South (Sewanee) eleven in the American Legion game at Walsh Memorial Stadium. Were they playing the 1899 Sewanee team, no one could concede the Billikens a chance, for that 1899 combination was probably the most amazing eleven in the history of Southern football.

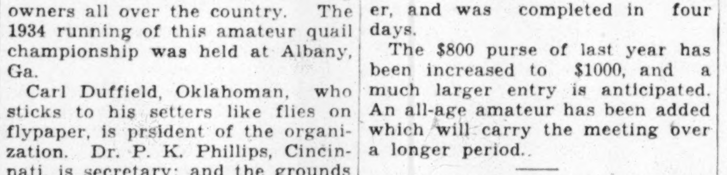
Just 36 years ago, Sewanee won the Southern championship. That they won it was marvel enough, but the way in which they won it was even more wonderful. For, with only 12 men and the manager making the trip, the Sewaneeans proceeded on a campaign during the course of which they won five games—all on the road. Remarkable? Certainly; but consider also that these five victories were won IN SIX DAYS!

The squad travelled by day coach—no luxuries in those days. They ate and slept wherever accommodations could be found. No practice could be held during the trip. Now, Sewanee had won over Georgia, Georgia Tech., Tennessee and Southern Poly. So the trip began against Texas U. and Sewanee won, 12 to 0. The following day, in Houston, they met Texas A. & M. and were on the long end of a 32-0 score.

They then hopped to New Orleans and, in their third game in three days trounced Tulane, 23 to 0. Then the team had a "long" rest. The following day was Sunday but, Monday, they played Louisiana State and won, 34 to 0. Gaily they hopped to Memphis and won from Mississippi, 12 to 0. Five games and five victories in six days with only one substitute being used and 123 points to none for their opponents.

Two games remained on the schedule and this time Sewanee had a real rest. It lasted a week, after which they defeated Cumberland, 71 to 0. The final game, 10 days later, was actually for the championship. By now, this game little band was pretty tired, but they held together long enough to win, 11 to 10. They finished up with a December game, winning from North Carolina, 3 to 0.

There were Giants in those days.



THE AMATEUR FIELD TRIAL CLUBS OF AMERICA, parent organization of some 60 odd amateur clubs distributed over the United States, has awarded its 1936 meeting to the Memphis territory, hub of Southern field trial activities. This meeting is considered the choicest plum of the amateur activities in the bird dog sport.

The trials of this club have definitely been scheduled to open the grounds of the United States Field Trials' Association at Holly Springs, Miss., 40 miles south of Memphis, the first or second week in February, the exact date to be announced later.

In Missouri Last Year.

Officers of the club decided on the Holly Springs course after the disagreeable weather encountered last year at Sturgeon, Mo. The United States course contains more than 8000 acres, well stocked with quail and is centrally located for the convenience of amateur dog owners all over the country. The 1934 running of this amateur quail championship was held at Albany, Ga.

Carl Duffield, Oklahoman, who sticks to his setters like flies on flypaper, is prsident of the organization. Dr. P. K. Phillips, Cincinnati, is secretary; and the grounds committee responsible for the selection of Holly Springs for the 1936 running is composed of C. M. McKenney, Orlando, Fla.; Earnest C. Mead, Richmond, Va., and Hugh E. Buckingham, chairman, Memphis. Buckingham is a director in the parent club and an officer in the Memphis Amateur Field Trial Club, a member club.

The Eligibles.

Only registered dogs, or those subject to registration, who have placed in Derby or All-age stakes of member clubs are eligible to compete, for the Amateur Quail Champion of America title goes to the winner of the event. Strictly amateur, professional handlers are barred from participation. The winner each year is awarded an appropriate trophy in addition to a leg on the trophy offered by the club for any owner who is a three-time winner. These victories do not have to be registered with the same dog.

The field last year contained 31 entries, but scratches brought the actual number of dogs running to 27, heats lasting two hours. Duffield's Black Hawk Kid is the present Amateur Quail Champion.

Due to intense interst in the sport in this section, the field for the 1936 running is expected to be much larger. It is an almost certainty that four Memphis owned dogs will be set down when the attraction gets under way in February, and Memphis was without an entry last year.

Judges Not Selected.

Chimes Mississippi Jack, the big pointer that has been faring well on the Canadian prairie since being obtained by Col. B. C. Goss of Cleveland, is another eligible that may find himself striving for the amateur title. Jack placed second in the open stake of the Memphis Amateur Club last February and Col. Goss will be invited to run him again.

Judges for the meeting have not been selected.

The date for the running of the United States Club's trials has been announced as Feb. 17. This meeting last year enjoyed excellent weather, and was completed in four days.

The $800 purse of last year has been increased to $1000, and a much larger entry is anticipated. An all-age amateur has been added which will carry the meeting over a longer period.

It is reported that the National Championship trials at Grand Junction, Tenn., will get under way on Monday, Feb. 24. The cream of the field trials crop, this meeting is ever popular.

And the month of February will be rounded out in a bird dog way with the annual trials of the Memphis Amateur Field Trials Association's meeting in the early part of the month. Dog fans in the Bluff City territory are in for a great month, come February.

CHANGE IN THE BLUES' PRO FOOTBALL PLANS FOR LEGION WEEK

The St. Louis Blues, professional footballers, have been forced to cancel their game with the Chicago Cardinals of the National League, scheduled for Tuesday night, because of inability to obtain Walsh Stadium. The American Legion drum and bugle corps will be in their drilling competition at the stadium Wednesday and carpenters and electricians will have to have Tuesday to prepare for that event, it was explained.

Manager Bud Yates now is negotiating with other teams in Chicago and Cleveland for a game to be played Thursday night at Walsh Stadium.

Wiese Defeats Portnoy.

Ray Wiese defeated Joyce Portnoy, 6—1, 6—2, in the semifinal round of the Triple A championship tennis tournament yesterday afternoon on the Triple A courts.

LOUIS-BAER FIGHT

BLOW-BY-BLOW DESCRIPTION OVER

KSD

Starting at 8 P. M. St. Louis Time
Tuesday, Sept. 24

BETTY BUTLER, MRS. DUEKER WIN DOUBLES TITLE

Miss Betty Butler, Lindenwood College student, and Mrs. Virginia Dueker, veteran from O'Fallon Park, won the St. Louis district women's doubles title by defeating Merceina Weiss and Frances Jacobson, 5—7, 6—1, 7—5, yesterday afternoon on the Jefferson Memorial courts in Forest Park.

The match was called on account of darkness after one set was played last Sunday, at which time Miss Weiss and Miss Jacobson had a 7—5 lead. However, they couldn't hold that lead yesterday and they dropped the last two sets, 6—1, 7—5.

The final round of play marked the completion of district play for women this season.

Clayton Finals Will Be Played Today.

The Clayton closed tennis championship will be completed this afternoon on the Clayton Municipal courts at Price and Ladue roads. Final round matches in men's singles and doubles and women's singles will be played. Leo Boldenweck will oppose Shields Hauhart in the men's singles final, while Julia Hafner meets Ann Thomson, defending champion, in the final round of the women's singles. The remaining semifinal round contest in the men's doubles will be decided this morning. Nelson and Sauselle will oppose Kratz and Otto and the winning team will play Boldenweck and Russell Hadden in the final this afternoon.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

Men's singles—Semifinal round: Shields Hauhart defeated Robert Hereford, 6—4, 6—8, 6—1; Leo Boldenweck defeated Connie McDonald, 6—0, 6—0.

Men's doubles—Semifinal round: Hadden and Boldenweck defeated Bange and Tolkacz, 6—2, 6—1.

Women's singles—Semifinal round: Ann Thomson defeated Elsie Sauselle, 7—9, 6—4, 6—0; Julia Hafner defeated Mrs. Monroe Lewis, 6—3, 6—3.

FOREST PARK RESULTS.

Men's Singles — Final round: Wayne Smith defeated Lee Travis, 6—2, 6—2.

Men's doubles—Semifinal round: Wayne Smith and Ward Parker defeated Sam Stone and Leonard Hafertepe, 6—0, 6—3.

Ray Wiese Enters Triple A.

Ray Wiese advanced to the final round of the Triple A Club tennis championship by defeating Joyce Portnoy, 6—1, 6—2 in a semifinal round match yesterday afternoon. Richard Tindall reached the semifinal round as the result of two victories. In the first he defeated Gus Serrano 4—6, 6—1, 6—2 and then won from Ed Wiese, 8—6, 6—0.

The remaining semifinal match between Tindall and George Prelutzky will be played tomorrow. The winner will meet Ray Wiese in the final round later in the week.

Results of other Triple A matches follow:

Class A—Men's singles — Semifinal round: Harry Hotze defeased Albert Davis, 0—6, 6—4, 6—1.

Class B—Men's Singles—Second round: Joe Baker defeated Carl Robinson, 6—2, 6—2; quarterfinal round: B. Diehl defeated Joe Baker, 6—2, 6—2; semifinal round: B. Diehl defeated Dr. A. Lansche, 7—5, 6—4.

Class A—Men's Doubles—First round: Frohlichstein and Stern won from Sedden and Chopin by default; Levite and Markwort defeated Phelan and Davis, 6—4, 6—2; Hollinshead and Hotze defeated Koster and Proffitt, 6—1, 6—1; Hubbard and Hoffman defeated Wirtz and Agatstein, 6—2, 6—1; Balfay and Bishop won by default from Chopin and Rogers; Singer and Flanigan defeated Mullen and Stafford, 6—2, 6—3.

Class B—Men's Doubles—First round: Huelsick and Thompson defeated Pettus and Nelson, 6—2, 6—3; Wagenbach and Strentsch defeated Rice and Dieckman, 6—1, 6—0; Coddington and Nall defeated Hartman and Kubitschek, 5—7, 10—8, 8—6; Burst and Steeb defeated Diekneite and Senturia, 6—3, 6—3.

Marquette Park Finals Scheduled Today.

Evelyn Caporal will oppose Lucille Forrester in the final round of the Marquette Park women's singles championship this afternoon. The final round of the men's doubles is also scheduled. Al. Novotny and John English will oppose Leonard Weaver and Edward Mertz for the title.

U. S. Bicycle Races Scheduled Here Wednesday

Some of the fastest bicycle riders from more than 20 states are expected in St. Louis for the national championships of the Century Road Club of America, Inc., which will be held here Wednesday afternoon. The races will be held in O'Fallon Park, and not Forest Park, as originally planned.

Races for juniors will be at one-half, one, two and five miles, and for seniors, at one-half, one, five and 10 miles. There will be a sprint every mile in the 10-mile race.

The races will be over a half-mile course in O'Fallon Park, with the start near the park's tennis courts.

The contenders will include representatives from Illinois, California, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Texas, Wisconsin, Maryland, Kentucky, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Georgia and Massachusetts.

Among the riders who loom as real threats are such stars as Jackie Simes, New Jersey State champion and consistent winner of all Eastern meets this year; Al Byrd, Illinois senior champion, winner of the time prize in the 1934 Elgin-to-Chicago road classic; Bud Thorpe, Minnesota champion, and Ben Hauger, New York State champion.

A special feature will be a one-mile national championship, which is closed to Legionnaires only. Entries may be filed up to starting time at 108 North Twelfth street and 3621 North Grand boulevard. Outstanding among the out-of-town entries is Victor T. Broome, athletic director of Fond du Lac, Wis., while St. Louis' hope is Harry de Vries, veteran cyclist and a member of the Firemen's post.

GROTTO SOFTBALL TEAM WILL PLAY IN CHARITY GAME TONIGHT

A charity soft ball game will be played tonight at National Park, Kingshighway and Juniata street, by teams representing Alhambra Grotto and the Wardens' and Masters' Club.

A game between girls' teams will precede the men's game. The Alhambra Drum and Bugle Corps will furnish music during the evening. Admission 25 cents.

Drunkenness Is a Disease!

This FREE Booklet Explains Facts That Every Person Should Know

HERE is a treatise written on the disease of inebriety and its cure, written especially for the Keeley Institute. It is based on fifty years' experience, embracing the treatment of more than 400,000 patients, including men and women from all walks of life.

It tells you "why" the medical profession recognizes drunkenness as a disease; what famous medical authorities say about the disease of drunkenness . . . and "how" drunkenness can be cured. The booklet is free, and mailed in a plain envelope. Write at once for your copy NOW!

SOFT COAL STRIKE UP TO ROOSEVELT FOR SIXTH TIME

Once Again Operators Reject Miners' Request for More Pay—Walkout Set for Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Last-minute intervention by President Roosevelt appeared tonight as the only hope of averting a soft coal strike Monday.

Appalachian producers and the United Mine Workers were deadlocked in their negotiations toward a new wage and hour contract to succeed the agreement expiring tomorrow midnight.

The miners asked for higher pay. The operators refused to yield in any way from their position that a renewal of the present scale was the best they could offer.

Enactment of the Guffey bill to set up a "little NRA" for the bituminous industry apparently had not helped to reconcile opposing views, contrary to the expectations of union officers and the Administration. The constitutionality of the law has been attacked in the courts.

Edward F. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor and the Administration's key man in labor conflicts, was understood to have suggested a compromise today, but found the union unwilling to accept it. McGrady kept Roosevelt in touch with the situation by telephone.

Operators' View on Cost.

Even though the Guffey Act was designed to assure the industry sufficient income to cover production costs—including wages—the producers contended that any increase in these production costs at this time would mean a heavy loss of business to competitive fuels. Such a loss, they maintained, would be disastrous to both capital and labor in the long run.

The union, in its argument, stressed rising living costs. Many miners, union chiefs said, had been forced to supplement their wages with Federal Relief.

Philip Murray, union vice-president, said the average miner made only $15.80 a week during the first half of this year with which he had to keep himself and an average family of four.

Three Courses for President.

Coal men here saw three ways open for the President to act:

(1) To suggest a compromise.

(2) To ask for the sixth extension of the old scale while negotiations were continued and the new coal commission organized.

(3) To demand arbitration.

All three were reported reliably to be unsatisfactory to the union. Coal men said some operators, but not all, might agree to a compromise or arbitration while all would favor another extension.

The old wage and hour agreement first expired last April 1. Negotiations were deadlocked at the time, and Roosevelt obtained an extension. Since, there have been four more extensions, the last arranged a week ago tonight.

McGrady stuck by his plan tonight to demand that both the union and the producers "tell the public" why they could not get together.

The Justice Department announced today a special staff of lawyers will be sent to Louisville next week to represent the Government in a court attack there on constitutionality of the Guffey law.

PART THREE

THIRD-FOURTH AND FRANKLIN 'WEDGE' SOLD

Property Is Near Approach of Newly Projected Bridge Across the Mississippi.

INK COMPANY ACQUIRES BUILDING

W. M. Smith Buys Northwest Corner of Cherokee and California, Occupied by Three-Story Buildings

By Berry Moore

Conspicuous as a wedge-holding, the property comprising the southwest corner of Third and the southeast of Fourth street and Franklin avenue, has been acquired by Salvadore Sansone, wealthy fruit dealer.

The site has a frontage of approximately 23 feet on both Third and Fourth streets, and 56 feet on Franklin avenue. It is improved with three story buildings occupied by commission merchants under long leases.

The property belonged to the Hartman estate, represented by the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. Negotiations for the purchaser were conducted by the De Martini Real Estate Co. No mention of the consideration was made.

The purchase was predicated on the Mississippi River bridge project, which contemplates a Franklin avenue approach, it was stated.

Comprising the entire Franklin avenue side of this block, the two corners have been regarded as attractive real estate holdings by virtue of their key importance.

Third and Fourth streets, extending north, converge at this point. Lying on the east is the Wabash Railway freight depot.

The northwest corner of Third and the northeast corner of Fourth street and Delmar boulevard (formerly Morgan street) were acquired several weeks ago by Vito Cusumano, a client of the Breitt & Naumer Realty Co. Teh two parcels compose the entire Delmare frontage of this block. Anotehr recent transaction involved at 818-20 North Fourth and 823-25 North Third, two abutting buildings with a frotage of 57 feet on both streets. W. F. Clogston was the buyer in this instance. Cornet & Zeibig handled the negotiation, in conjunction with Leonard E. Stedlin.

Valuations established in the earlier transactions were not disclosed.

The Braznell-Sylvester Ink Company, manufacturers of printing ink, has closed negotiations for the purchase of a building on Walnut street for new quarters. The exact location of the property is withheld, pending conclusion of the transaction. The concern, one of the best known in the city, now occupies a building at 508 North Second street, in the area to be acquired for the Thomas Jefferson Memorial project.

Walter M. Smith, resident executive of the F. W. Woolworth Company, has purchased the northwest corner of Cherokee street and California avenue, occupied by three-story business buildings. The site has a frontage of 130 feet on Cherokee, with a dept of 60 feet on California.

Harry Newman, Incorporated, handled the transaction. The consideration was not announced. The property belonged to C. Kloeris, who had recently acquired it, the resale yielding him a substantial profit on his investment, it is understood.

The purchase is 90 feet west of a building on the north side of Cherokee, occupied by the F. W. Woolworth Company, under a 15-year lease. The intervening 90 feet of ground, occupied by an old residence, has been the object of many offers, submitted by the Newman Company on behalf of speculators as well as investors.

The corner is one of the most outstanding in the business section of this part of the city. Revoked by the Supreme Court, restrictions for-

The corner is one of the most outstanding in the business section of this part of the city. Revoked by the Supreme Court, restrictions formerly prohibited occupancy of the corner for business purposes. Other chain stores in this section of Cherokee street include those of the Penney, Neisner, Gasen, Kresge and Schoenberg companies. The Union-Electric also has a branch on Cherokee.

Smith, it is understood, acquired the property as a speculative investment, predicated on the business future of this part of the city.

The South Side Consumers' Dairy Co., operated by Hediger Brothers, has acquired a parcel of land comprising 5000 square feet to the north of its plant at 2921 Salena street, for an addition. This makes the second expansion the dairy company has undertaken this year, the first involving acquisition of ground adjoining on the south.

The transaction was handled by Edwin C. Wagner, realtor.

CHARLES C. VOGLER NOW WITH GEORGE J. WANSTRATH

Charles C. Vogler has become identified with George J. Wanstrth with offices at 715 Chestnut street. He was formerly successively connected wit hthe Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co. and the Franciscus Realty Co. the loans departments, connections that have given him broad experience in the real estate field. He will give attention to both sales and loans in his new association. The Wanstrath concern is a source of capital supply for residential, flat and business construction, with one of the largest clienteles in the city.

MORTGAGE BANKERS TO MEET AT FRENCH LICK

Number of St. Louisans Have Made Arrangements to Attend Convention.

St. Louis will be well represented at the twenty-second annual convention of Mortgage Bankers' Associations of America at French Lick Springs, Ind., Oct. 3 and 4.

The convention will be devoted to a discussion of the future of the mortgage banking business, according to L. A. McLean, convention chairman. Under the general heading, "Government vs. Private Lending," the two-day meet will seek the answer to the question, "Is the government supplementing or supplanting private loaning agencies?"

L. E. Mahan, president of L. E. Mahan and Company of St. Louis, will preside over the luncheon discussion on city mortgages.

A local delegation of mortgage bankers will be led by McCune Gill, president, and Minard T. MacCarthy, secretary, of the Mortgage Bankers of this city.

Owing to the fact that this year's convention is being held at a resort hotel, French Lick Springs, many of the bankers are bringing their wives and a full program of entertainment has been planned.

Numbered among the St. Louis reservations are: Mr. and Mrs. McCune Gill, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Spackler, Mr. and Mrs. Minard T. MacCarthy, Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Mills, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Wanstrath, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Mahan, Chester Dougherty, Clarence Lang, W. I. Christopher, George Aye, Harry Newman, A. Sproule Love, Louis Maginn, Eugene Williams, Albert T. Terry, J. G. Driscoll, John Krause, Edw. L. Bakewell, George Stolz, Calvin Bowersox.

MANUFACTURING CONCERN LEASES LARGER QUARTERS

Lasky-Schiffman, Inc., have taken a lease on the entire seventh floor of the building at 1312 Washington avenue. The concern designs and manufactures ladies' silk dresses.

Max Lasky is president and Henry L. Schiffman is secretary and treasurer of the company. The lessee will take possession of the premises on or about Oct. 15.

The lease was made for the account of the Edward S. Robert estate. Martin S. Martin & Son handled negotiations.

NEW INTEREST BY HOMESEEKERS IN CITY AND COUNTY

Hampton Park, Parkview and University City Outstanding Residences Have Been Acquired.

H. BARTHOLOMEW AMONG BUYERS

Several Houses in Lake Forest and in Ames Place Homes Under Negotiation.

A renewed demand for residences on the part of homeseekers was indicated from purchases in this field in both the city and in the county during the last week. Noteworthy transactions involved residences in Hampton Park, Parkview and in University City.

The residence at 6228 Westminster place, in Parkview, one of the most outstanding homes in Parkview, was acquired by Harold Bartholomew, engineer for the City Plans Commission.

The property was owned by the estate of Mrs. Emily C. Peters, represented in the transaction by William W. Butts, president of the Butts Realty Company. Minard T. McCarthy of the Albert G. Blanke Real Estate Company, acted for the purchaser. The consideration was not announced.

The house stands on a landscaped lot, comprising approximately half an acre of ground, just inside the city limits. It has 11 rooms and three baths, rathskeller, breakfast room and sunroom, and is equipped for gas heat. There is a two-story garage in the rear on the premises.

The house was built by Frederick Peters, a member of the Peters Shoe Co.

Hampton Park House Acquired.

Vester Mullins has concluded negotiations for the residence at 8045 Park drive, in Hampton Park, on the south side of Clayton road, east of Hanley road. J. Agastine was the grantor to the title.

The house has 12 rooms, including four bed rooms and two baths, two sunrooms, and breakfast room. It is on an acre of ground. The reported purchase price was $37.500. The house is one of the most attractive in this residential park, laid out in winding drives.

Negotiations are pending for several handsome residences in Lake Forest, at the southwest corner of Clayton and Hanley roads. Seventy houses have been built in this park subdivision, laid out in 1929. Twenty-two residences in this addition have been sold since Jan. 1, 1934.

Ames Place Residences in Demand.

Negotiations are in an advanced stage for several residences in Ames place, which virtually constitutes a continuation of Parkview. Houses in this addition range from eight to 12 rooms, with two and three baths, and are of the highest type of construction, complying with rigid building restrictions. In close proximity to the Parkview-Ames place district is Washington University, which is a factor in the demand.

The residence at 7136 Lindell avenue has been purchased by Dr. C. Malone Stroud through Albert T. Terry Son & Co from the William Schiller estate. This is a well-constructed house, containing 10 rooms and two baths, and is equipped with an oil heating system. There is a two-car garage with side drive. The lot is 100 by 144 feet. The purchase price was not announced.

It is under the direction of William L. Gourley, with the John P. Dolan Realty Co. sales agents.

Another purchase was that by Melvin Levi of 57 Arundel place, in Hillcrest, just west of Skinker boulevard, owned by Louis Engel. The Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co. handled negotiations in this instance.

The house has six rooms and two baths and is air conditioned. It is finished throughout in hard wood. The lot is 50 by 185 feet. The purchase was made for a home. Levi is president of J. M. Levi & Co., founded by his father, the late Joseph M. Levi, who was a leading member of the real estate fraternity.

Sale in Blue Ridge Terrace.

A duplex residence at the southeast corner of York and Westwood drives, in Blue Ridge terrace, Clayton, has been purchased by Jack Doucette. It was built by the General Construction Co. for Walter A. Beck, the seller. The building is air conditioned and there is a garage in the basement.

Purchase contracts have also been closed for a recently completed duplex building on Buckingham drive, between Westwood and Glen Ridge drives, in Blue Ridge terrace. Negotiations for other buildings of this type in this section are reported.

Blue Ridge terrace is the west part of the Moorlands. It is situated between Wydown boulevard and Clayton road. It was platted for apartments and buildings of the duplex type.

Harvey Frohlichstein, sales manager of the Angelica Jacket Co., has bought 7200 Waterman avenue, in West Portland place, in University City. The house has five bedrooms and two baths, hot-water heating plant with oil burner. There is a two-car garage in the basement. The lot is 60 by 140 feet. The Albert G. Blanke Real Estate Co. handled the transaction.

The seller, Frederick C. Peters, now resides in Miami Beach, Fla., where he recently erected a residence.

INCREASED TRANSACTIONS REPORTED BY COMPANY

H. A. O'Rourke Real Estate Co., 5471 Gravois avenue, through its sales manager, Lewis M. A NEW DEAL
FOR WEARY ST. LOUISANS

...FOR APARTMENT SEEKERS...

who dread the thought of spending a week or fortnight wearily climbing stairs in search of the perfect apartment, we have opened a Rental Service Bureau directed by Mrs. Val A. Reis. She has made a complete survey of the available apartments in the West End and classified them according to price, number and size of rooms and location.

If you will phone and let us know your requirements, we can tell you which of the many apartments will do, and without charge have a capable young woman drive you to the selected apartments.

They Copy Our Homes!

No finer tribute to our LEADERSHIP and the QUALITY of our homes than the many attempts to copy them almost exactly. This house is being copied right now in another location. BUT THEY DON'T COPY THE BUILT-IN QUALITY. All windows and doors are about 2 inches thick, all basements are almost 8 feet high, inlaid floors, Venetian blinds, gas hot-water heat, knotty pine rathskeller, porcelain fixtures, all-tile kitchen and bath. The home of your dreams, built to last.

5012 MIAMI

Just west of Kingshighway, 3500 south. House is 28 feet wide, wide lot, 2-car garage. Entire lot sodded. All complete and built with heavy stones that will last for years and years. READY FOR YOU TO OCCUPY. OPEN ALL DAY SUNDAY AND EVENINGS. WE invite you.

California

IN CALIFORNIA SMALL FARM HOMES beat the depression. Such homes are the solution of many of our economic and social problems. Less working hours per week make it possible to derive a good part of the living for the average family from a small tract. California offers this opportunity, where many varieties of fruits and vegetables are grown the year round. The Small Farm Home is a proven success in many localities in California. The Santa Fe Railroad has no land to sell, but offers free information service to help you get right location. Low fares to California. IN MEMORIAM

BACHMANN, CHARLES G.—In loving memory of our dear father and brother, who departed this life Sept. 21, 1934.
Sadly missed by
SONS AND RELATIVES.

BARCLAY, JACK—In fond memory of our darling son and brother who left us Sept. 24th, 1931:
To have and love and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of our hearts.
THE FAMILY.

BLAKELY, WALTER M. CORPORAL—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, who gave his life for his country, Sept. 26, 1918.
Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER AND SISTER.

ECKHOFF, IDA M.—In loving remembrance of my dear wife who departed this life one year ago, Sept. 21, 1934.
Sad and sudden was the call
For my dear wife loved by all;
I little thought that on that day
She would be called so far away.
Sadly missed by HUSBAND.

FESLER, WILLIAM—In loving memory of our dear father, who departed this life one year ago, Sept. 20, 1934.
It was sad indeed, the way you had to die, without a chance to say good-by.
Your spirit flew before we knew that you had from us gone;
If you had raised your dying head and bade us all a farewell
The grief would not have been so hard to those who loved you so well.
Sadly missed by CHILDREN.

IN MEMORIAM

FREY, VIRGINIA—In loving remembrance of Virginia Frey, who passed away five years ago, Sept. 21, 1930. Sadly missed by ALL WHO LOVED HER.

HEISLER, LAVINA MEYER—In memory of my mother, who departed this life Sept. 23, 1932.
Teach us to number our days that we may have understanding in our hearts.
"How much better is it to get wisdom than gold! and to get understanding rather to be chosen than silver!" Prov. 16:16.
WALTER JR., SISTER AND BROTHERS.

LICKISS, LLOYD R.—In loving memory of our darling boy who passed away at Great Lakes Training Station, Sept. 21, 1918:
"Thoughts return to days long past,
Time rolls on, but memories last."
FATHER AND MOTHER.

MEYER, PAULINE—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother who died Sept. 25, 1934.
It was sad, indeed, the way you had to die,
Without a chance to say good-by;
Your spirit flew before we knew that you from us had gone.
If you had raised your dying head and bade us all a farewell,
The blow would not have been so hard to us who loved you so well.
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

PLATZER, GEO. E.—In loving memory; departed Sept. 24, 1930.
ESTHER PLATZER.

POSLER, JOHN—In loving memory of our father, who passed away Sept. 21, 1934. Sadly missed by
WIFE, CHILDREN AND BROTHERS.

SABOROSCH, MARIE—In loving memory of our dear mother, who departed this life one year ago, Sept. 16, 1934.
It was sad indeed the way you had to die, without a chance to say good-by.
Your spirit flew before we knew that you from us had gone.
If you had raised your dying head and bade us all a farewell,
The grief would not have been so to those who loved you so well.
Sadly missed by CHILDREN.

SEYMOUR, BEULAH—In loving memories who died Sept. 23, 1929:
Deep in our hearts lie the picture of a loved one laid to rest,
In memories frame we shall keep because she was one of the best.
HER MOTHER AND SISTER.

URBAN, CHRISTINE H.—In loving memory of my dear wife and mother, who died Sept. 18, 1934.
September once again is here,
To us the saddest of the year
Because it took from us away
A dear one, just one year today.
Her loving heart is now at rest;
God took her home when He thought best.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND SON.

WARD, THOMAS J.—In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, who died Sept. 21, 1927.
Sadly missed by
CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

WOLCOTT, EDWARD E.—In loving memory of my dear husband, who passed away Sept. 21, 1933. Sadly missed by WIFE.

MR. AND MRS WILLIAM GAGE VON WEISE leaving the Church of St Michael and St George after their wedding. Sept 14 Mrs. von Weise was Miss Marjorie Dresser Boettler daughter of Mrs Orvis Boettler and Albert A Boettler

Muriel Kuhs Becomes Bride of John S. Soest

Sunken Gardens of Edward L. Kuhs Estate Provide Brilliant Scene for Wedding Service.

THE sunken garden of the Edward L. Kuhs estate on Spanish Lake road, ablaze with bright-hued autumn flowers, was the setting for the wedding yesterday afternoon of the Mr. Kuhs' daughter, Miss Muriel Margaret, to John Schaefer Soest, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Soest of Bellefontaine Farms.

More than 500 guests on the terraces watched the bridal procession move from the house and down a long flight of broad stone steps set in the natural hillside, to the floor of the garden. The bride's attendants, their gowns combining violet with ashes of roses, passed a goldfish pool in which fountains played, and a lily pond on which white swans floated, to an altar at the far end of the garden. They formed before a tall evergreen gateway, in front of which stood two great jars of blue delphinium flanking the satin prie-Dieu. A string orchestra seated near a waterfall at one side played the wedding music. The Rev. Otto Keinker of St. Stephen's Evangical Church read the service.

Mrs. Lester H. Kuhs, matron of honor for her sister-in-law, wore violet crystelle velvet with long full sleeves caught into a tight band at the wrists. The skirt fullness was drawn to the front, a new fashion note for fall. Clips jeweled in rose quartz held the bateau neck at each side. Mrs. Kuhs wore a halo hat of violet crystelle and carried coral and pink gladioli. The bridesmaids, Miss Margaret Bokern, Miss Katherine Fox and Miss Eloise Burg, were in ashes of roses velvet with contrasting amethyst clips, and halo hats to match their dresses. They carried violet and orchid tinted gladioli.

Miss Cartwright Becomes Bride of Robert L. Coe

Ceremony Performed at Central Presbyterian Church—Bride Wears Mothers' Wedding Gown.

MISS MARIELLA ROBERTSON CARTWRIGHT, daughter of Mrs. Hugh Francis Cartwright, 5649 Cabanne avenue, became the bride of Robert L. Coe, son of Mrs. Edith C. Coe, 5834 Westminster place, last evening in an 8 o'clock ceremony performed by the Rev. Theodore S. Smylie at Central Presbyterian Church. He read the service before an altar decorated with palms and gladioli and lighted by tall white tapers.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Charles Findlay Cartwright. She wore her mother's wedding gown, of satin, mellowed to a deep cream. Old rose point lace formed the bertha which accented the square neckline, and more of the lace was used as cuffs for the full elbow-length sleeves. The skirt extended into a circular train at the back, and was slashed at the left side in front with a cascading insert of rose point lace. The bride wore a face veil of tulle and a veil of heirloom duchesse lace, which was secured by a halo of rose point lace over the head and reached the train of her gown at the back. Her bridal bouquet was of lilies of the valley.

Miss Stella Cartwright, who served her sister as maid of honor, was gowned in bagheera cloth of aquamarine blue, fashioned on long slender lines and touching the floor all the way around. A band of gray fox fur bordered the hemline, and she wore a jacket of matching material, with a high cowl neckline. The sleeves of the short coat were full above the elbow and tight to the wrist, and it fastened at the back with covered buttons from the shoulders to the

Joan Pangman Betrothed To Francis A. Kuhn

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Pangman Make Announcement to Close Friends at Cocktail Party

A SMALL group of family friends were invited to the home of Mr, and Mrs. Cecil Carlisle Pangman, 4654 Pershing avenue, for cocktails late yesterday afternoon and then learned of the engagement of Mr. and Mrs. Pangman's daughter, Miss Joan, to Francis Alfred Kuhn, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. L. Kuhn, 7206 Kingsbury boulevard. The wedding will take place late in the winter.

Miss Pangman is a graduate of Mary Institute and later traveled in Europe, chaperoned by Mrs. Atwell T. Lincoln. After her debut at a reception a few seasons ago she became a member of the Junior League. She is a younger sister of Mrs. Edward Douglass Campbell, the former Miss Hope Pangman, who now lives in Montreal, and of Sewell Pangman. The family recently returned from Grand Haven, Mich., where Mr. Kuhn was a guest at their cottage.

The prospective bridegroom attended Washington University and was graduated from Amherst College with the class of 1927. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon. His sister, Miss Josephine, made her debut three years ago.

Guests at the party yesterday were served from an all-white buffet table decorated with white asters and chrysanthemums.

Muriel Kuhs Becomes Bride of John S. Soest

THE sunken garden of the Edward L. Kuhs estate on Spanish Lake road, ablaze with bright-hued autumn flowers, was the setting for the wedding yesterday afternoon of the Mr. Kuhs' daughter, Miss Muriel Margaret, to John Schaefer Soest, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Soest of Bellefontaine Farms.

More than 500 guests on the terraces watched the bridal procession move from the house and down a long flight of broad stone steps set in the natural hillside, to the floor of the garden. The bride's attendants, their gowns combining violet with ashes of roses, passed a goldfish pool in which fountains played, and a lily pond on which white swans floated, to an altar at the far end of the garden. They formed before a tall evergreen gateway, in front of which stood two great jars of blue delphinium flanking the satin prie-Dieu. A string orchestra seated near a waterfall at one side played the wedding music. The Rev. Otto Keinker of St. Stephen's Evangical Church read the service.

Mrs. Lester H. Kuhs, matron of honor for her sister-in-law, wore violet crystelle velvet with long full sleeves caught into a tight band at the wrists. The skirt fullness was drawn to the front, a new fashion note for fall. Clips jeweled in rose quartz held the bateau neck at each side. Mrs. Kuhs wore a halo hat of violet crystelle and carried coral and pink gladioli. The bridesmaids, Miss Margaret Bokern, Miss Katherine Fox and Miss Eloise Burg, were in ashes of roses velvet with contrasting amethyst clips, and halo hats to match their dresses. They carried violet and orchid tinted gladioli.

Early Fall Debut Parties

PARTY dates are rapidly being added to the debutante calendar for the season, which his majesty the Veiled Prophet will officially open Oct. 9.

Miss Phoebe Weed will make her debut at a tea which her mother, Mrs. Hugh H. C. Weed, will give at her home on Ridgewood road, Wednesday, Oct. 16, from 4 until 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

The following week Mr. and Mrs. Weed will give a small dance at the University Club for their daughter and a group of debutantes and their escorts. The party will take place Friday, Oct. 25.

Miss Irene Pettus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Pettus of the St. Louis Country Club grounds, will make her debut at a reception at her home Thursday, Oct. 31. Friday, Nov. 15, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Moulton, 26 Brentmoor, uncle and aunt of the debutante, will give a dinner dance in her honor at the St. Louis Country Club.

Miss Dorothy Grote, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Grote, 27 Windermere place, will be presented to society at a reception at home Nov. 15. Guests will be invited to call between 4 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

Sunday, Oct. 27, Mrs. Walter W.

Veiled Prophet's New Queen to Be Honor Guest at Supper Party

THE new Veiled Prophet Queen, whoever she may be, will, like her predecessors, be guest of honor at a supper party and dance following her coronation. This party, from its modest beginning with an informal group at the old St. Louis Club many years ago, has grown until in these days more than 1000 invitations are sent, and the space required covers the entire mezzanine floor of Hotel Jefferson. Each maid of honor to serve at the ball Oct. 9, will receive for herself and her escort, a card to the supper, and in addition, hundreds of other subjects, loyal to the bearded monarch for years, will make up table groups.

Adhering to custom, the first course of the supper is served before the Queen and her immediate court, the four special maids of honor and their escorts, make their entrance into the gold room, heralded by trumpets and in the glare of spotlights. They are to proceed down the length of the large room and will be seated as usual on a raised dais at the north end.

Several hundred guests will be accommodated in the crystal room near by, and there will be general dancing in the ivory room to the music of a well-known orchestra. While the party is under Hotel Jefferson management, the details are arranged by a committee appointed by the Veiled Prophet himself.

Last week special invitations were received by almost 100 women to serve as ladies of honor at the ball, and as such to form a part of the court of Love and Beauty which awaits, and later surrounds, the new queen. The entrance of these matrons marks the beginning of the ball, the first event of the social season. After they are seated, they are joined by the prophet's crewe, the maids of honor, the retiring queen, and finally by the prophet and his latest consort.

Many of the matrons of honor met at the foot of the steps by her father, who escorted her to the altar and gave her in marriage. Her gown was of ivory satin with a wide bateau neck of d'alencon lace and long sleeves, full to the elbow. The skirt was attached in an inverted point to a slightly full bodice. Her veil hung down from a coronet secured by orange blossoms. Lester H. Kuhs was best man, and Newell McKay, Edward G. Bischoff, William H. Killoren Jr., William Dougherty and Frank Viviano ushers.

After greeting their guests, the bridal party was seated for dinner at a long table on the veranda. Others were served on the high terraces overlooking the Missouri River and at small tables on the grounds. Amber and red floodlights played on wide rose beds at the north of the house. Mrs. Carl Soest, who assisted in receiving, wore royal blue chiffon with a matching picture hat, and orchids.

Mr. Soest gave his attendants watch chains and dress studs, and his bride gave her attendants black antelope bags, marked with their names in gold.

The bridal pair departed after the reception for an unannounced destination. They will live at 6625 Clayton road.

Out-of-town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. John O'Leary, parents of Mrs. Lester Kuhs; her sisters, Miss Katherine and Miss Dorothy Jane, and Miss Marybelle Myers, all of Moberly, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Bardes of Cincinnati, uncle and aunt of the bridegroom, who are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Dennig, 20 West Brentmoor; Mrs. Linda Schaefer, also an aunt of Mr. Soest, the guest of Miss Lulu Schaefer, 412 North Union boulevard, and Mrs. Ada Windisch, Cincinnati, and her daughter, Miss Jane, who are visiting Mrs. Edward G. Bischoff, 2 Forest Ridge.

waist. Miss Cartwright's arm bouquet was of chrysanthemums in coral shades.

Richard Coe, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and the ushers were Ralph Kraus, J. Marvin Kause, and Dr. William Lytton. Joseph and Norman Champ Jr. carried the ring to the altar.

The bride's mother was in gray chiffon, with which she wore a corsage of orchids, and Mrs. Coe was gowned in Dubonnet red velvet. Her flowers were gardenias.

There was no reception or bridal supper after the ceremony. Mr. Coe and his bride have departed on a wedding trip to an unannounced destination, and will return to St. Louis the middle of October.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and later attended the St. Louis School of Fine Arts. She made her debut several seasons ago when she served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball. She is a member of the Junior League, and on her return to the city will resume her duties as an assistant at the Open Door, book shop maintained by that organization.

Mr. Coe is a graduate of the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N. Y., and is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon. His father is Harry S. Coe, 1125 Claytonia terrace.

Mr. and Mrs. Grote recently returned from a trip to Canada and Bermuda.

Miss Marion Goodin to Wed R. W. Towne

THE engagement of Miss Marion Goodin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Y. Goodin, 3808 Greer avenue, and Robert William Towne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Towne, 3722 Cora avenue, was announced yesterday at a bridge luncheon given by Mrs. Goodin. Each guest received a shoulder corsage to which was attached a small card bearing the announcement. Miss Goodin attended Washington University and Northeastern Oklahoma Junior College. She is a member of Sigma Iota Chi sorority and a graduate of Harris Teachers' College. Mr. Towne is a graduate of Iowa State University.

Royal E. Paullette to Wed New Jersey Girl

MR. AND MRS. JOHN Y. ROBBINS of Montclair, N. J., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth F. Robbins, and Royal E. Paullette of Montclair, son of A. M. Paullette of Webster Groves and the late Mrs. Paullette.

The announcement was made at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Robbins at their home last night.

Miss Robbins is a graduate of Montclair High School, Sarah Lawrence College of Bronxville, N. Y., and Katharine Gibbs School, New York. Mr. Paullette was graduated from Webster Groves High School and from Washington University in 1932.

Welcome Inn to Have Horse Show Wednesday

THE program of the horse show which Welcome Inn will sponsor at the Arena Wednesday afternoon as part of the activities of American Legion Convention week, has been announced by Mrs. Eberhard Anheuser, general chairman. It will open with a fox hunt, in which 50 pairs of Bridlespur Hunt Club's hounds will follow a scent around a devious course laid on the Arena floor. Jack Long as huntsman and Mrs. Elmer Kerckhoff as whipper-in will follow them wearing traditional costumes.

Cleveland's Legionnaire mounted police, world's champion equestrian team, will then present intricate platoon formations, relay races and a melee in which masked riders will tilt.

The next event will be an exhibition of vehicles of all sorts drawn by horses fro mlocal stables. The performance will close with the Indian dances by Chief White Wing and his tribe of Winnebago Indians.

They will induct into the tribe as Chief Chee-Oo-Ga (Wigwam Maker), former Mayor Henry W. Kiel, who is in charge of the entire show. Mrs. Elmer Kerckhoff is horse show chairman, and Chief of Police John J. McCarthy is handling the drill team exhibition.

WE HAVE just learned the full details of Frank Schoonmaker's wine-buying trip abroad—he traveled, it appears, 5000 miles in a Ford and tasted 1300 wines. This, as nearly as we can figure it, makes a wine every 3.85 miles. The physical results of this vinous Odyssey are beginning to show up in New York—1933 Moselles which Frank bought (being the first American buyer to do so since the war) at the spring wine auction in Trier; chateau bottled clarets that start at $12 a case, and a number of rather unusual wines such as vins roses, champagnes natures and old Vouvrays, which people often say won't ship, but which, as it happens, did. In our opinion there has been far too much talk these last few months of ante-diluvian vintages — "old wine, old friends" has always seemed to us a proverb less sound than the Burgundian "jeunes vins, jeunes femmes," and we are of the school that believes that at least a few good wines have been made since the war. Bates & Schoonmaker, which Frank directs, with his brother-in-law, Ted Bates, has specialized for a change in the young, fresh and pleasant little wines which a person can afford to drink seven nights a week, and the firm actually lists 39 different bottles at $1.50 or under. Incidentally the September "Architectural Forum" devotes eight pages to the little Bates & Schoonmaker office on Forty-second Street. These offices, appropriately, consist mostly of a tasting room, and a good number of the town's Feinschmecker have been dropping in, now that it is once more cool enough to taste red wine, to talk nostalgically of the happy days when there were 25 francs in a dollar and Burgundy could be had in Dijon for a song. It all seems to us to point to a very real and highly desirable decline in the chi-chi which has surrounded wine buying and drinking since repeal and may do the cause of sound but simple dining no end of good.

With us a favorite although fast-vanishing type is the fastidious old codger who insists on wearing gloves on trains, and we saw him in all his glory the other evening on the last afternoon express coming down from Boston. At Providence a large and noisy posse of horse persons, fresh from the race-track and betting machines at Narragansett, piled aboard, filling the club car with clamor, smoke and a reek of rye, and at Wickford Junction the major arrived, heralded by two chauffeurs and a porter, tottering under loads of luggage and diminutive parcels carefully wrapped with carrier handles. The major had been to a wedding. He was immaculate in a curly pearl-gray Homburg, striped trousers of a geometrical precision, a poodle coat, a wing collar and stiff bow tie. His lady dripped silver fox, pearls and condescension. They sat tentatively on the edges of their chairs and eyed their neighbors with bold disapproval. They conducted a low-voiced harangue with a respectful conductor, but there were no other chairs and they settled down to endure it. The major fixed the Homburg at an angle, wiped his waxed white mustaches with a cambric handkerchief as big as a bedsheet and donned a pair of white buckskin gloves. From that moment until the train drew into Grand Central, four hours later, his spine never touched the green plush of the Pullman seat, nor did he cease to glare with unqualified disapprobation at a fat tout arrayed in diamonds and green tweeds in the corner. It was war to the hilt and no compromise. We need more old warriors like him, and we give you the major—and the man.

A tale is going the rounds of a nice youth on his way back to college not a million miles from New Haven Green who stopped off in the big city for a last fling at vacation joys. During the afternoon he contrived to absorb so much Manhattan atmosphere that his friends took him back to their hotel room and laid him on his side in a cool, dark place, with a damp rag over his forehead, and as further precautions against his getting into trouble they took away his clothes and locked him in, giving a careful account of their actions to the floor clerk and cautioning her against allowing him to summon bellboys for his release. It was best for all concerned, they said, if he stayed right where he was and nobody paid any attention to him.

An hour or so later the youth revived sufficiently to feel like rejoining the party. He was grieved at his friends for locking him in and vexed by his lack of attire. But he was indignant when no hotel servants would come to his telephoned cries for comfort and assistance and, placing a chair in front of the door, he assayed escape through the transom. Somehow he managed to close the transom on his emerging neck, and in the course of his subsequent struggles he kicked the chair from under his feet. He was slowly strangling, and his blackening face stared voicelessly down on more or less terrified hotel guests passing in the corridor, who kept telling the floor clerk there was something wrong in 414. She said she knew all about it and it was all right, so the guests departed reassured and the young man might have been pushing up daisies but for a knowing bell captain who saw his plight and set about with no more ado to rescue him. It was all very well to get a master key, but he couldn't open the door with the young man hanging against it from the inside, so the bell captain was lowered perilously from the room above and made his entry through the window. They were pouring brandy down the youth's throat when he came to. "Take it away," he screamed, "I'm through with the stuff forever."

As Baird Leonard says, it takes all sorts to make New York, but the latest hero of the Coq Rouge-Lombardy Cafe crowd is something fit to stop a clock. A wandering merry-andrew discovered him working in a Hollywood filling station and brought him East, only stopping to show him off at Cleveland, as the brightest find of the summer. Before the filling station interlude he had been a lad of all work somewhere in Alaska, and he is now known as the Malamute Arbiter of Elegances. Fresh from parts where eating with anything but a knife is viewed as a little decadent, he is willing, on the drop of a hat, to instruct private chefs in the preparation of souffles or to pronounce bogus almost any painting in a drawing room. Before a convulsed group of bright folk he recently delivered a scathing denunciation of one of the most celebrated valets in private service who had packed his papier-mache suitcase after a week end and now is in wide demand for his quite undoubted talents. He is invited everywhere and his opinions are solicited on the service of wine, the arrangement of flowers and the choice of shirts and cravats and his pronouncements repeated breathlessly all over town. People giving cocktail parties feel they can't get along without the Malamute and he threatens to achieve the proportions of Mike Romanoff in his days of palmiest fraudulence.

Social Events in Washington

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.

CUBAN AMBASSADOR DON GILLERMOR PATTERSON is planning a reception Oct. 10, to celebrate the completion of the newly landscaped Embassy gardens. The Ambassador's daughters, Zoe and Olga Patterson, had a hand in the designing of the gardens. An orchestra will be placed in an overhanging balcony and the fountain, which stands in the center of the garden between rows of trees, will be playing.

Some time in October Vice-Admiral Sid Matthew Best and the officers of H. M. S. York, British cruiser, of the Bermuda squadron, which has been cruising off the New England coast, will arrive in Washington. By that time the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, will have returned from England, and presumably Lady Lindsay will be back from Bar Harbor, where she has been spending the summer.

Tea for Volunteer Workers for Deaf

Sims-Baum

THE wedding of Mrs. Ada Baum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Ward of Indianola, Ill., and Jewel Sims, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Sims, 5875 Washington avenue, took place last Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Lindburg, in Decatur, Ill.

White clematis and candles decorated the improvised altar. The bride wore an afternoon ensemble of church blue velvet, and carried an arm bouquet of white roses and steevia. Her matron of honor and only attendant, Mrs. Catherine Morrison of Danville, Ill., was gowned in black velvet, with which she wore yellow tea roses.

William J. Sims served his brother as best man.

The ceremony was followed by a buffet supper, after which Mr. Sims and his bride departed on a two-week honeymoon in the North. On their return they will make their home in Springfield, Ill.

Poteet-Wythe

Miss Wilma Wythe, daughter of Mrs. C. L. Wythe, 3459 Louisiana avenue, and Gene Poteet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Poteet, 3741 Michigan avenue, were married Wednesday in Dallas, Tex., where Mr. Poteet is engaged in business. Miss Wythe left here by plane Tuesday. Mr. Poteet and his bride will return to St. Louis later in the fall, and will live with her mother. The bride is a member of Omega Sigma sorority.

Holt-Miller

Mr. and Mrs. W. Harley Miller, 1336 Midland drive, University City, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lorraine I. Miller, and Robert McDonnell Holt of Columbia, Mo., son of Mrs. Irvin B. Holt, 1425 Burd avenue. The news was told yesterday at a luncheon for 12 guests of the prospective bride at the home of Mrs. W. C. Guse of Alton, Ill. No date for the wedding was announced.

Riedel-Gates

Mrs. Mary Ellen Gates of Minneapolis will become the bride of Theodore W. Riedel of St. Louis Oct. 14. Mr. Riedel, who has been in Minneapolis for three years, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Riedel, 6245 San Bonita avenue, who will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary on the day of their son's marriage.

The Rev. George H. Tolley will perform the ceremony. Mr. Riedel is a graduate of Washington University and a member of Delta Sigma Pi fraternity. He and his bride will live in Minneapolis on their return from a honeymoon.

The wedding date will be announced at a party during the Christmas holidays.

Holtgrewe-Dittmeier

The marriage of Miss Rose Regina Dittmeier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Dittmeier Sr., 4929 Wabada avenue, and Frederick E. Holtgrewe, son of Mrs. Henry Holtgrewe, 4249 Kossuth avenue, took place Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock at the Blessed Sacrament Church, the Rev. John Fecter officiating. The sanctuary of the church was banked with palms, gladioli and white chrysanthemums. Candelabra were on the altar.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white brocaded velvet dress made on princesse lines. Her tulle veil was arranged in a coronet and she carried a prayer book with a shower of lilies of the valley and gardenias. Miss Marcella Dittmeier, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. She wore a rust-colored velvet dress and carried yellow chrysanthemums. The junior bridesmaids, Miss Gloria Mae Madden and Miss Dorothy Celeste Manewal, wore pale yellow taffeta dresses. They carried old-fashioned nosegays.

Frank L. Dittmeier Jr., brother of the bride, was best man and the ushers were Jack Allen and Harry Holtgrewe, brother of the bridegroom.

A breakfast for 60 guests at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Holtgrewe left for Denver for a two week's honeymoon and will live in Normandy on their return.

MRS. VANDERBILT AND SISTER SHOW NEW STYLES AT KLINE'S

Morgan Twins in St. Louis on Tour With Models of Their Own Creation.

The boyish figure which demands taut lines in evening and afternoon garments is definitely out, according to Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt and her twin sister, Thelma, Lady Furness, who were in St. Louis last week to show models of their own creation at Kline's.

Draping is a womanly feature in clothes, they say, and with this in mind they have created gowns and wraps for evening wear and afternoon dresses that are distinctly feminine. There were no sports clothes or coats in the showing. Front and side drapes, triangular trains and rhinestone trims in sunburst effects were featured in the evening gowns. Rich materials such as lame, satins, web lace and cellophane velvet were used. The colors were chiefly black and white, and the lame ranged from pale gold to a richer sienna.

Wraps followed the lines of the evening gowns and were fitted, with flaring skirts. Some models showed trains. Each evening gown had its accompanying petticoat which harmonized with the garment, being either of pleated chiffon or gold shot lace. No particular effort was made to strive for the ultra-modern in line or material. Poiret twill and soutache braid as trims, materials which had a vogue some years ago, were used in a rather simple afternoon dress.

Mrs. Vanderbilt and Lady Furness are on tour, showing garments of their own creation. They are associates of Sonia of New York and have been designing gowns for several years.

St. Louis U. Night Courses.

Registration for night courses at St. Louis University School of Commerce and Finance will start tomorrow and continue through Friday in the School of Commerce and Finance Building, 3672 Lindell boulevard. College Sororities And Fraternities

Panhellenic

ONE of the most ambitious alumnae programs to be announced this fall is that of the members of Pi Beta Phi who are to sponsor a series of lectures by speakers of international reputation to raise funds for the sorority's Settlement School in Gattlinburg, Tenn. The first lecture scheduled for late in November will be a talk by Mark Sullivan, publicist. In January, the sorority will bring to St. Louis the Countess Irina Skariatina of the Russian nobility, who will speak on the political history of her native country. The third lecture will be given in March by Capt. John Noel, whose subject will be "The Cashmere Valley." Mrs. Kenneth Baker, alumnae president, has appointed Mrs. Charles H. Spoehrer general chairman. Mrs. Gilbert Turner will be in charge of ticket sales; Mrs. Webb Kammerer, mailing lists; Mrs. George M. Hagee, patronesses; Mrs. Earl Thomas, printing, and Mrs. Vincent M. Carroll, general arrangements.

Rushing lists at Washington University this season include the names of 625 men, almost 100 more than last year. The rush period ends today with pledging at the fraternity houses this evening. The preferential parties of the sororities were given yesterday and the signed preferential bids are to be turned in by the rushees at the College Club before 3 o'clock this afternoon. Each sorority will get the names of the rushees who have accepted bids from the office of the Dean of Women Thursday morning and bids will be delivered in person that day. Formal pledging will be held Thursday evening. There were 215 names on the lists for the last rush parties, about 65 more than last year.

Mrs. Clark P. Fiske, 318 North Woodlawn avenue, Kirkwood, will give a luncheon for the alumnae of Kappa Kappa Gamma at her home Friday.

Members of Alpha XI Delta who graduated in June will be guests of the alumnae chapter of the sorority at a meeting to be held tomorrow evening at the home of Miss Frances Wolf, 6922 Kingsbury boulevard. Miss Lorraine Pope is chairman of hospitality.

Dolls to be sent to the Maine Seacoast Mission supported by Sigma Kappa will be dressed at a meeting of the alumnae chapter of the sorority tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. W. Ayers, 307 Fairlawn avenue, Webster Groves. The business meeting will include discussion of the year's program.

A tea for the presidents of all the sorority and fraternity mothers' clubs to meet the executive and advisory boards of the Council of Mothers' clubs, will be given by the president of the Council, Mrs. C. R. Hamilton, Wednesday afternoon at her home, 7179 Cambridge avenue, University City. Mrs. George R. Throop and Mrs. George W. Lamke, who was president last year, will serve at the tea table. At a meeting of the Council Board preceding the tea, the program for the first meeting of the Council on Oct. 29, will be presented for discussion.

The Alpha Chi Omega Mothers' Club will meet tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. W. Raymond Stobie, 21 South Maple avenue, Webster Groves. The assisting hostess will be Mrs. W. R. Rhodes.

The fall activities of the Sigma Phi Epsilon Mothers' Club will begin tomorrow at a meeting to be held at the chapter house, 6152 Pershing avenue, at 1:45 p. m. The business session will be followed by a tea. The newly-elected president, Mrs. William P. Maxeiner, will preside.

The Delta Gamma Mothers' Club will have an all-day meeting Friday at the home of Mrs. J. A. Eberle, 221 Joy avenue, Webster Groves. The business session be after luncheon.

Many Parties Arranged for Legion Auxiliary

Fidac Breakfast at Missouri Athletic Association Today—Pages' Tea and Past Presidents' Supper at Coronado Hotel This Evening.

PLANS have been completed for a large number of social affairs to be given this week for the American Legion Auxiliary officers and members, in St. Louis, for the national convention of the American Legion. Today's calendar of events is filled with parties, the first to be a Fidac breakfast at noon at the Missouri Athletic Association. Mrs. Joseph H. Thompson, national chairman and American vice-president, Fidac Auxiliary, and Mrs. E. B. Miller, local chairman have charge of the affair. The tables will be decorated with red and yellow roses, the flowers at the speakers' table to be intermingled with forget-me-nots, the Belgium national flower. The program consists of musical numbers and short addresses. The favors will be wrapped in yellow and black, Belgium's national colors, and behind the speakers' table will be the American and Belgium flags and a picture of the King and Queen of the Belgians.

At 4 p. m. the pages' tea will be held at Hotel Coronado followed by rehearsal of pages at Moolah Temple. Mrs. F. C. Barnes, national chairman, and Mrs. Meyer Silver, local chairman, have charge of the arrangements. Blue and yellow flowers will decorte the tea table and corsages will be presented to the national officers and special souvenirs will be given the pages. There will be music during the tea hour.

The past presidents' supper will be held at 6:30 p. m. in the crystal room of Hotel Coronado today with Mrs. Eliza London Shepard, California, national chairman; Mrs L. N. Goessy, Kansas City convention chairman, and Mrs. John J. Barada, local chairman, in charge. All former state presidents will be seated at tables adorned with blue and gold flowers. At 7 o'clock this evening the department secretaries' dinner will be held at Hotel Coronado. Mrs. C. R. Anderson is chairman for this party. There will be a burlesque debate by Miss Cora Brown, secretary, Department of Wisconsin, and Mrs. Lee E. Moore, secretary, Department of Ohio. Mixed flowers will decorate the tables which will be lighted by blue and gold candles in candelabra.

At 9:30 o'clock tonight a reception for Mrs. Albin Charles Carlson, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, and national officers, in the crystal room of Hotel Jefferson. Mrs. C. W. Drakesmith is the local chairman in charge of arrangements. The stage will be decorated with palms and ferns with a lattice background covered with smilax and honeysuckle. A stringed orchestra will play during the reception and the Minnesota Glee Club will sing.

Other partise have been arranged for the entertainment of the visitors during the week.

Morse School Alumni Meeting.

Morse School alumni will hold their first regular meeting of the season Sunday afternoon, Sept. 29, at 2:45 o'clock, in the Morse School Studio, Boyle avenue and Olive street. There will be a business meeting and songs by Miss Virginia Irene Miller and Miss Lucille Floetman, with Miss Miller at the piano. Robert Bakewell will discuss drama.

Music Club to Give Supper.

The faculty of the Community Music School Foundation, of which Mrs. Oscar Johnson is president, will entertain the advisory board at a buffet supper Tuesday evening at the offices, 511 North Taylor avenue.

HEIR TO AUTO FORTUNE PLAYS ENGLISH SQUIRE

Horace Dodge, Detroit, in St. Leonard's Castle, Windsor, Is Neighbor to King.

By the Associated Press.

WINDSOR, England, Sept. 21.—Living in baronial style, and neighbor to the King of England is Horace E. Dodge, son of the Detroit automobile manufacturer, heir to a fortune and present owner of one of England's stately homes, St. Leonard's castle, Windsor.

Dodge, whose age is given here at 32, bought the castle and its surrounding estate stretching almost to fashionable Ascot five years ago. It is one of the largest in the district and its value is rapidly increasing.

Dodge said he was offered $125,000 for the rent of it for Ascot week.

The castle, an irregular old red brick building, originally belonged to the British crown. It was sold years ago when the state took over control of the real estate and lands previously inherited by the King as personal possessions. An underground passage is supposed to connect with the royal demesne of Windsor castle. Dodge said his gardener unearthed some time ago a broken-down passage in the grounds. The passage was full of water.

Tunnel to Windsor.

"I'm going to have that water pumped out, and maybe I'll be able to call on the King," Dodge said.

The castle, of course, would not be complete without its ghosts. Dodge vouches he has seen them, but says they don't worry him. Actually, he enjoys telling visitors how guests have been scared by his shadowy night walkers.

Though his guests may have their worries at night, Dodge sees to it that they are well provided for in the day time. They may play golf on his course or tennis on his courts. There are acres of grounds, well wooded and shady, if they want to walk.

Inside the house there is a well-stocked, modern bar. Should the guests wish to read there is a library at their disposal and indoor games for wet days.

An Evening at Home.

With his shock of tousled hair over his eyes, his large head and easy gait, Dodge looks the part of a country squire. He always has guests to whose wants a large staff discreetly attends. Luncheon and dinner are served in a stately paneled dining room. The room is dimly lighted at night and footmen silently bring round the dishes on silver salvers while Dodge makes hot toast in an electric toaster that his mother, Mrs. Hugh Dillman, had fixed to the table on one of her visits.

The wines are of the best vintage, and the coffee is of the choicest, while Dodge's English cook knows how to prepare good bean soup.

Between times, the company usually spends considerable time motoring around the countryside. Dodge has two cars for the use of his guests, and his secretary, Miss Sarah Helmick of Detroit, has another.

In the evenings after dinner bridge is a frequent diversion, while the party sometimes drives the three miles into Windsor to go to the movies.

King Praised His Fireworks.

Dodge is proud of having King George and Queen Mary as his near neighbors. He tells the story of how he attracted their interested attention with his $2500 fireworks display in celebration of July 4.

A member of his staff is on friendly terms with the head valet at Windsor Castle, so the story goes. The royal head valet told his St. Leonard's colleague that the King and Queen remarked on the beauty of Dodge's bursting rockets as they sat looking out of the window after dinner on July 4.

"I wonder what those are about," King George is said to have remarked. "I do not know," Queen Mary replied, "but they are certainly very striking."

WRIT TO KEEP HOWARD CHILDREN IN ST. LOUIS

Son of the Late Steel Man Gets Temporary Order; Trying to Modify Divorce.

Motion to modify the divorce decree of Mrs. Clarence H. Howard Jr., granted last May 22, was continued by Circuit Judge Mueller at Clayton yesterday to next Saturday.

Howard, son of the millionaire steel manufacturer, who died in 1931, obtained a temporary restraining order prohibiting Mrs. Howard from taking their children, Shirley Claire, 8 years old, and Marilyn Ann, 6, from the city or county without an order of court. After obtaining the order, Howard turned the childretn over to the mother, who had filed a motion asking that they be returned under a stipulation of the divorce decree. Her motion was also set for hearing next Saturday.

The custody of the children was awarded Mrs. Howard in the divorce decree, with the stipulation that they would spend their summer and Christmas vacations with their father. Judge Mueller told a Post-Dispatch reporter that Howard's motion expressed concern that Mrs. Howar dproposed taking the children t oNew Jersey. The girls rejoined their mother at Hotel Coronad oyesterday.

The Howards were married in 1924. Mrs. Howard was formerly Miss Elvira Royle of Mount Holly, N. J.

NEW GIFTS TO FATHER DEMPSEY

"Splendid Response," but Total Is Short of Campaign Goal.

Eleven contributions of not less than $50 each for support of Father Dempsey's charities were reported yesterday by Samuel W. Fordyce, chairman of the annual campaign for funds.

"The first two weeks of the campaign have brought splendid response," said Fordyce, "but the total received is far short of the amount needed to maintain the charities for another year." He pointed out that Father Dempsey received no aid from other sources. Campaign headquarters are in room 803, 1218 Olive street.

KSD to Cover Legion Parades and Convention

New Mobile Pick-up Unit to Be Used—Singing of "Star-Spangled Banner" by Mme. Schumann-Heink Tomorrow Morning—Clem McCarthy and Edwin C. Lewis to Handle Louis-Baer Fight Broadcast on KSD Next Tuesday Night.

KSD will cover the American Legion parades and convention this week, with microphones at strategic points along the route of the processions and in the Municipal Auditorium. Its new mobile pick-up unit will be in operation, ready for use whenever it is impossible to place microphones to the best advantage.

A regular schedule of Legion broadcasts by KSD has been arranged, and this will be supplemented by broadcasts of special features when and as they develop. The principal features covered will be the opening of the convention, the "Forty and Eight" parade, the Legion parade, the Thursday afternoon session of the convention and interviews with visitors of note.

KSD'S formal schedule for the Legion broadcasts includes:

From 10:30 to 11 o'clock tomorrow morning—calling to order of the Legion convention by Frank Belgrano, national commander; invocation by the national chaplain, the Rev. Park W. Huntington; advancement of the colors; singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink; 2 to 2:15 p. m., interviews with distinguished visitors; 4:45 to 5 p. m., interviews and highlights; 8:30 to 9 p. m., description of the "Forty and Eight" parade.

For the description of the parade, KSD will have its new mobile ultra short wave transmitter in the parade and microphones on the second floor corner of the Post-Dispatch building and at the Municipal Auditorium.

Tuesday's schedule will include: 10 to 11:15 a. m., description of the Legion parade from KSD's short wave transmitter and microphones at strategic points; 2 to 3 p. m., description of the parade and interviews with distinguished visitors; 4 to 5 p. m., the parade and highlights.

Wednesday KSD has definitely set aside the periods from 2 to 2:15 and 5:30 to 5:45 for interviews. Arrangements also have been made for broadcasting of special events during the day.

Thursday KSD will cover the Legion convention on a definite schedule from 1:30 to 1:45 and 2 to 3 p. m., and will be prepared for broadcasting happenings of importance on the floor of the convention. Microphones will be placed in readiness to cover these.

The Legion memorial services, with the singing by Mme. Schumann-Heink of "There Is No Death," will be broadcast by the WJZ network at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow. The report of the national commander will be broadcast by the WJZ net at 1 p. m. tomorrow.

Heavyweight Fight Broadcast Plans.

EDWIN C. HILL, the radio news commentator, has been engaged to describe the crowd, the color and sidelights of the Joe Louis-Max Baer heavyweight fight which will be broadcast over KSD and KWK at 8 o'clock Tuesday night. He is to talk while the men are getting into the ring and between the rounds.

Engineers have been busy for days laying lines, preparing to place microphones where they will best pick up the noise of the crowds, and figuring the accoustics of the stadium where the fight will be held. The Sigmund Romberg program has been canceled for the one night to clear the way for the fight broadcast, and if necessary, other regular WEAF and WJZ networks will be dropped.

Clem McCarthy, the turf expert, has been selected as the announcer to give the blow-by-blow story of the fight. McCarthy's name in radio has been almost wholly associated with horse racing. He is widely known among listeners for his Kentucky Derby broadcasts.

Indications are that this broadcast will attract one of the largest audiences of listeners in the history of radio.

Change in Trio For Community Forum.

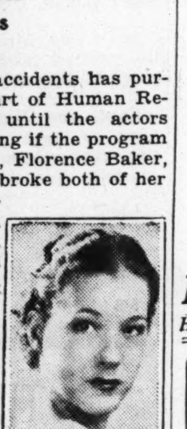
LOUIS DRUZINSKY will replace Francis Jones as violinist in the trio for the Community Forum on KSD at 4:30 this afternoon. The other members of the trio will be Pasquale de Conto, 'cellist, and Mario Silva, pianist. . . . Marie Golub's program at 5:15 p. m. today on KSD will include "Un Peu d'Amore," Kreisler's "The Old Refrain," and "I'm in the Mood for Love." . . .

Helena Marno will feature Friml's "I Like You Dear" and "O, Sole Mio" in her recital at 1:30 tomorrow on KSD, Bizet's "La Fille di Cadix" and "Maria, Mari," at the same time Wednesday, and the Shadow Song from Meyerbeer's opera, "Dinorah," at 3:45 Saturday. . . . Paulette and Renee have programmed "Moonbeams Shining" from "The Red Mill," a medley of Southern songs, "Tonight in Vienna" and an aria from 'Cavalleria Rusticana" at 2:45 today on KSD.

Allen Clarke and Luise Heimueller have programmed for their Romance in the Air program at 1:30 Friday, "Only a Rose," "Valse Huguette," "Song of the Vagabonds" and "Love Me Tonight." . . .

A new Where to Go Tonight program is scheduled on KSD at 5:55 p. m. Wednesdays, 5:50 Thursdays and Fridays, 5:40 Saturdays and 5:10 Sundays. . . . A new KSD 15-minute program, called the All-Star Roundup, is set for 12 noon Tuesdays and Saturdays. . . . A preview of programs coming on KSD is broadcast at 5:10 p. m. daily Monday through Friday. . . .

Death of Actress Climax of Series Of Misfortunes.



Janet Lee.

A SERIES of accidents has pursued the Court of Human Relations cast until the actors are really wondering if the program is "jinxed." First, Florence Baker, one of the actors, broke both of her legs in an automobile accident. On the program, she is the official "screamer," but this time, she says, she forgot all about screaming. Then Helen Spring slipped in a bath tub, injured her spine, and appeared for a broadcast in a cast. Next, Allyn Josslyn broke his right leg, and came hobbling on crutches to the studio. A few days later Ed Lewis of the show fell out of an auto and hurt his right leg so badly that he, too, appeared on crutches. Thereupon, William Sweets, the director, declared that the studio must be "jinxed" and demanded and got another. The following week Fred Barron, he of the gruff voice, bending forward, struck his nose so violently against a microphone that he broke it. Sweets moved the performance to another studio, whereupon Chester Stratton got himself hit by a freight train and suffered severe leg injuries, and Santos Ortegas walked into the studio swathed in bandages as the result of a motor crash. When the show was shifted from the CBS chain to the WEAF net and KSD, Sweets figured that his trouble should be over. Then Janet Lee, on the very eve of being promoted to the leading role in the broadcast of Friday, Sept. 13, fell ill of pneumonia. Two days later this 19-year-old girl who appeared to be about to become one of radio's finest actors, died.

Nations in Race For Short Waves World Coverage

Germany Planning to Lead in Efforts to Win Interest of Listeners and Make Programs on High Frequencies Rivals of Network Broadcasts.

ANNOUNCEMENT that by next year Germany will have the most powerful and best equipped short wave broadcasting center in the world is only one indication of plans that bid fair eventually to make reception of foreign programs of as much moment to American listeners as is reception today of programs on the networks and local stations.

England has announced that two new super-power short wave stations soon will be erected at Daventry. France is preparing greatly to enlarge its system of broadcasting short wave programs to the world. Spain plans to build a much more powerful station to replace EAQ at Madrid. Russia is progressing on its project for giant short wave station. Japan is stepping up the power of its transmitters in pursuance of its plans to acquaint the world by short wave with its music, entertainers and social and economic conditions in Nippon. A powerful new station in the Hawaiian Islands soon will be broadcasting on 11,830 and 15,230 kilocycles. The Dutch Government has 80,000-watt PLV and 40,000-watt PLE in Java. Regular programs planned for reception in this country and Canada will be broadcast from the new station that Poland expects to have operating soon.

The steady improvement in all-wave radio sets, the increase in power of foreign short wave stations that will tend to mitigate the effects of static, and the growing use in this country of special aerials that nullify the effects of local static and interference, are expected to be factors in more general tuning to stations abroad.

CRCX, at Bowanville, Can., on 6090 kc., is carrying all programs broadcast from 5:30 to 10:30 p. m. by the Canadian Radio Commission.

"Puritan Lullaby," a musical comedy based on Longfellow's "The Courtship of Miles Standish," will be broadcast at 12:45 noon from London on the 19, 25 or 31-meter bands.

W2XAF, Schenectady, N. Y., now broadcasts from 5:30 to 11 p. m., carrying many NBC network programs.

Famous Artists, And Entertainers In Sunday Matinees

OUTSTANDING artists and entertainers have been engaged for a new weekly Sunday matinee program that will be broadcast at 12 noon, starting Sept. 29. The program will be an hour long, and at times will come from foreign countries and from ships at sea. Kirsten Flagstad, Lauritz Melchior, Lotte Lehman, Giovanni Martinelli and Helen Jepson, all of the Metropolitan Opera, have agreed to sing on the programs. The Boston and Philadelphia Symphony Orchestras have been signed, as well as Albert Spalding, the violinist, and Conrad Thibault, the radio baritone.

In addition, the programs will feature stage, screen and radio personalities, Paul Whiteman and Rudy Vallee and their orchestras, Fats Waller, the organist, and the dance orchestras of Ray Noble, Richard Himber, Benny Goodman, Enric Madriguera, Jan Garber, Jolly Coburn and Xavier Cugat. John B. Kennedy will be the master of ceremonies.

Here and There on the Air

Final America's Hour Program Today—British Broadcasting Corporation Producer Imported to Direct Network Programs—Father Coughlin's Plans—Richard Crooks to Sing on World Peaceway's Program.

By J. L. S.

BAINBRIDGE COLBY will be the principal speaker and Richard Crooks, the Metropolitan Opera tenor, the soloist, in the second World Peaceways broadcast, at 7:30 Thursday night on the CBS net and KMOX. The play to be performed will be Sidney Howard's "Paths of Glory," based on Humphrey Cobb's book. . . . Ethel Barrymore will play the "lead" in "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary" in the Radio Theater at 7 p. m. tomorrow. This comedy by St. John Ervine, the British critic and playwright, was produced by David Belasco in 1923 with Minnie Maddern Fiske as the star. . . .

Lois Long, a magazine columnist, will direct a 60-minute program, designed to appeal especially to women interested in art, music, literature, fashions and society and scheduled at 1 p. m. Tuesdays on the CBS net. She will feature writers of best sellers, actresses, night club entertainers and celebrities of the day. Wark Warnow will lead the orchestra . . . Gertrude Niessen, who won the favor of Muny Opera audiences this summer and is singing in a Chicago night club, is billed on the Welcome Valley program at 6:30 Tuesday night on KWK. . . . James Melton, the tenor, is expected to star in several of the Friday night Light Opera Hour productions next month. . . .

Father Coughlin Back on Air Nov. 3.

FATHER CHARLES E. COUGHLIN is preparing to resume his broadcasting on Sunday afternoons Nov. 3 on a larger number of stations than last year. He is negotiating for extension of his network to the Pacific Coast. His contracts for station time, under which he pays full rates, call for 26 hour-long Sunday broadcasts. He also has an option to extend the contract to 52 weeks because of the possibility that he may desire to remain on the air throughout next summer and the fall of 1936 for the political conventions and the Presidential election. . . .

She has not been fortunate in her married life and as "The New Penny" opens she is faced with the problem of an independent existence in a community which clings to the belief that a woman's only career should be her home. The town rich woman and social leader who interests herself in charity only for publicity and prestige, the kindly country doctor, the local captain of industry, who is swollen with his own importance, the bright but somewhat unscrupulous young man who returns to Riverdale after an absence of several years, and the faithful family retainer, are among the familiar characters on Penelope's path to a new existence.

Trade Notes

New Philco Sets Built To Be Musical Instruments.

THE new 1936 Philco radio sets are designed first of all to be musical instruments, according to the Artophone Corporation, the distributer. Each model in the line, they state, is built with that idea in mind, from the first tube to the speaker and cabinet. The table models as well as the cabinet sets are designed on the principle that no matter how powerful or how great a distance getter a set may be, it must do everything with good tone.

In several models, Philco carries tone to exceptional high fidelity limits. Among these is the 118X, which has a large cabinet, inclined sounding board, sound diffusers to insure wide spreading of the higher tones in a room, a high fidelity 15-watt audio system, accoustic clarifiers to preserve tonal purity, and a special two-in-one high fidelity speaker. In addition, there is automatic volume control, tone control and automatic bass compensation that keeps the low notes in true proportion when volume is turned down.

Another model, the 680X, has all the features of the 118X, but has two speakers—one for the low notes, another for the higher notes and harmonics that make radio sound natural—as well as a treble fidelity control to widen the high note range, and a bass fidelity control to adjust the bass response according to station and program.

Both the 118X and 680X have a control by which the selectivity of the sets may be sharpened for distance reception or broadened for reception of music on local or other nearby stations.

The new Philco line has a wide variety of Baby Grand models, cabinet sets with varying number of tubes, battery sets, AC-DC sets and five automobile sets designed for distance range as well as tone quality.

There are also period models with specially styled cabinet, and radio-phonographs built use of standard or long-playing records.

Most of the new Philcos are of the full all-wave type, covering American broadcast band, foreign and American short wave broadcasting, police band, aircraft, ship and amateur bands. Also, quite a number of them cover the Government weather forecasts.

A special all-wave aerial and built-in aerial selector are designed to reduce to a minimum man-made static and interference.

Service Men Attend RCA-Victor Meeting.

More than 250 service men attended a meeting Tuesday evening held by the Aeolian Co. of Missouri, the RCA-Victor distributor, at Hotel Jefferson. Features of the new RCA-Victor radio sets for 1936, and measures to co-operate with service men and dealers taken by RCA-Victor and the Aeolian Co., were explained, Harry B. Levy of the Aeolian Co., was in charge of the meeting, and among the speakers was H. W. Pitzer, an engineer from the RCA-Victor factories at Camden, N. J.

Among the new set features discussed were the "magic brain" and the "magic eye." The "magic eye" is an electrical optic on the set panel that permits a listener to see when a set is tuned to the most resonant and best point on a channel. The "eye ball" is the dome of a cathode ray tube, the luminous surface of which shines as a greenish light broken only by a fan-shaped electrical shadow.

The new metal tubes, with which the new sets are equipped, were discussed at length. It was declared that these tubes were not the "catkin" type tried in England and discarded, but were a permanent, thoroughly tried out radio development of real value in making radio sets better.

The services developed in and around St. Louis for RCA-Victor dealers and service men were stated to include trained men specializing on Radiatron tubes, Victor records and RCA-Victor parts, two resident service engineers, a man in charge of such public address systems as the one being installed in the area in the Municipal Auditorium, and men in charge of service on broadcast transmitters and photophone theatrical equipment.

Levy said yesterday that the $25,000 RCA-Victor sound truck, designed to broadcast music and speech with such power that it can be heard more than a mile away, would be here during the American Legion Convention and would be placed at the disposal of the Legion's officers.

Radio Concerts And Recitals.

LAWRENCE TIBBETT will sing "Where'er You Walk" from Handel's "Semele"; the difficult "Largo al Factotum" aria from "The Barber of Seville;" Harold Arlen's new song, "Last Week When We Were Young;" a descriptive song, "The Through Freight," by Keith Brown; Gustlin's "Left," and Watts' "Alone" when he opens his Fall and Winter concerts at 6:30 Tuesday evening on the CBS net and KMOX. Don Voorhees will lead the orchestra. Tibbett plans to vary his concerts with occasional "guest" artists, dramatizations in which he will play leading roles, and choral groups. He also will comment on his songs and their composers.

Frank Parker, the tenor, will be the soloist in the concert at 7:30 p. m. Thursday on the CBS net and KMOX. James Melton has been engaged for the concert on Thursday night, Oct. 10. Jessica Dragonette was the soloist in the opening broadcast of this series revival last week.

An "Ave Maria," composed for the National Eucharistic Congress by John S. Young, the NBC announcer, and dedicated to Cardinal Hayes, will be performed in the Radio City concert at 10:30 this morning on KWK.

Jascha Heifetz, the violinist, and Victor Kolar's symphony orchestra will be supported by a chorus of 44 voices when this concert series reopens at 8 o'clock next Sunday night. The programs will follow the pattern on which those of last season were built. Lucrezia Bori, of the Metropolitan Opera, will be the soloist in the concert of Oct. 6.

Listeners who desire to hear all of the Frank Black string symphony concert at 6 o'clock this evening will have to tune for WJZ (670) or some other WJZ chain station carrying it, as KWK will begin broadcasting it at 6:25.

Broadcasts of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers will be resumed at 12:30 noon Wednesday on the WEAF chain. Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, president of the Congress, will speak on "The Parent's Part in Education."

The crowning of Jessica Dragonette as 1935 Queen of Radio will be broadcast from the National Electrical and Radio Exposition, in New York, at 8:15 p. m., Wednesday on the WJZ chain.

The Blue Flames harmony team—Julia Freeland, Bevery Freeland, Helen Jackson and Jay Dennis—is new on the CBS chain at 1 p. m. Fridays and 12:45 noon Sundays.

The sponsor on Pacific Coast has 11 to 11:45 a. m. two-period school programs Thursdays on a network. One period is for elementary, one for advanced pupils. Each lesson is complete and devoted to a single topic. The sponsor also will begin in October its ninth continuous year of weekly symphony concerts on Thursdays closely connected with the school broadcasts. The Los Angeles, Portland, San Francisco and Seattle orchestras are used. Only the finest of symphonic, both light and heavy, is played. An outstanding feature is the absence of advertising.

Cardinal Hayes will celebrate a Pontifical Mass with a choir of 1000 voices that will be broadcast at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday by the WJZ chain.

Pope Pius XI's message and Papal benediction to the National Eucharistic Congress at Cleveland will be broadcast from Rome, Italy, during the closing of the Congress, at 3 p. m. Thursday.

Government officials, educators and statesmen will speak in a new You and Your Government series on the WEAF chain that will begin Oct. 1.

The football game between Notre Dame and Kansas will be described by Ted Husing at 1:15 p. m., Saturday on the CBS net.

FRESHMAN DAY WEDNESDAY AT WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

New Students to Hear Addresses and Later to Meet Their Faculty Advisers.

Freshman day will be held Wednesday at Washington University, inaugurating a revised orientation program. Most first-year students are expected to register Monday and begin class work Thursday.

Freshmen will gather in Graham Memorial Chapel at 10 a. m. Wednesday, to hear addresses by Chancellor George R. Throop, Deans Frederick W. Shipley and Alexander S. Langsdorf, Miss Helen Konesko of the Women's Self-Government Association, and Richard Horner, student president.

Later the new students will meet their faculty advisers for informal discussions of their academic problems. Upper classmen have been assigned to the advisory groups to aid the freshmen. An all-freshman "mixer" will be held in the Women's Building from 5 to 7 p. m.

PAINTINGS FOR DAIRY SHOW

More Than 500 Pictures of Rural Life to Be Shown.

More than 500 paintings of rural life will be displayed at the Arena during the National Dairy Show Oct. 12 to 19.

The display will occupy the western half of the mezzanine floor, where members of the Society of Independent Artists of St. Louis will give demonstrations of painting, modeling and art craftsmanship.

Young Men's Sunday in Churches.

The second annual Young Men's Sunday will be observed in churches of the city and county Oct. 13 in connection with the Y. M. C. A. Current Funds Campaign, Oct. 14 to 25. Young Men's Sunday provides a means of familiarizing church groups and individuals with the activities of the Y. M. C. A.

Meeting of Leisure Time Club.

The Leisure Time Activity Club, an organization of unemployed girls between 16 and 21 years old, will hold the first of its fall and winter meetings at the Y. W. C. A., 1411 Locust street, at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. More than 300 girls have enrolled in the club.

STEVENSON'S HOME ON STAMP

Author's Grave Design on Another New Zealand Issue.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—A new series of postage stamps bears for the first time the official designation of the New Zealand mandated part of the group "Western Samoa." The stamp vignettes are finely engraved with local scenes, including a view of Robert Louis Stevenson's home "Vailima."

"Vailima," now the official residence of the Administrator, and of Stevenson's tomb on the top of Mount Vaea, on the denominations six-penny petunia, are shown on the stamps. A Samoan girl making Kava is the subject of the half-penny stamp in apple green, while part of the waterfront at Apia, the capital, is seen in the one-penny design, printed in claret and blue-black.

HORSE SHOW ENTRY LISTS TO CLOSE TOMORROW NIGHT

Cash Prizes Totaling $15,000 to Be Awarded at Arena, Oct. 14 to 19.

URSULINE ACADEMY TO GIVE HISTORICAL PAGEANT OCT. 22

Part of Local Celebration of 400th Anniversary of Founding of Ursuline Order.

The fourth centenary of the Ursuline Order, a religious order founded by St. Angela de Merici for educating girls, will be celebrated locally by the Ursuline Convent and Academy, Sappington road and Monroe avenue, Kirkwood.

The celebration will include a historical pageant, "Daughters of Victory," which will be presented at the St. Louis University Auditorium, 3660 Lindell boulevard, Oct. 22 and 23. The pageant will depict the history of the Ursuline Order and its progress in the 400 years of its existence.

Three Ursuline Sisters started a school in St. Louis in 184. A few years later they built their first school house at 2112 South Twelfth street. After 76 years of teaching at this school, the Ursuline nuns were able to erect their new convent in Kirkwood.

3000 SCOUTS TO AID AT LEGION CONVENTION

Assigned for Various Duties Under Direction of St. Louis Council.

St. Louis Boy Scouts will be provided to aid at the national convention of the American Legion, which opens tomorrow at the Municipal Auditorium. More than 3000 scouts will be assigned to duty during the four-day meeting, under the direction of 150 members of the St. Louis Scout Council.

The scouts will serve as aids, orderlies, messengers, ushers and guides. The Scout Council has also established a reserve service corps of 300 scouts, which will have headquarters on the balcony at the Legion convention headquarters, Broadway and Pine street.

A large number of adult scouters have volunteered their services, and will serve with John J. Phelan, head of the Service Committee of the Legion. They will assist in directing Legionnaires and making arrangements for them.

Sea Scouts will participate this morning in a regatta on the Mississippi River, between Eads and Municipal bridges. The regatta is sponsored by the Inland Yachting Association for the benefit of visiting Legionnaires. The Sea Scouts will open the meet at 10 a. m. with a race of nine X-boats, immediately followed by a race of 10 moth boats. The X-boats will be sailed by a crew of three, a scout master and two scouts, and the moths will be piloted by one Sea Scout. Prizes will be awarded.

The annual Merit Badge Show will be held at the Arena, Dec. 5, 6 and 7, it is announced by Harry A. Frank, chairman of the Activities Committee of the St. Louis Scout Council. The show was originally announced for an earlier date.

Troop 14 of Webster Groves is planning a farewell to Glion Williams, who rose from tenderfoot to eagle scout within its ranks and later became scoutmaster. He has received appointment to the consular service, but has not been assigned yet.

The council is planning a series of courses on leadership in cub scouting, to be held next month. It was also announced that on Sept. 1 there were 65 cub packs, as compared to 46 in 1934. The enrollment of cub scouts is now 2109, an increase of 566 over the number a year ago.

A meeting of Girl Scout leaders from the city and county will be held next Saturday and Sunday at Cedarledge, the Girl Scout camp near Pevely, Mo. The heads of 171 troops, district committees and members of the Girl Scout Metropolitan Council will attend.

The camp will not close at the end of the summer camping season, but will remain open during the fall for use by Girl Scout troops for week-end trips. The program for the fall training courses will be announced later.

PART SIX

The red-headed country boy from Winn Parish sleeps under a mound of flowers, including a wreath from Mussolini, a blanket of orchids from the royal family of Great Britain, and a spray from the Government of Spain. The grave has become a shrine. Last night, for example, 80 Michigan members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars came from their convention in New Orleans to place flowers on it.

Already he has become a part of American folklore. The stories illustrating his prankishness, his cunning, and his astounding versatility seem to be endless. I knew Huey intimately, and I have never seen a man so completely free of inhibitions. He was absolutely sure of himself. He did exactly as he pleased, without respect for convention, custom or precedent. One day he was denouncing the President on the floor of the Senate under the eyes of hundreds of spellbound tourists—the next he was in his nightshirt playing a Jew's harp.

Some Long Anecdotes.

He had some special knowledge concerning nearly every subject from cooking to astronomy, and there seemed to be nothing too trivial or remote to attract his interest. The stories about him would fill a volume. Here are a few of them:

When Long was Governor he needed the ring-controlled vote of New Orleans to pass his $76,000,000 highway bond issue, and he got it by providing in the bill that the State pay the city $700,000 a year for maintaining the streets as a part of the State Highway system. Then he passed a constitutional amendment rescinding the $700,000 payment.

He said: "I traded 'em an egg for a dozen hens, and then I took the egg back."

The Jew's harp was his favorite instrument, and he played it well if there is such a thing as "playing" a Jew's harp. As soon as he got to his suite at night, he would get out of his clothes. At a very important crisis in his career as Governor, two large delegations from the State Legislature waited on him one evening. He placed them in separate rooms, and, clad only in a white cotton nightshirt, he paddled barefooted back and forth between the rooms. When a particularly tense situation arose, he grabbed his Jew's harp, sat down on the edge of the bed, and started to play his favorite tune, "Alias Jimmie Valentine."

Blocking an Opponent.

When he was running for Railroad Commissioner, a rather close friend told him frankly that he had decided to run against him.

"You're a dad-gummed fool," Huey told him. "I'll lick the daylights out of you." "That's the kind of difference of opinion that makes horse races," said the friend. "We'll see about that."

"Tell you what let's do," said Huey. "Let's write down the names of a hundred men we know, and ask them which of us they would prefer to have as a candidate." "All right," his friend agreed. "Shall I write 50 and you write 50?" "No," replied Huey, "you can write them all."

The friend proceeded to sit down with a pencil and paper and start his list. After writing 10 or 15 names, he tore up the list angrily and said: "You win." Chuckling over this incident,

Huey Long's Grave Already a Shrine And Stories of His Astonishing Career Part of Nation's Folklore

Louisiana Dictator Was Always Sure of Himself—Characteristic Anecdotes Illustrating His Amazing Versatility.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 21.

HUEY LONG was a phenomenon. At the age of 42, when he died from a madman's bullet, he probably had attracted more interest than any other single individual in the world. Eight days have passed since he was buried on the lawn of the beautiful Capitol which he built, but at 5 o'clock this morning people were still marching past his grave.

The red-headed country boy from Winn Parish sleeps under a mound of flowers, including a wreath from Mussolini, a blanket of orchids from the royal family of Great Britain, and a spray from the Government of Spain. The grave has become a shrine. Last night, for example, 80 Michigan members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars came from their convention in New Orleans to place flowers on it.

Already he has become a part of American folklore. The stories illustrating his prankishness, his cunning, and his astounding versatility seem to be endless. I knew Huey intimately, and I have never seen a man so completely free of inhibitions. He was absolutely sure of himself. He did exactly as he pleased, without respect for convention, custom or precedent. One day he was denouncing the President on the floor of the Senate under the eyes of hundreds of spellbound tourists—the next he was in his nightshirt playing a Jew's harp.

Some Long Anecdotes.

He had some special knowledge concerning nearly every subject from cooking to astronomy, and there seemed to be nothing too trivial or remote to attract his interest. The stories about him would fill a volume. Here are a few of them:

When Long was Governor he needed the ring-controlled vote of New Orleans to pass his $76,000,000 highway bond issue, and he got it by providing in the bill that the State pay the city $700,000 a year for maintaining the streets as a part of the State Highway system. Then he passed a constitutional amendment rescinding the $700,000 payment.

He said: "I traded 'em an egg for a dozen hens, and then I took the egg back."

The Jew's harp was his favorite instrument, and he played it well if there is such a thing as "playing" a Jew's harp. As soon as he got to his suite at night, he would get out of his clothes. At a very important crisis in his career as Governor, two large delegations from the State Legislature waited on him one evening. He placed them in separate rooms, and, clad only in a white cotton nightshirt, he paddled barefooted back and forth between the rooms. When a particularly tense situation arose, he grabbed his Jew's harp, sat down on the edge of the bed, and started to play his favorite tune, "Alias Jimmie Valentine."

Blocking an Opponent.

When he was running for Railroad Commissioner, a rather close friend told him frankly that he had decided to run against him.

"You're a dad-gummed fool," Huey told him. "I'll lick the daylights out of you." "That's the kind of difference of opinion that makes horse races," said the friend. "We'll see about that."

"Tell you what let's do," said Huey. "Let's write down the names of a hundred men we know, and ask them which of us they would prefer to have as a candidate." "All right," his friend agreed. "Shall I write 50 and you write 50?" "No," replied Huey, "you can write them all."

The friend proceeded to sit down with a pencil and paper and start his list. After writing 10 or 15 names, he tore up the list angrily and said: "You win." Chuckling over this incident, Huey would say: "There ain't a politician in the world who can name a hundred men he's absolutely sure of—except me."

Making the Frugal Spend Money.

Long made money easily, and spent it freely, and had no sense of responsibility about it. But he loved to make his friends spend it—especially those known to be frugal. Gov. O. K. Allen, a wealthy man, is known to be cautious in his spending habits. On one occasion, Long and Allen were driving from Baton Rouge to Shreveport. An elderly woman with a small boy hailed them for a ride. After they had picked her and the child up, she told how she was trying to hitch-hike her way to Arkansas to join relatives who would provide for her. When they got to Shreveport, Huey drove to the railroad station.

"Oscar, go in and buy tickets for them," he commanded. Reluctantly the Governor complied. As he emerged with them, Huey added: "And give her $20 for pocket money."

One time, about four months ago, Huey decided he needed a new hat. He went to a Baton Rouge shop, and found an expensive hat which he liked.

"Have you got another just like this?" he inquired of the clerk. "Yes, Senator."

"Well, send it to Oscar Allen and charge both of them to him," Long ordered.

His $100 Bill Trick.

Huey was notorious for his "hundred-dollar-bill trick." He would invite a group of friends to lunch, and when the check was presented, would pull out a $100 bill, and exclaim: "This is the smallest I've got—one of you-all pay this check."

"Uncle Dick" Wilds, 75-year-old dean of the Louisiana House of Representatives, was a victim of the trick several times. Eventually, upon being invited to lunch by Huey, he stopped by a bank and got 100 silver dollars in a paper bag. When Huey flashed his famous $100 bill, "Uncle Dick said: "That's all right, Huey, I can change it."

The Senator took it in good part. He handed over the bill, took the bag full of coins, paid the check and distributed the remainder through his pockets. He never tried that stratagem again. Thereafter, he would simply say: "Somebody take care of this check."

He was imperious in his gestures and his moods. He commanded and he was obeyed.

A newspaper friend once reproached him for the deliberate coarseness and crudeness of his speech. He retorted: "You know the English language, and so do I—but I also know the American people. I am constantly fighting an increasing vocabulary."

As a Baseball Umpire.

As a kid in Winnfield, Huey liked baseball. He would go to the ball park with 15 cents and tell the gate-keeper that was all the money his mother would give him for a ticket. This strategy got him into the games, and finally he ingratiated himself enough to be chosen bat boy. Eventually, he started umpiring.

The Winnfield team was playing a neighboring nine, and Um-

WHAT HAPPENED AT ADOWA

Battle in 1896, When Ethiopian Tribesmen Overwhelmed Italian Army, Still Symbol of Humiliation to Italy

By KEITH KERMAN,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

WAR between Italy and Ethiopia is expected to begin with an Italian thrust at Adowa. According to a recently announced plan, Mussolini's soldiers will march south from Eritrea, Italian colony lying between Ethiopia and the Red Sea, to fall on this mountain town, about 30 miles below the border.

More than the geography and economics of ordinary military strategy may be discerned behind this tactic. A blow at Adowa would be, probably primarily, an effort to heal a wound in the amour propre of Italy. After almost 40 years the wound is still sore, and Mussolini and the Fascist press have been prodding it skillfully during the last year in tuning up the Italian people to war pitch. Since the present controversy of Italy and Ethiopia began, the name of this unpretentious little African city has been often in the ears and before the eyes of the world.

To Italy, Adowa (sometimes spelled Adua, Aduwa or Aadua) is a symbol of humiliation. At Adowa, on March 1, 1896, an Ethiopian Army defeated an Italian Army with tremendous thoroughness, killing, wounding or capturing more than half of it and reducing the remainder to a fleeing, demoralized rabble. And principally because the drubbing was administered by a dark-skinned and supposedly inferior people, the defeat has rankled.

Defeat by "Inferior" People Regarded as "Shameful Scar."

As far back as the time of Cortez, Europe's imperialistic nations were establishing the prestige of white men's armies in "backward" parts of the earth. In Africa, in the nineteenth century, such armies, through superior armament, discipline and leadership, were accustomed to triumph over even vastly superior numbers of uncivilized foemen. Their habit of defeating "the natives" had become almost a convention of colonial expansion.

The wild tribesmen who fought and won at Adowa callously violated this convention, upset the tradition of white invincibility on the Dark Continent. And the young Kingdom of Italy, rather new then at land-gobbling and perhaps a bit self-conscious about it, was intensely mortified at being the victim of this departure from orthodoxy. Its sense of outrage has persisted through the years. Gabriele d'Annunzio, poet and soldier, has spoken of the "shameful scar" of Adowa.

The battle, in addition to being famous for its reversal of the usual fortunes of war between civilized and savage troops, was one of the most decisive engagements of modern times. It ended abruptly Italy's attempt to seize control of Ethiopia, and gave this African nation a freedom from European aggression which has endured for almost four decades.

A treaty led to Adowa. Back of the treaty was a native Prince's ambition, a nation's land-hunger and a complicated web of diplomatic intrigue the whole of which probably has never come to light.

Joker in Two-Text Treaty With Emperor Menelik.

In the '70s of the last century Italy established herself on the African side of the Red Sea, first at Assab, later—in 1885—at the port of Massowah, to the west. Egypt had been holding Massowah, but the Ethiopians had never given up claims to it, and its occupation by the Italians and their subsequent spread to the south were resented by chieftains in the northern part of the country. One of these, Ras Alula, with an overwhelming force, fell on an Italian command of 500 men at Dogali, in 1887, and almost exterminated it.

In 1889 Emperor John of Ethiopia was killed in a battle with invading Dervishes, and Menelik, ambitous chief of Shoa, in Southern Ethiopia, proclaimed himself Negus Negusti, King of Kings, Lion of Judah, etc., etc.—that is, Emperor. He overcame opposition from other chiefs and established himself on the throne with the support of Italy, which supplied him with arms and a substantial loan. In consideration of this support, Menelik, on May 2, 1889, signed a treaty with Italy, represented by Count Antonelli. It was the treaty of Ucciali, and in it Menelik agreed that Italy might extend its settlements south from the coast of the Red Sea. On the strength of that, Italy organized its settlement into a colony named Eritrea, the Ethiopian boundary of which was not clearly defined.

Article 17 of the treaty contained the joker. The Ethiopian text (in Amharic) stated that "His Majesty, the King of Kings of Ethiopia, shall be at liberty to avail himself of the Government of His Majesty the King of Italy, for the treatment of all questions concerning other Powers and Governments." But the Italian text had it that the Ethiopian monarch "consents to avail himself"; that amounted to accepting an Italian protectorate over his country. Italy exulted in a diplomatic triumph.

Ruler Renounces Pact, Gets French Aid to Resist "Invasion."

Other nations which were appropriating parts of Africa were interested in this development and their diplomats gave it serious attention. But out of the mass of rivalries and alliances, diverse interests and secret understandings no open opposition to Italy's coup arose. France didn't like it, however.

When Menelik learned of the difference between the two texts of the treaty—a French agent is said to have informed him—and of Italy's claim of control over his foreign affairs, he flew into a towering rage, denounced his Italian friends for duplicity and renounced the whole treaty. His indignation was increased by the spread of Italian military posts.

Menelik prepared to resist what he considered, with the treaty discarded, invasion of his country. He found encouragement from the French. From them he borrowed money and bought arms and ammunition. And French officers aided him with military instruction for some of his troops.

Hostilities began with a raid by one of the Ethiopian chiefs into territory claimed by Italy, early in 1895. Gen. Oreste Baratieri, Governor of Eritrea, defeated the raiders without much difficulty, and formed an opinion of Ethiopian fighting prowess which he was later to have to revise. He confidently followed up his victory by sending troops down into Tigre, the northern district of Ethiopia, to occupy several towns, among them Adowa and Makalla.

Defeat of Italian Force by Haile Selassie's Father.

In December of that year a column of native troops under Italian officers was sent southward from Makalla. At Ambi Alagi, less than 50 miles from its base, it was surprised by a large force of tribesmen commanded by a skilled and veteran fighter, Ras Makonnen, father of the present Emperor, and was badly hacked up and driven back to Makalla. Of the 2000 men in the column, more than 1300 were killed or captured. Then the Ethiopians besieged Makalla. The town was fortified and its defenders put up a stout resistance, but when water gave out, after a month, they had to surrender. Baratieri abandoned most of his advanced positions, including Adowa, and began to strengthen his forces.

Menelik, having shown he was in earnest about opposing encroachments on his country's independence and territory, released prisoners he had taken and suggested that peace be arranged. Baratieri politely consented to negotiations, but went on with preparations for some serious fighting. He well understood that the two defeats Italian arms had just suffered would have to be avenged before his superior, Premier Crispi, would consent to drop the quarrel.

Opposing Armies Massed in Camps 20 Miles Apart.

During this lull, Menelik also was busy. By runners, by signal fires, by shouting from hilltops, the call to arms went out, and a huge array of fighting men rapidly collected at Adowa. At Entiscio, less than 20 miles to the east, the Italian army was gathered in a fortified camp, maintaining with difficulty its line of supplies from Massowah. Menelik, too, was finding it hard to get enough food for his men, Baratieri was informed, and he thought the Ethiopian leader must soon either attack, with the Italians having the advantage of a defensive position, or disband his army. He realized it would be extremely hazardous for him to attack an enemy so superior in numbers. For weeks each army waited for the other to move.

GEN. ORESTE BARATIERI.

Meanwhile, Crispi's Cabinet became more and more annoyed at the General's failure to trounce a mob of benighted savages, finally lost patience altogether and appointed another man to succeed him—General Baldissera. This appointment was supposed to be quite secret; several days after it was made Crispi wired Baratieri that "we are ready for any sacrifice in order to save the honor of the army and the prestige of the monarchy." But some historians say Baratieri learned of the action taken in Rome before it was intended he should, and that it spurred him to desperate eagerness to save his waning reputation.

Deceived by Spies, Baratieri Decides to Take Offensive.

At this time, too, spies reported to him that the Ethiopian Army was dispersing, starved out. The report was false; many of his spies were in the service of Menelik. But he found that out too late, and it seemed to the worried General that the melting away of the opposing host gave him an opportunity to administer a sound departing spank without too much risk. Late in February, 1896, Baratieri decided on an aggressive move.

The night of Feb. 29—1896 was a leap year—was chosen for the advance. The next day, March 1, was a church feast day for the Ethiopian Christians and the Italian commander thought many of the enemy troops would be observing the occasion in the nearby holy city of Aksum. (This surmise, incidentally, was correct, but his estimate of its importance was not; the soldiers who went to Aksum returned to the battlefield in time to add their weight to the blow against Italy.) By daylight Baratieri expected to have his army in strong positions just east of Adowa, so that it could make a quick attack if the condition of the enemy justified it, or

How Insurance Company Formed By 23 Massachusetts Savings Banks Saves Workers 40 Pct. on Policies

Organized in 1906 on Advice of Louis D. Brandeis—No Agents Hired, Field Localized, Earnings Exceed Big Firms

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.

THE New Englander's traditional insistence on getting his money's worth is strikingly related in a 200-page Department of Labor report on the Massachusetts Savings Bank Life Insurance System by Dr. Edward Berman, assistant professor of economics at the University of Illinois, published today.

This report, perhaps the most comprehensive report made of the efficient life insurance organization initiated by Mr. Justice Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court in 1906, gives in detail the methods used by a relatively small number of savings banks from whom citizens of Massachusetts, mostly workers, have bought more than $100,000,000 in life insurance, and compares the cost of this insurance with that sold by the life insurance companies.

The savings to the persons insured by the bank system runs as high as 40 and 50 per cent.

Bought and Sold.

The words "bought" and "sold" are used advisedly. Dr. Berman in his report strongly indicates that the great life insurance companies, the competitors of the savings bank insurance system, "sell" their policies to insured, while the insured in the savings bank system "buy" their policies of their own accord.

But this difference of merchandising policies is not the only reason the savings bank life insurance is cheaper than that of the great companies. Dr. Berman shows that not only are the operating expenses of the savings bank lower, but that the mortality rate is less and that the savings banks get greater earnings on their investments. The economical administration of the savings bank system has enabled it to climb in 10 years from twenty-second in rank in amount of insurance in force in the State to thirteenth in 1934. During the depression years from 1929 to 1935, the amount of insurance in force has increased every year from $67,500,000 to $107,000,000.

This amount of business is handled by 23 savings banks, none of which can issue more than a $1000 policy to an individual. The individual, however, can take out a policy in each of the 23 banks for a total of $23,000 of insurance. In 1908, when the system was started, the average policy was $408; in 1934 it was $890.

Berman gives an admirable history of the savings bank insurance idea, starting with 1905 when the New York Legislative Committee, with Charles Evans Hughes as its counsel, investigated the "big three" insurance companies of that State.

Brandeis as Counsel.

As the revelations of this committee shocked the nation, a group of New England industrialists formed a policyholders' protective committee, with Louis D. Brandeis, then a leading lawyer of Boston, as its counsel. In his report, Brandeis pointed out that the 189 mutual savings banks of Massachusetts were "institutions, which with a slight enlargement of their powers, could at a mimimum of expense, fill the great need of life insurance for the working men." In 1906 a bill to carry out the Brandeis vision was introduced in the Massachusetts Legislature and it immediately drew the fire of all the great insurance companies operating in the State. Under the guidance of Brandeis, the Massachusetts Savings Insurance League, with former Gov. W. L. Douglas as its chairman, was formed to work for the bill. The next year the bill was passed, but it was not until 1908, when a group of shoe manufacturers put up the required guaranty money that a single savings bank could be found to enter the life insurance field in competition with the private companies. This was the Whitman Savings Bank, located in a small shoe manufacturing town. During the first year of its operations only $115,000 worth of insurance was bought.

Brandeis and his group kept hammering away at their plan, and were greatly aided by the late Alice H. Grady, who carried on the work after Brandeis was named to the Supreme Court. Much of the credit for the present success of the system belongs to Miss Grady.

Aims of Legislation.

The aims of the legislation, according to Dr. Berman, were as follows: (1) To eliminate high operation costs due to the sale of insurance by agents; (2) to make it possible for policyholders to obtain such privileges as cash surrender, loans, extended insurance, and paid-up insurance at an earlier period and under more advantageous conditions than were generally common in the case of life insurance sold by private companies; (3) to eliminate the possibility of over-selling insurance and thereby to decrease the proportion of lapsed policies, and (4) to provide life insurance under such conditions that its sale would not increase the profits of the private individuals conducting the business.

In addition to furnishing cheaper insurance, the savings bank system has proved beneficial to Massachusetts in that it has kept and circulated the money within the State, furnishing local capital and local jobs. Its success has brought personal satisfaction to Mr. Justice Brandeis because in it he sees proof of his long-felt conviction that small units are more efficient and more socially desirable than large, unwieldly units, such as the great life insurance companies with their billions of assets.

The operation of the Massachusetts system is simplicity itself. Under the law, mutual savings banks of the State are empowered to establish life insurance departments after securing approval of the Commissioner of Banks and the Commissioner of Insurance. Both Commissioners exercise supervision and control of the established departments.

Run Independently.

The insurance department of each bank must be operated independently of its savings department as far as this can be accomplished. The books and assets of the two departments are kept separately and their business operations are independent of each other. The executive directions of both departments, however, is in the hands of the bank's board of trustees and of its executive officers.

The insurance department handles all of the usual types of ordinary insurance policies and annuity contracts. Only residents of Massachusetts or persons regularly employed in the State can buy the policies. If such a person, after buying a policy, moves out of the State he may continue to hold the policy under essentially the same conditions as before.

The savings banks employ no agents or solicitors for selling insurance directly, and no commissions are paid to anyone for the sale. Two persons called "instructors" are employed, however, by the State Division of Savings Bank Life Insurance to visit industrial establishments at the re-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Problem of Neutrality.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

DESPITE congressional action, it is not going to be easy to keep America neutral should a general European war develop from the Ethiopian controversy.

War business means profits, and American business has not paid great dividends during the past few years. War orders would mean employment, and unemployment is still one of our pressing problems. The banks are full of idle capital, and though Government lending during the World War seems to have brought the nation little besides grief, private loans were to a great extent taken care of by the borrowers. Men do not always profit by past experience, and it will be quite easy for the nation to embark upon the time-honored course of dealing with either or both sides, hoping in some miraculous manner to muddle along and escape participation; but if we begin by sending money and munitions, we shall end by sending men. Sooner or later, we shall have such a heavy stake in the success of one or the other belligerent that it will seem imperative to make certain that belligerent's success. Then we shall find a pretext for entering the war.

No nation can make a profit out of war. It is extremely likely that the American Government could have paid from its treasury all private loans made to the Allies, all profits from the sale of munitions and on the loans, and still have spent less money than it spent prosecuting the war. A few individuals may have profited, but the nation lost heavily.

If we insist upon our full rights as a neutral, we must be prepared to defend them as a belligerent. It does not seem that one American has the right to get his country into a situation which will demand that countless other Americans die.

ARCH N. PARKER.

Favors Dies Bill.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN THE past few weeks, you have reprinted editorials from two New York newspapers attacking Representative Dies of Texas for his attempts to pass a law deporting 6,000,000 aliens, 3,500,000 of whom are in this country illegally.

It is easy to understand why New York newspapers should fight, or at least pretend to fight, such legislation, since 80 per cent of New York's population consists of foreign-born or of people born of foreign parents. It is strictly a matter of circulation.

According to newspaper reports, one out of every six persons on relief in New York is an alien, and the borough of Queens alone has 400,000 aliens, the greater part of whom are on relief. With practically every voter of that city and State either related or dependent on foreigners in some way for his livelihood, is it a wonder that no politician of that State has the courage to fight a situation that is putting a heavy drain on the taxpayers of the whole United States?

A. CITIZEN.

Thoreau.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

"'HENRY' is the simple designation on the low, slanting marker in the family plot in Sleepy Hollow." So says your recent editorial.

Now that almost a century has elapsed since the "savage," as one of his biographers calls him, voluntarily retired to the woods to meditate and write "Walden," it is with agreeable suprise that we note how much more apt his thoughts are today than they were then.

For him, simplicity and happiness were synonymous. Although a Harvard graduate, he preferred the simple lot of the day-laborer to the responsibilities of the business man and employer. He repaired Emerson's fence and cultivated his garden. He abhorred the materialism of the early nineteenth century, and also called attention to the increasing specialization, where one man did nothing but make clothing, and another, as in the case of Thoreau's own father, made nothing but pencils.

He went to jail rather than pay an unjust tax, nor would he allow his friends to pay it and obtain his release. When his friend, Emerson, who had come to the jail to plead with him, asked, "David, why are you here?" Thoreau answered, "Waldo, why are you not here?"

Leaning, as he did, toward Oriental philosophy, it was quite natural that he should join the transcendentalist movement in its fight against the puritanical prejudices of the time. Above all things, he hated sham and hypocrisy.

Mahatma Gandhi, a modern follower of Thoreau, has translated his books into one of India's main languages, is a firm believer in the poet-naturalist's ideas and is putting some of them into practice.

JOSEPH KERMIS.

Anent Mr. Kent.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR recent rebuke to Mr. Kent for his absurd comment that "not more than 10 per cent (of the voters) have the power to analyze the simplest issue or comprehend a political principle" deserves a hearty indorsement. The irony of his stand is that he himself belongs to the fantastically hypothetical 90 per cent. For in his comments one searches in vain for a glimmer of comprehension of the economic factors which color the political scene.

ADOLF PRIMAFACIE.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL ACTS.

On its anniversary the other day, the Constitution found itself the object of tender solicitude. Those suitors were Republicans who pledged themselves, individually and as an organization, to defend the Constitution wholeheartedly and forever. They also warned the country to beware of the inconstant Democrats who were flirting outrageously with foreign sirens.

The recreancy of the Democrats was cited in their official conduct. Five acts of Congress, since March 4, 1933, were pointed to as proof of Democratic perfidy; acts so violative of the organic law that the Supreme Court had pronounced them unconstitutional.

What could the Democrats say in reply to such a charge and to such evidence? They might, perhaps, have examined the record and ascertained whether the Republicans, when in control of Congress, had scrupulously fashioned their legislation in strict accordance with the constitutional pattern. That is precisely what somebody did.

All told, 67 acts of Congress have been pronounced unconstitutional by the Supreme Court. The Republicans, in control of both houses in 27 sessions, have passed 42 unconstitutional acts. The Democrats, in control in 33 sessions, have passed 20 unconstitutional acts. The five unaccounted for in those figures were passed under other, or divided, control.

Are we to conclude from this record that the Republicans, when in power, are less mindful of their constitutional obligations than the Democrats are when the responsibility of legislative action is theirs? That were superficial or partisan deduction. Further examination of the record is illuminating. It reveals that seven of the unconstitutional acts in the Republican score were passed during Lincoln's tenure of the presidency; that 10 such acts were passed during the Grant administrations; and six during what the critics characterized as "the proconsulship of Theodore Roosevelt." Summed up, we have 23 Republican unconstitutional acts in three presidential periods, or more than half the total of such acts throughout the party's entire reign. And here, in the Franklin Roosevelt administration, the Democrats have departed from the Constitution five times—or 25 per cent of their party's erring in the brief span of less than three years.

What is obvious is that the number of unconstitutional acts is explainable by the tempo of the times. In the shattering days of Lincoln, the Constitution was unavoidably in process, almost, of remaking, as evidenced by the post-war amendments. The years of Grant, rich with the historic privilege of repairing the ravages of fratricidal strife, of laying a fine and firm foundation for a brighter civilization, were a chapter of wasted opportunity, indelibly scarred with vindictiveness and corruption—lost years that could have been so splendid under adequate leadership and congressional statesmanship. As for the tumultuous times of Theodore Roosevelt, with their evangelistic fervor, they, too, were transitional. Again the Government was pitted against the adversary of entrenched powers. Under the banner of reform, legislation was compelled to pioneer.

In the commotions—"the intoxication of destiny"—of events, when governments are confronted by the necessity of striking out along new paths, when experience can counsel only in a tired voice and experiment must speak the word of command—in such crises, charters bend or break, and the number of efforts ruled out as unconstitutional is inseparable from the burden of responsibility. Partisanship may return indictments in furious and portentous rhetoric, but time rubs out the gasconade.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT IN CONGRESSMEN.

Vito Marcantonio, 32-year-old first-term Congressman from New York, has a way of looking at the business of representing people in Congress which is as refreshing as it is different. He has invited all his constituents to a get-together for the express purpose, as he phrased it, of "giving an account of my stewardship as your Representative in Congress during the last session." In order to evaluate the importance of a frank report of this kind, we need only to remind ourselves how many members of Congress are now studiously evading constituents and embarrassing questions about votes in Congress. This congressional beginner from New York should bear watching.

FAINT HOPES.

Italy's tremendous military preparations make war in Africa seem inevitable. Observers at Geneva and over the world are virtually unanimous in that opinion. Hopes for averting it while preserving Ethiopia's sovereignty are extinct, and of bringing about a compromise are exceedingly faint. Mainly, they are rhetorical.

They spring from fine distinctions in Italy's tone in various recent pronouncements. On Sept. 14, the Italian Cabinet rejected the League's overtures by saying it reconfirmed "in the most explicit manner that the Italo-Ethiopian problem does not admit of compromise solutions after the enormous efforts made and the sacrifices borne by the Italian people," etc. That, it would seem, meant plainly "no compromise." But three days later, an Italian spokesman said it did not "eliminate the possibility of negotiations"; that if some of the League's points were found acceptable to Italy, conferences could follow.

Next day, when the summary of the League's plan was published, the Italian delegation termed it "absolutely unacceptable as a basis for negotiations." One spokesman said, "The scheme is not reasonable." Mussolini scoffed at it as "not only unacceptable but derisory." He was no collector of deserts, he added sardonically, nor had he sent his troops to Africa on an excursion trip.

Formal rejection of the plan came from a Cabinet council yesterday with a statement of appreciation for the League's attempts, but calling "such proposals unacceptable since they do not offer a minimum basis sufficient for a conclusive realization which would finally and effectively take into account Italy's vital rights and interests." The difference between these slightly more temperate words, hinting that the peace-makers might yet evolve an acceptable "minimum basis," and the flat "no compromise" statement of a week before, is the faint hope at which Geneva now is grasping. It is faint indeed against the background of embarking troops and steaming warships.

On so slight a basis, on such a grasping at straws, does the world's prospect of averting a cataclysm now rest.

THE POTATO DRAMA.

The potato is no snob. Anywhere it finds itself is home. It has its preferences, to be sure. When it opens its eyes and beholds the rocky ruggedness of Aroostook County, Me., it sings the Star-Spangled Banner in a mighty chorus. It leads the multiplication table a merry dance along the famous Eastern Shore of Chesapeake Bay. Under California's suns, aided and abetted by consummate husbandry, it has soared into stratospheric statistics. In Idaho, it divides honors with Senator Borah.

But those favored lands, which the potato once made to flow with milk and honey, are now forlorn. They formerly supplied the market. The 750,000 farmers engaged in the commercial production of the crop prospered. Now, it is calculated, 3,000,000 farmers are growing potatoes—here, there and yonder—and the price is shot to pieces, and, instead of the abundant life, the real potato farmers are broke.

Now the Government has reluctantly been thrust into the melee by the Potato Control Act, which undertakes to put potato-growing on a quota basis. The marketing regulations require stamp taxes and specified containers. The job has been handed over to the AAA, which didn't want it in the first place, and, since the $5,000,000 appropriation to enforce the act was lost in the filibuster, the AAA is in a quandary. As an expedient, Secretary Wallace is considering making potato control voluntary, with benefit payments to growers who comply with the restrictions. Meantime, something like a potato insurrection has appeared. Producers and consumers alike have announced their intention to defy the law. They are willing to go to jail, some of them say. They probably believe that, in such a test, the law will be invalidated.

The enforcement of the law under the best of circumstances would be difficult. To police 3,000,000 farmers, to patrol all the grocery stores of the country, to sleuth the unscrupulous consumer and the potato bootlegger—there's a task for omnipotence. With no money, it cannot be done.

Let it be repeated, however, that the commercial potato farmer's condition is distressing. Let it be assumed, too, as the evidence warrants, that the attempted solution is wholly impracticable. What then?

Could relief be had if the potato were again accounted fashionable? As everyone knows, it has vanished from tables which it used to grace. It is a rare and gallant woman who now eats a potato. Somehow, the word has gone out, and been accepted as gospel, that the potato is the deadly enemy of the girlish figure. La pomme de terre is all but universally condemned as the accessory before the unspeakable fact of avoirdupois. Yes, and a good many so-called stalwart warriors shun the potato, too, or nibble cautiously where, in the brave days of old when men were trenchermen, they bolted it magnificently.

The silhouette standard of Hollywood, the scrawny ritual of emaciation—there is the villain in this tragic potato drama.

What the short skirt of shocking but fondly treasured memory did to the textile industry, so the skeletonized misconcept of figurative smartness has done to the potato.

ANOTHER BRITISH MISCONCEPTION.

Several weeks ago, the New Statesman and Nation of London, whose editors should have known better, carried a base attack on the standing of beards in the United States. Declaring that pogonophobia is a force with which men must reckon in the United States, the author, Ernest Boyd, linked the bearded man in this country with the bearded woman as a curiosity. Our first impulse was to answer this libel in spirited style, but remembering that the correspondence of the New Statesman and Nation is known for letters demanding fair play, we decided to await a rebuke from English soil.

This rebuke has now appeared. Patrick du Val of Trinity College, Cambridge, reports in the current issue that, as a graduate student, he spent a year in Princeton, N. J., as the "successful bearer of a beard," without experiencing any of the indignities of which Mr. Boyd wrote. Men did not refuse to speak to Mr. Du Val. Women did not decline his invitation to dance. Large undergraduates did not assault him. Small boys did not shout after him. If his roommate was offered considerable sums to shave the visiting Briton in his sleep, the offer was made, contends the latter, in the confidence that it would be rejected. Thus is Albion squelched, and by no less capable a squelcher than a Cantabrigian.

As for beards in this country, obviously they put their wearers to no inconvenience in social intercourse. Not long ago, the city editor of a Boston newspaper was well bearded. Only yesterday, here in St. Louis, two beards were seen at the same time in front of the City Hall, and Gen. Grant sported only one of them.

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

RUSSIA LAUGHS. By Mikhail Zostchenko. (Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co., Boston.)

A YEAR or more ago, there appeared in English an anthology of Russian prose and verse purporting to give a fairly representative cross-section of Soviet literature. The lack of humor in that collection was notable, a fact which the translators explained, saying that the outstanding humorists wrote in such a way as to render adequate translation extremely difficult, if not impossible. Zostchenko, a short-story writer, was cited as typical, the difficulty of translation in his case arising from the fact that he writes in "the popular jargon of the streets."

Here, then, for the first time, American readers are given an opportunity to become acquainted with the work of one who is said to be regarded as the leading Soviet humorist. There are 49 short stories here, most of which might better be described as sketches for those prospective readers who may still cherish the "bourgeois superstition," as Zostchenko would say, that the term "short story" connotes a fairly definite literary form rather than mere brevity.

Form does not bother Zostchenko, apparently; for, looking about him, he sees that the lives of the vast mass of people are formless. "There are people," he believes, "whose lives one can relate in 10 minutes, all the circumstances of their lives, from their first meaningless scream to the last moment." (One doubts it!) And he adds, "The author will attempt to do that." Truly, this seems a curious formula for humor, if, in keeping with another alleged "bourgeois superstition," sympathy be essential to the genuinely humorous mood.

But Zostchenko is a "realist," as he is convinced, and he reports what he sees pretty much as he sees it. If it be objected that he scarcely achieves humor in the rejected "bourgeois" sense, he certainly does achieve the comic. And, truly, what could be funnier than the petty pretenses, the apparently purposeless struggles, the futile hopes of the undistinguished millions if viewed casually without sympathy and, apparently, with no very profound social sense—strange as this may seem in a Socialist writer?

But Zostchenko is a confirmed materialist, and he therefore knows that any effort to rise above the materialistic, the purely sense view of human life, is to indulge in "flights of fancy," is to be "literary," to be "eloquent," to be "bourgeois," to be false. The "truth" to him is "objective." You look and you see it, and what you see is a matter for blank despair—unless you are able to view it all as comic; and apparently Zostchenko does so.

Here are undeniably vivid fragmentary sketches of "everyday folk, clerks, prostitutes, bureaucrats, workers, wives, actors, et cetera"; and one reader was given the doubtful impression that all these little lives are no more than mildly funny in a sordid, piffling sort of way.

There is no cleansing sense of tragedy, no humanizing awareness of "the tears of things," no flash of that illumination which is the essence of all art worthy of the name—that white light of recognition which reveals a universal identity and transcends even pity as love does hate. Were such light ever to break for a moment upon this "humorist," it would be his present obsession with the apparent chaotic separateness of human lives that would strike him as the one real source of the comic.

In view of the nature of the tremendous task undertaken by the Soviets, it is perhaps not strange that the tendency to limit reality to the sense level should predominate in contemporary Russian literature, as it seems to do, if the work that comes to us be fairly representative. But if one be looking, as from a height of time, for the comic in the apparently prevailing Russian philosophy, as revealed in its available literature, surely it could be traced to the curious confusion of ideas whereby the characteristic cultural error of "bourgeois" civilization has, for the time at least, been intensified and adopted as central in the Soviet world-view!

Surely the higher human values — characteristically scorned by Soviet writers as mere "fantasy"—are not the creations of the "bourgeois" spirit. Quite the opposite is the truth. The fatal fact about the "bourgeois" spirit is that it is essentially materialistic. The very individualism that the Soviets would abolish is only the logical social outgrowth of the materialistic philosophy.

If men believe profoundly only in material values, which appertain only to the animal in us, why trouble greatly over the higher human values that distinguish us from the beast, and that have been evolved through so many ages of aspiration and struggle and suffering? And if to stay alive be not merely the first, but the only, matter of importance, then Zostchenko's substitution of the cruelty that is the comic for the sympathy that is humor is perhaps justifiable.

It is Zostchenko's avowed belief that his is the "scientific" and therefore the only defensible view of human life. But, comically enough, it was the "bourgeois" spirit in its heyday that developed that now outmoded superstition of "scientific reality."

Those who are aware that prevailing conceptions of reality are of profound importance in the everyday relations of men who never consider such matters at all may find reason for a high hope in the point suggested above. For although, from the Soviet viewpoint, we of the "bourgeois" nations seem to lag woefully in social progress, yet in the realm of fundamental ideas, where the patterns of the future first take form, already our trend is distinctly away from the old bestializing materialism. May not our social lag, then, distressing as it may be made to seem at the moment, prove to be only the delay of a saner preparation for an inevitable social change?

THE CUNNING MULATTO. By Fletcher Pratt. (Harrison Smith & Robert Haas, New York City.)

FICTION detectives will have to look to their laurels. Ellis Parker, detective in fact, makes a good start toward showing them how, not to say showing them up, in the case of "The Cunning Mulatto," and other cases, as told to Fletcher Pratt and put into a book.

This Ellis Parker is just a small-town detective, habitat Mount Holly, N. J., radius of activity Burlington County, but he has been detecting 42 years and has worked on about 300 major crimes. In all but 12 of the cases he has obtained convictions, which causes Fletcher Pratt to comment that he is probably the best detective in America if not in the world. That may be putting it a little strong, but it must be admitted that Ellis Parker is pretty good. Just as good and maybe a little better than the fiction detectives, with all the facts on his side.

IN the matter of writing child verse, A. A. Milne attained the uncrowded region of equals 11 years ago with "When We Were Very Young." When the book first appeared, there was no great enthusiasm for it, either among the public or the booksellers.

"The one bookstore in New York," the publishers declare, "which had the wisdom and enthusiasm to promote the book was the Washington Square Bookshop. They actually sold, in three months, more than 400 copies. Considerably more copies were sold that year by the Washington Square Bookshop than by the largest jobber and wholesaler of books in the United States."

The 160th printing of that altogether lovable little volume has just appeared, and it is good to note how the verses still seem as new as morning, producing, as in the first reading, the old sense of delighted surprise.

All the verses, even the funniest of them, seem to live in an atmosphere of unclouded wonder, and once at least, in "Summer Afternoon," the authentic stuff of poetry is felt. Note it again:

Six brown cows walk down to drink

MARK TWAIN'S MARGINS ON THACKERAY'S "SWIFT." By Coley B. Taylor. (Gotham House, New York City.)

THE author was living as a boy in Redding, Conn., when Mark Twain moved into his home there 27 years ago, and the present little volume opens with a chapter of pleasing memories of the great man, his family and his friends during the years 1908 and 1909.

The remainder of the work is concerned with the humorist's marginal notations in a copy of Thackeray's "English Humorists," published in 1868. The penciled comments, although not intrinsically very remarkable, serve to reveal something of Mark Twain's mind and character; and the author's running commentary is interesting. The edition is limited to 950 copies and the book may be regarded, in a sense, as a Mark Twain "first."

Stories From Amazing Career Of Huey Long

pire Long was careful to give the edge to the home boys. When the score stood five runs to none for Winnfield, in the last half of the ninth inning, he deliberately called a Winnfield player out at the home plate, when he was obviously safe.

At the end of the game the captain of the opposing team came up and said: "Long, I thought you were crooked, but you certainly gave us a break when you called that man out at the plate." Telling about it, Huey would laugh and say: "Why wouldn't I give 'em a break when my boys were five runs to the good. The dad-blamed fool didn't seem to realize that Winnfield had won the game."

Getting the Right Jury.

When he was practicing law in Shreveport, he was defending a man charged with some criminal offense. His client was as guilty as sin, and the State had the goods on him. It looked like a hopeless case but Huey could always think of something.

"They used to suspect me of a little sharp practice now and then," Huey related to this writer, with a twinkle in his eye. "Of course that was entirely unfounded. But I knew they suspected me and were watching me like a hawk. I knew practically every man on the jury panel. I could tell which ones were against me and which would be for me. So the morning before court opened, with the District Attorney and the Sheriff watching every move I made, I circulated around and whispered in the ear of every talesman I knew would vote to convict my client.

"I would say, 'How's the wife and children?' or 'How much cotton do you think you'll make this year?' When we came to pick the jury the District Attorney challenged every man I had spoken to, with the result that nobody was left on the jury except my friends. I got my man off. The Judge was so dam mad he nearly had a fit."

True, but misleading, in a few months Long came back to Louisiana from Washington to campaign for John B. Fournet, his candidate for Associate Justice of the Louisiana Supreme Court. The principal argument put forward by the opposition was that Fournet didn't know much law.

"Don't you pay any attention to lies like that," Huey told the voters. "John Fournet's name is on every law enacted by the Louisiana Legislature for the last seven years."

It was a literal fact. Fournet had been Speaker of the House four years and Lieutenant-Governor for three, and in those capacities it was his duty to sign all bills. Incidentally, Huey was talking to Fournet when he was assassinated.

Reforming a Drinker.

Once a lusty drinker, Huey swore off in his later years, and his persistent efforts to reform the habits of every one around him aroused both amusement and irritation. Take for example, the case of "Uncle Bill," for whom he got a good job with the State Highway Commission. "Uncle Bill" was getting along in years, but he had youthful ideas, and, with his new job he had the cash to gratify his tastes.

"How's Uncle Bill getting along?" Huey inquired a few months later. "He's drinking and running around too much," he was told.

"Is that a fact?" exclaimed the Senator. "I'll fix him. Cut his pay down from $250 a month to $150." It was done.

Some time later Huey inquired again how "Uncle Bill" was doing. "Still carousing around," he was told. "Dad-gum his old hide," said Huey. "This time I will really fix him. Cut him off the payroll and send him back to Winnfield. Raise his boy's pay $30 a month and tell him to send Uncle Bill enough for shoes and chewing tobacco."

"And now," Huey would relate afterward, "Uncle Bill is back home with his family and prays in church every Sunday morning. The way to reform a man is to shut off his source of supply."

Exasperated by Blunders.

Long was constantly exasperated by the blunders of his local leaders. He seemed not to realize that his unwillingness to have strong men around him was responsible. Standing in his hotel suite in January, in the midst of a score of high State officials, he complained bitterly about something which had been bungled in his absence, and, turning to this writer, exclaimed: "I ain't got a soul around me with sense enough to come in out of the rain."

During one of the many special sessions ordered by him he called a caucus of Long members of the Legislature. A girl reporter told him she'd like to attend it, because she had never been in a caucus.

"Don't waste your time," he said. "A caucus of this Legislature is nothing but a speech by Huey Long."

His restless, driving energy seemed almost inexhaustible. He moved with incredible suddenness and speed. I would talk to him outside the Senate chamber in Washington one afternoon, and call his office the next morning to learn that he had flown to New Orleans during the night. The next day he would be making a speech in the Senate.

But even Long had his physical limitations. Thirty seconds before he was shot he walked from the chamber where the House of Representatives was in special session, down the corridor to the Governor's office—for a purpose which will never be known—entered the anteroom, suddenly threw up his arms and wearily exclaimed:

"Oh, I have too much to do!" He wheeled and strode out, to receive the bullet which killed him.

Massachusetts Insurance Plan

quest of employers and to tell the workers the advantages of savings bank life insurance. In many cases their activities result in the establishment of an employer's agency which receives applications for insurance and transmits them, as well as premiums to a particular issuing bank.

Premiums may be paid to the banks monthly, quarterly, semiannually or annually. There are no weekly premiums, as in the case of some of the companies.

"It is a common practice," Dr. Berman says, "for policy holders to make regular deposits with a savings bank and to authorize the bank to turn over to its insurance department, or in case it is not an issuing bank, to the insurance department of another bank, amounts equal to the regular premium as they become payable.

The size of the premiums is established by the State Division of Savings Bank Life Insurance, and is uniform for all the banks. The dividends to the policy holders differ, however, from bank to bank, depending upon the efficiency of each bank's insurance operations. Thus the thrifty insurance purchaser can shop around to see what savings bank is paying the largest dividends. The larger the dividends, the cheaper the insurance.

Dr. Berman finds that "Savings Bank Life Insurance is held to a great extent by workers and others receiving low incomes."

Analysis of Types.

"An analysis of applications for savings bank life insurance from Nov. 1, 1929, to June 30, 1934," he says, "indicates that approximately 50 per cent were wage earners, clerical workers or farmers; 12 per cent were from the professional and business classes; 25 per cent were home makers and students, and 13 per cent could not be definitely classified in any of the three foregoing groups."

Dr. Berman says that during the three months of 1934 for which records were available only 4.45 per cent of the total number of applicants sought as much as $5000 or more of savings bank life insurance, and only 2.2 per cent applied for as much as $6000 or more.

Coming to the technical side of insurance operations, Dr. Berman shows that the greatest factor in economy of the savings bank system has been the low cost of operation, due to the fact that no commissions are paid for selling the insurance. He cites the following ratios between expenses for operation and the premium incomes for the banks' insurance departments and for the ordinary insurance sold by the private companies:

	Savings Bank Ordinary Insurance Per Cent.	Private Company Ordinary Insurance Per Cent.
1927 — —	4.55	18.82
1932 — —	5.18	15.44
1933 — —	5.	14.14

In 1934, Dr. Berman says, the ratio of expenses to premium income for the system as a whole declined to 4.84 per cent. He does not give the 1934 figure for the private companies.

"A second reason for the lower cost of savings banks life insurance," Dr. Berman continues, "is that the system has enjoyed a more favorable mortality experience than that of the insurance companies."

Mortality Figures.

The estimated normal mortality figures, as everyone knows, are much higher than the actual figures. It is from this difference that many companies have built up their reserves or paid dividends to policyholders. Thus this group showing the lower percentage of the normal figures is in the better position.

Following is Dr. Berman's comparison of the actual to normal or expected mortality:

	Savings Bank Insurance Per Cent	Private Company Insurance Per Cent
1922 — — — —	45.36	53.68
1927 — — — —	43.74	53.78
1932 — — — —	39.85	63.10
1933 — — — —	36.77	63.31

Desirable Risks.

"Probably the most important influence aside from the age composition of the body of policyholders is the fact that as a general rule the savings bank policyholders are better insurance risks than those of private companies. One reason for this is the fact that since savings bank insurance is sold without the intercession of insurance agents whose income depends upon the amount of insurance they sell, it is probable that a larger proportion of insurance is sold to persons who are more desirable risks. Since the method of paying agents for selling industrial, or weekly premium, insurance places an especially weighty inducement upon these agents to get policyholders to take out as much insurance as possible, and since the applicant for industrial insurance is accepted without a preliminary medical examination, the likelihood of overselling less desirable risks is even greater in the case of industrial insurance than it is in the case of ordinary insurance.

"Another factor to be considered in accounting for the relatively favorable mortality experience of the savings banks is that their policies are as a rule held by persons of low or moderate incomes. It is generally agreed that a policy holder who has a policy of many thousands of insurance is not as a rule as good an insurance risk as is a small policy holder.

In Modern Plant.

"A third factor deserving of mention is the fact that, especially in recent years, savings-bank life insurance has been sold to workers in modern industrial establishments. The fact that in these plants the health of the workers is likely to be safeguarded to a greater extent than is the case with backward industrial establishments has probably resulted in the entrance into the savings-bank insurance system of a considerable number of wage-earning policy holders who are excellent insurance risks."

One of the paradoxical findings of Dr. Berman was the officials of the relatively small Massachusetts savings banks made more profitable investment of the life insurance funds than the highly paid officials of the large private companies. He cites the following rates earned on the assets of the company and those of the banks:

	Savings banks insurance per cent.	Private company insurance per cent
1927 — — —	5.25	5.02
1933 — — —	4.67	4.25

"As a general rule," Dr. Berman observed, "there is no great difference between the limitations placed by law on the kinds of property in which the two types of insurance establishments may invest their funds.

"The only important exception to this statement is that whereas the mutual savings banks of Massachusetts may invest only in real estate and mortgages within the state, the companies may make such investments anywhere in the United States.

The Chief Items.

"Data on the proportion of assets invested in various types of property by the banks and by the companies indicate that only three items are of importance, namely, mortgages, bonds and policy loans. Savings banks have in general invested a greater proportion of their funds in mortgages and a smaller proportion in bonds and policy loans than the companies. There is no reason to suppose that the investments in policy loans by the insurance companies have yielded a smaller rate of return than those of the banks. Nor is it possible to determine upon the basis of the available evidence that the banks' investments in bonds have been in general more profitable than those of the companies.

Dr. Berman after studying the criticisms against the Massachusetts system, finds that only one or two are valid and that these do not explain the system's extraordinary success. The complaints have been and are (1) that the system is subsidized by the State; (2) that it has been subsidized by the Savings Insurance League; (3) that the savings banks have charged insufficient expenses against their insurance departments, and (4) that the private companies pay higher State and Federal taxes.

Commenting on the State subsidy complaint, Dr. Berman finds that the State has spent a total of $551,146 on the system. "The evidence indicates," he says, "that the subsidy from the taxpayers cannot have been a factor of importance in bringing about a low cost of savings bank life insurance. Such a subsidy, since it is no longer in effect, obviously has nothing to do with the present low cost of such insurance."

Expense of League.

Answering the criticism regarding the Brandeis Savings Insurance League, a private organization, Dr. Berman says:

"First hand examination of the detailed financial records of the league for the period from 1908 to 1933 indicates that its expenditures in behalf of savings bank life insurance have not equalled as much as 1 per cent of the premium income of the whole system."

The question of charges made by the savings bank against their insurance departments is a matter for the individual banks, Dr. Berman reports. He says that an analysis of the operations for 1933 "does not justify the general conclusion that savings bank policyholders have been subsidized by the depositors." He finds that eight banks undercharged their savings departments $1751, while 13 banks charged their departments $38,390 more than otherwise would have been required.

"On this basis," he concludes, "it appears that as far as the system as a whole is concerned the insurance departments of the banks have paid $36,639 more than their 'proper' share of joint salaries and rent."

Dr. Berman reports that there is a difference in the tax burden of approximately 1½ per cent of the premium income in favor of the savings bank system. The companies pay fees from which the banks are exempt.

Comparative Cost.

Dr. Berman's report on the comparative cost of the insurance to the average policyholders is too complicated even to summarize in this article. The Associated Industries of Massachusetts, an organization of business men, has compiled figures, however, which strikingly illustrate the difference in costs of the company and the savings bank system. An announcement last year by the Savings Insurance League gave the following report of the Associated Industries' studies:

"Four industrial establishments, two each in Worcester and Springfield, with a total of 6000 employes were carefully studied. Some 5592 employes, or 93.2 per cent of the total, were found to be purchasing weekly premium insurance. The average premium paid per week per employe was $1.76. The investigation revealed the further fact that if these employes canceled their industrial insurance and used the same money to buy savings banks life insurance, they would be able to buy 2.39 times more insurance, or they would be able to buy the same amount of insurance at only 41.8 per cent of the present cost."

In transmitting Dr. Berman's report to Secretary of Labor Perkins, Commissioner Isador Lubin of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, who sponsored the study, said:

"With the great interest existing at present in all public measures relating to the greater economic security of the people of the country, this report has a peculiar timeliness and value."

Lubin might have been more specific and said that Dr. Berman's report might well serve as a handbook for legislators seeking to establish the Massachusetts system in their own states. Bills looking to this end have been introduced in several State Legislatures with little result—one was introduced at the last session of the Missouri Legislature. Dr. Berman's admirable study should revive the issue.

repulse the Ethiopians if they took the offensive.

At 9 o'clock that night the Italian advance started. The army was divided into four brigades. The Second Infantry Brigade, commanded by Gen. Dabormida, consisted of two regiments, native militia and irregulars, with 18 guns. In Gen. Arimondi's First Infantry Brigade were one regiment of Bersaglieri (riflemen), one line regiment and native troops, with 12 guns. Gen. Albertone commanded the Native Brigade, which was composed of four native battalions and native irregulars, with 14 guns. The Third Infantry Brigade, under Gen. Ellena, had five line battalions, an Alpine battalion, a native battalion and a group of engineers, with 12 guns. There were altogether 14,319 fighting men, of whom 6400 were natives, and 56 guns—44 light mountain pieces and 12 quick-firers. The Italian force also included nearly 3000 other men in auxiliary services, such as transport and ambulance corps.

120,000 Ethiopians Lie In Wait For Advancing Troops.

Waiting for the advancing Italians—and apprised of their movements—were, according to the most detailed accounts, some 120,000 Ethiopian soldiers, spread about the vicinity of Adowa. About 80,000 of them were armed with rifles, the rest with spears and swords. There were thousands of horsemen, including 5000 Galla cavalrymen from the southern plains, notable riders and fighters. The town of Adowa was occupied by 15,000 men, headed by the redoubtable Ras Makonnen. In his own camp Menelik had 25,000 riflemen and 6000 of cavalry, as well as the 3000 foot soldiers and 6000 horsemen of his Queen, the Empress Taitou, who accompanied him to war. The Ethiopians had 42 guns and a large supply of ammunition.

Baratieri sent his men forward in three columns, separated by mountain ridges, with a fourth held back to follow slowly to a reserve position. Gen. Dabormida commanded the right column, Gen. Arimondi the center and Gen. Albertone the left. By dawn they were supposed to be in position along the heights centering on Mount Belah, a little to the east of Adowa, their flanks protected by deep ravines, a broad slope in front of them, and in hills a mile or so in the rear, Gen. Ellena's brigade of reserves.

Brigade Becomes Lost Because of Faulty Map.

Albertone had been directed to take up his position on the hill known as Kidane Meret, at the southern end of the Mount Belah front. But when, after hours of hard going over rough and narrow paths, he reached the place marked as his objective on the staff map, he found he was not on a hill but in a hollow. Something was wrong, and he decided it must be the map as guides said Kidane Meret lay some distance ahead. He pushed on, and at daybreak was close to the hill which the guides said was the one he sought. Without knowing it, he was two miles ahead of the position planned for him. The other advance brigades, now reaching their posts, also were unaware that he was not in his appointed place, as mountains shut off their view to the south.

Instead of leading his entire brigade to Kidane Meret (it seems that the hill ahead actually was so named and the staff map was inaccurate in placing it two miles back) Albertone sent a native battalion ahead to occupy it and reconnoiter. That scouting party met the enemy; with their clash began the battle of Adowa.

Toward the advanced battalion came a body of Ethiopian riflemen, advancing over the rough ground in skirmish line, firing and shouting. The Italian outfit — native troops—stood its ground for a time, while the number of assailants grew rapidly. Then it began an orderly retreat. But a rush of the dark-skinned warriors overwhelmed the rearguard and the retreat turned into frantic flight. Part of the battalion got back to the brigade, but it had lost 16 of its 18 white officers; 14 had been shot, two captured.

With Flanks Threatened, Albertone Falls Back.

Then the whole brigade was attacked. Thousands of Menelik's soldiers appeared in front and on the flanks of the Italian force, forming a crescent shaped line of battle. They advanced in groups, clustered around their chiefs. Despite the modern rifles, the attack was a scene of barbaric pageantry. Bright-colored battle cloaks swirled. The early sun glinted on spearheads and swords, on the ornamented shields and precious-metal armbands of chieftains. Some of the chiefs were mounted, the fierceness of their appearance heightened by the skin of lion or leopard over their shoulders.

Albertone's brigade was formed in a long line along the slopes of a hill called Adi Vetshi. He had 14 mountain guns to aid his rifles, but the Ethiopians brought artillery of their own into action. The assailants placed Hotchkiss quick-firers on a nearby hill and they proved to be more effective than the Italian guns, throwing shells with disastrous results into the opposing battery.

Albertone steadily repulsed frontal attacks, but his own men were dropping fast and the enemy kept pouring out of the hills. Masses of the Ethiopians were collecting on his flanks. He decided at last that he must try to rejoin the other brigades before he was completely surrounded.

Retreating Force Wiped Out; Commander Captured.

He left a battalion and two batteries manned by Sicilians to cover the retreat. The gunners were directed to "sacrifice" themselves to save the brigade.

They sacrificed themselves, but they could not save the brigade. The charging Ethiopians could not be stopped when they saw the enemy in retreat. With frenzied shouts of "Kill! Kill!" they surged up to the guns, heedless of their losses, swept over the batteries, over the rearguard, and closed in on the main body of the retiring force. Evidence of the devastating effect of that charge: Out of one battery of four officers and 62 men, one officer and two men survived; in the other battery of four officers and 73 men, four men escaped.

Step by step Albertone's brigade fought its way against the swarm of dark warriors, who pressed closer with every rush. Presently formations were broken and the fight became a hand-to-hand affair. It could not last long under those conditions. By early afternoon the brigade had been wiped out; except for a few men who had escaped singly or in small groups from the melee and had outrun their pursuers, its members had been killed, wounded or captured. Albertone himself was wounded and taken prisoner.

Second Brigade, Sent to Aid, Misled by Echoes.

While Albertone's doomed brigade was fighting for its life, the rest of the Italian army got into action. The two brigades under Arimondi and Dabormida had reached their positions on the Belah slopes as planned, and Ellena's reserve brigade had taken up its post in the rear. It was not until some of Arimondi's troops had been sent around to the southwestern slope of Mount Belah, where they had a view of the country to the south, that Baratieri learned Albertone's brigade was missing. When, a little later, the sound of artillery came from far ahead, he realized that the Native Brigade must be heavily engaged and possibly in need of help. To give support to the advanced section he sent Gen. Dabormida's brigade forward from its position on his right.

With some 4000 men, most of them white troops, and 18 guns, Dabormida moved down from the Spur of Belah and marched west. Albertone's hard-pressed force was three miles to the south, but the rescue column didn't discover that in time. The crags and gorges of that mountainous region played acoustic tricks with the booms of cannon and Dabormida mistook the direction from which the sound came. He marched on west, along a small stream, and into the Valley of Mariam Shavitu.

Along that valley, not yet in sight, crowds of Ethiopian fighters were advancing toward him.

Ethiopians Surround Gen. Dabormida, Cut Off Retreat.

The brigade halted and sent out a scouting party. It became clear then that Albertone was in the hills to the south, and Dabormida sent his contingent of native irregulars to find him. This group had gone only as far as the heights just south of its brigade when it encountered the van of the Ethiopian force emerging from the valley. There was a short, sharp fight on a high ridge, and the remnants of the irregular battalion were scurrying back to the main body, leaving as casualties their commander, Maj. de Vito, and all but one of his 14 white subalterns.

Gen. Dabormida quickly stationed his brigade in battle order, throwing a line of troops across the valley, placing others in heights at his left. The guns were kept in the valley, which was floored with bushes and tall grass.

A constantly increasing swarm of savage warriors hurled themselves time after time at this position, but for two hours or so the rifles and mountain guns of Dabormida threw them back. An Ethiopian battery opened up on the Italians, but was ineffective; return fire almost silenced it. Soon Ethiopian dead littered the field. The morale of the Italians was excellent. This was the way things were supposed to go when barbarians opposed a civilized army.

The attack weakened; the enemy seemed to have given up the attempt to dislodge the brigade. Dabormida ordered an advance. By bayonet charges, against slight opposition, he advanced his center and brought his guns up to a better position. His soldiers cheered lustily.

At this inappropriate time it was discovered that a mighty throng of Ethiopians was moving toward the brigade from the rear. Dabormida's line of retreat was blocked. The enemy was all around him.

Band Cut to Pieces When Ammunition Runs Out.

The only thing to do, Dabormida decided, was to fight back to the Belah hills and the support of Arimondi's and Ellena's brigades. So again the Adowa battlefield presented the spectacle of an isolated band of Italian troops slowly and desperately cutting its way through a swarming press of enemies. There were hours of it, under a violent sun.

The brigade reached another isolated group of comrades, a battalion which had been separated from the main body of the army by an Ethiopian charge and had resolutely defended itself since. The two forces joined.

Exhaustion of their ammunition at last ended the effective resistance of Dabormida's troops. Unable to beat off the enemy with gunfire, their ranks were quickly penetrated by fierce rushes, and the battle broke up into clumps of savage action. Some of the Italians, seeing further fighting was useless, surrendered—and became prisoners of war or were killed, depending on the impulsiveness of their captors. A few escaped among the rocks and brush. Gen. Dabormida and Maj. de Amicis, the gallant commander of the battalion which had joined him, went down fighting. Dabormida's brigade was destroyed. It gave the Ethiopians their toughest struggle of the day.

Ethiopians Swarm on Main Force; Three Battles in One.

Long before Dabormida's brigade had been conquered and while Albertone's battered troops were still putting up a fight, the main Italian force, with which Baratieri had remained, was attacked. Shortly before midday Menelik's wild warriors appeared suddenly on the Belah front. They had come through between the two advanced brigades. A rapid charge took them up to the eminence known as the Spur of Belah, on Arimondi's right, and from there many continued on to the heights where Ellena's reserves were stationed.

A charge of Bersaglieri failed to dislodge the Ethiopians from the spur. A rush of the tribesmen carried their line to high ground south of Arimondi—ground where Albertone's brigade would have been if it had taken the position planned for it. When Baratieri discovered Albertone's absence he had stationed a native battalion from the reserves at this place. But the Ethiopians brushed this force aside. Most of the native battalion fled without waiting for the enemy to come to close quarters; the rest, including the white officers, were buried under waves of the assailants. Col. Galliano, the commander, was killed after he had been taken prisoner.

Arimondi's brigade, on Mount Belah, was beset by enemies then, in front, on the right and on the left. It was under artillery as well as rifle fire. The numbers of the enemy seemed limitless.

The battle of Adowa had become three battles in one. Arimondi's force on Belah, Albertone's column to the southwest and Dabormida's band to the northwest were the centers of three boiling seas of action. The Ethiopians had fallen upon three separated parts of the Italian army, had isolated them from one another, and were separately overwhelming them.

Gen. Arimondi Killed as He Rallies His Men.

At Baratieri's order, Arimondi fell back to another eminence, Mount Rajo, where he would have Ellena on his right. The withdrawal was accomplished only by dint of severe fighting. Some of the Ethiopian charges carried right up to the Italian ranks. Gen. Arimondi was one of the casualties of the retreat—killed as he rallied his men to fight off one of those wild rushes.

The brigade reached Mount Rajo, but found no safety there. It was still under heavy fire, and the ever-advancing enemy threatened to flank it again. It could expect no aid from Ellena, who was having all he could do to defend himself. The soldiers were disheartened and suffering from exhaustion and thirst.

Baratieri realized that the best he could hope to do now was to save what was left of his army. He ordered the two brigades—the remnants of them—to retreat toward their fortified camp, leaving the two advanced brigades to their fate.

Down from the heights the Italian force struggled, and in three columns it set out through the Valley of Gundapta. For five or six miles the tired, beaten troops had to fight their way against enemies who seemed to be frenzied with lust to kill, who leaped and yelled madly and came on with utter disregard of bullets. Before the pursuit drew off, the retreating army, its wretchedness increased by the fact that its ammunition was almost gone, was thoroughly demoralized, little more than a mob in flight. The survivors of that march reached camp only because the foes that harried them made no serious effort to block their path. Before nightfall even the pursuit ceased. Many of the attacking thousands had been called off earlier in the afternoon to reinforce the host that had surrounded and was making an end of Dabormida's hard-fighting brigade.

Baratieri and Ellena, with their fellow fugitives, got back to their camp the next day, after resting part of the night. The camp was quickly abandoned and the Italian field force took up its headquarters well to the north. Most of Menelik's army dispersed a few days later. It had done its work.

Italian Loss 6678 Killed or Wounded, 3000 Captured.

The Italian loss at Adowa was close to 10,000 men—6678 killed or wounded and almost 3000 captured. An indication of the desperate character of the fighting is the fact that the dead—more than 5000—far outnumbered the wounded. The casualties were particularly heavy among officers; when their men were firing from a prone position, offering as small targets as possible to enemy bullets, these leaders sauntered along the firing line, scorning shelter, trying to uphold white prestige by appearing indifferent to danger. All the Italian artillery was left in the hands of the enemy.

Accurate figures on losses among the Ethiopians are lacking, but it has been estimated that about 7000 of them were killed and 10,000 wounded.

Among the Italian prisoners were between 1000 and 1500 native troops, and several hundred of them were punished by the Ethiopians as traitors. The punishment was multilation—the right hand and left foot of each were cut off.

Independence of Ethiopia Acknowledged in Treaty.

Peace came quickly after Adowa. General Baldissera arrived in Africa, supplanted Baratieri and reorganized the Italian forces, but refrained from attempting a new conquest of Menelik's kingdom. The Ethiopian campaign was unpopular with the Italian public of that day, and there was no immediate demand to "avenge Adowa." Instead, the nation's anger at the defeat was visited on the two men held chiefly responsible for it. Premier Crispi resigned and Baratieri was court-martialed, accused of negligence and abandoning his command. Acquitted, he left the army, retired to a provincial town and devoted himself, according to a biographer, "to study and works of piety." He died in 1901.

Before the year was out a new treaty between Italy and Ethiopia was signed at Addis Ababa. It annulled the Treaty of Ucciali, provided for the payment of an indemnity of about $4,000,000 to Menelik and the release of the Italian prisoners, and acknowledged the complete independence of Ethiopia.

Book Publishers Take Cue From Film-Makers

Writer for Screen Tells How Rapid Sellers Can Be Thrown Together, Following the Established Hollywood Method.

By H. H. NIEMEYER

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 21.

THE movies are going in for real literature. That is the movie factories are saying, by way of their publicity departments, that Art, with a big A, is going to predominate from now on. They say it—and then order a new shipment of machine guns for a cycle of pistol pastorals and engage a bunch of pirates for blood-and-thunder sea stories, for the cinema magnates know exactly what is box-office and what is not. Every once in a while an almost genuine literary effort creeps into the movie cathedrals. Sometimes it does business, sometimes it does not. If it does it has to have the necessary tried and true situations expected by the cash customers.

Having succeeded, pretty well, in wrecking the legitimate stage, killing off vaudeville entirely, putting a crimp in musical comedies and now turning attention to grand opera, the galloping tintypes are having their influence on literature. Not, perhaps, on the world's better writers—although many an author who is supposed not to think in terms of money does see to it that his possible movie rights are protected in the contract with his publishers. But the writers of brisk and lurid popular reading matter, with an eye to the main chance, think in terms of celluloid.

Even the publishers of these rapid sellers are movie-minded. Idwal Jones, a lighter highbrow among magazine authors, who has turned to writing things for the film magnates, declares that the movie technique is being tried out by certain book publishers. "Just let's see," says Mr. Jones, "how this cinema construction works out in a book factory. To begin with we will pick a publisher who has no desire to soar into the empyrean—even if he could pronounce it—but just turn out books as an auto manufacturer makes cars, to sell fast, make profits and be quite satisfactory at the price. Nothing fancy, or hand-tooled, but just flivvers.

"He decides to make 70 books the coming year. His reading staff picks out 70 workable plots that have been tried often before and not found wanting. If they are original, they probably won't do. Literary geniuses seldom are original. Shakespeare never invented a plot, nor did Homer, nor Dante—at least so he has been told.

"'Ah, here's a good plot!' he remarks, rubbing his hands. 'It always was good. And I like the names of the characters.'

"After giving the genius whose submitted plot was liked a thumping sum, he engages a scenario writer to expand it to the size of a booklet.

"This takes about a month. It is submitted to the dozen sub-publishers on his staff. If it doesn't deal with inter-racial love affairs, race or class conflicts, or put Mexicans, Finns, Ethiopians, Englishmen or Tahitians in a bad light, one of the sub-publishers will decide to chance it. To have a product sell everywhere, it must be careful on prejudical matters.

"THEN four or five experts are engaged to write the whole novel out. A geodetic expert is hired to see that the geography is right. A historian will check up on the dates and ascertain who was King or President at the time. The Wardrobe Department will assure that everyone is correctly garbed, and that Lord Deuceace doesn't wear a bowler hat with his frock-coat when he goes to Parliament. Lords may do this in real life, but not in rightly prepared movies and books. The Property Department will suggest changes, advising that the Queen Anne furniture be ditched in favor of a good modern design of Sheraton, because it suggests a more gracious pattern of living, is in style anyway, and the last three best-sellers were all done in Sheraton.

"The heroine plays a grand piano in the drawing-room by candle light, and her voice is exquisite. She must have the proper songs, though; no old ones, and none that are copyright, or the publisher may have a suit for infringement on his hands. So he engages a pair of well-known song writers to do the lyrics, and, possibly, Eric Korngold, to compose the score:

"If it is discovered that she and the scheming Mme. Roccabruna from Monte Carlo are both brunette or blonde, the Cosmetic Department is fetched in to see who shall be changed. For the French edition of the book Mme. Roccabruna must be a tow-head, as fair as a Norwegian. The French will stand for blonde angels in art, but not in books, and assuredly not on the stage.

"Now the novel is set for the polishing. Seven novelists of the highest financial, if not literary, rank tackle the job, each rewriting it in his own way. None will know who rewrote it last, nor who will rewrite it next. Then, with a beating of drums it will be offered to the suffrage of the eagerly waiting public."

Will it be art? Well, what do you think? Mr. Jones, with his check coming in every Saturday night from the studio, refrains from going into that. But it works well in the movies. It always has if you consider just the popular films costing a bare million dollars or so. The highbrow movies are something else again.

FANCHON and Marco, with a lot of theaters on their hands in St. Louis and elsewhere and unable to get enough films to keep 'em all open, are going to turn producers on their own account. Of course if the courts decide, whenever they get around to it, that Warners, Paramount and RKO must sell to their St. Louis houses, maybe F. and M. will give up the idea, but right now the former brother and sister team of hoofers who became magnates via the stage presentation thing, are hot to start their own cameras rolling.

Strange to say, since they know a lot about musicals, they will produce musical films and they have Cab Calloway and his band already signed up and are negotiating with Jimmy Dunn to play the lead in their first offering. This opus will get under way next month without regard to the outcome of their legal entanglements and Mike Marco is looking into the all-color idea—looking into it with one eye at least while he keeps the other on the bank roll.

Jock Whitney, who did "Becky Sharp," you know, after the fashion of the rainbow, is about to begin another Technicolor feature. His Pioneer Studio has purchased an original story by Oliver H. P. Garrett called "Encore" and it will be made ready for screening at once. Seven other all-color films are reported to be on the Whitney schedule but "Encore" is the only one definitely set. That the new color is no passing fancy is shown by the fact that Walt Disney, one of the first to introduce it, still uses it with success and his imitators are countering with color of one type or another. Producers of feature pictures, too, are still tinkering with color in their laboratories.

Members of Audience Drafted for Jurors In Broadway Thriller

A PROMISING mystery melodrama, with a variety of new tricks, has burst upon the New York scene. It is called "The Night of January 16," and is a courtroom show on the pattern of "The Trial of Mary Dugan."

The plot concerns a minor Wall street king who loves his secretary. He discovers that it is necessary to make it appear that he has committed suicide and then dies, quite unintentionally. The secretary is charged with murder.

A jury for the trial is selected each night at random from members of the audience, and two endings to the play are possible, to fit verdicts of guilty and not guilty. In the jury on the first night were Jack Dempsey and Edward J. Reilly, counsel for Richard Bruno Hauptmann. When a handwriting expert on the stand said, "I am a master of an exact science," Reilly laughed out loud.

Novelty Short Film In Three-Dimension

The long-discussed films in three dimensions—which will appear to have depth as well as width and height—are to get their start with a novelty short subject entitled "Audioscopic," now under production. Audiences will probably see seltzer water spurting out of the screen and will have to duck picture baseballs that come toward them. At least, that's the type of trick promised. Pete Smith will be the master of ceremonies for the show.

Ted Shawn Dancers To Return Oct. 19

Ted Shawn and his men dancers, who presented a program at the Municipal Auditorium last February and have since been on tour in England, will return to St. Louis for one engagement, the night of Saturday, Oct. 19. Their appearance, at the auditorium, will be sponsored by the College Club.

Since last spring, Shawn has developed an entirely new program, the principal feature of which is a Greek "molpai," a 40-minute dramatic portrayal by the dance corps.

Cast of "Twentieth Century."

The cast for "Twentieth Century," Hecht-MacArthur satire which the Mummers will present at the Wednesday Club on Oct. 11 and 12, includes Viola Perle, Glenn Saxton, Al Hohengarten, Richard Hugo, Mickey Schneider, Rita Oberbeck, Bernard Galvin, Harvey Goodman, W. H. Holland, Wesley Gore and Warren Smith. Tryouts for "Rip Van Winkle," second major production, will be held Saturday, Sept. 28, at the Mummers' Studio, 4477 Olive street.

Little Theater Picks Odets Play and Three Others

THE repertory of the Little Theater during the coming season will consist of Chekhov's "The Cherry Orchard," "The School for Husbands" by Arthur Guiterman and Lawrence Langner, "Wunderkind," by Gretchen Damrosch and Samuel Chotzinoff; "Awake and Sing," by Clifford Odets, and a modern comedy yet to be selected.

"The Cherry Orchard," one of the most significant serious plays in any language, has not had a major production in St. Louis in recent years, although it has been performed often in New York, principally by Eva LeGallienne's company. "The School for Husbands," an adaptation from Moliere, was a Theater Guild play of last season.

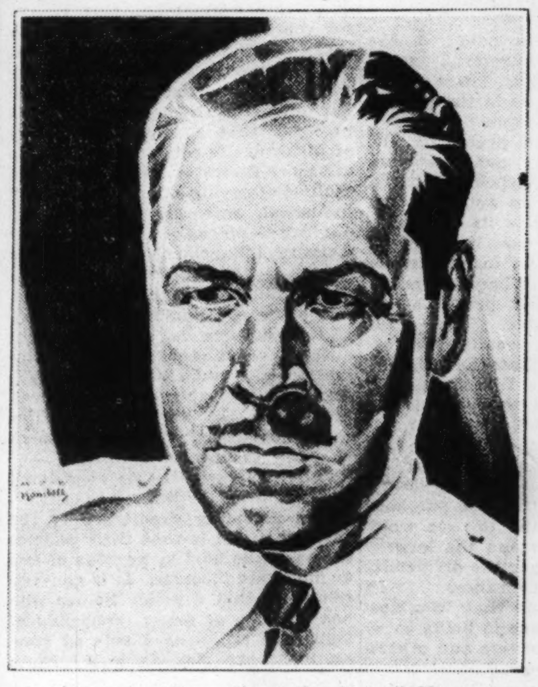
The play "Wunderkind," won the Little Theater prize for last year and will have its first production here. Its authors are the daughter of the famous conductor, Walter Damrosch, and the music critic of the New York Evening Post.

Of usual interest is the selection of Odet's "Awake and Sing." The author is regarded as the first important American playwright to develop since Eugene O'Neill. "Awake and Sing," story of Jewish family life in the Bronx, played to a long engagement on Broadway last season and has been reintroduced this fall.

The Little Theater plays will be directed by F. Cowles Strickland, who is entering on his third season here. Gordon Carter will again design the scenic settings. Pre-season tryouts, by which Strickland hopes to discover new players, will be held at the theater, 812 Union boulevard, on Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings of this week. No requirements or fees are necessary.

Pacific Air Line in Pictures.

Even before service is started on the new Trans-Pacific air line, the setting will be used for a motion picture. In "Charlie Chan's Secret," Warner Oland will fly to Honolulu to solve another murder mystery.



Jack Holt in "Storm Over the Andes," Missouri.

"Dark Angel" Reveals Improved Screen Taste

Silent Success of Decade Ago Rewritten and Produced With Finer Distinction—Movie Houses Appeal to Legion Visitors.

By COLVIN McPHERSON.

TEN years ago when we saw Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky in the silent—except for weeping—version of "The Dark Angel," many of us concluded that it was one of the grandest fleeting phantoms we had ever beheld. In the last decade, we have cherished the premonition sequence where the lovely Vilma, about to go to bed, seemed to know, some way, that her lover was ready to start on the long, long trail somewhere in France; we have loved the theatrical finish, where love triumphs over blindness. Now Hollywood has made the show again, with every resource from Lillian Hellman, brilliant author of New York's reigning dramatic success, "The Children's Hour," to fox-hounds that were once residents of the Busch kennels here. And "The Dark Angel" is again a swell show. In fact, anyone connected with the great California back-lot enterprise may well be proud. From start to finish, the drama at Loew's carries conviction. Some of the worth is accounted for in the fine writing, in the selection of new details to round out an old story. Yet much of it is to the credit of fine acting and direction. The surprise is Merle Oberon, who has taken on more normal eyebrows and the manner of youth so successfully as almost to obliterate her mincing Marquise Yorisaka or her purring wife in "Folies Bergere." She is a young Englishwoman, charming, in love with Fredric March yet eventually so burdened by grief, and playing so well under that weight, that she must be accounted a fine dramatic actress. Then I like Janet Beecher, a Jefferson City Missourian, who projects into a minor role a gifted intelligence. Her farewell to her boys as they leave for war is truly gripping. Fredric March digs into his role, Herbert Marshall wins sympathy for his somewhat too-tearful characterization. John Halliday, little Fay Chaldecott, even extra players are well chosen. The presentation of the war is in several tastefully chosen bits, the best of which is the stormy channel crossing. One thing only keeps "The Dark Angel" from being classed as a great picture. Since it first appeared, other pictures have stolen its stuff. It remains a No. 1 example of the worth of fine production, no matter what the theme.

TOP HAT. To explain why "Top Hat," at the Orpheum, is not also top-dog among this week's shows, it will be necessary (discounting "The Dark Angel") to review Hollywood's traditional shortsightedness, its mania for repeating anything which makes money. "The Gay Divorcee," about a year ago, was a clever show, an amusing show, a rhythmic masterpiece. It made scads of money. It was in the stars, therefore, that "Gay Divorcee" would be made over again under another name. "Top Hat" is the result. Exchanging Alice Brady for Helen Broderick, the cast is exactly the same. A simple case of mistaken identity, which could and should have been cleared up a dozen times before the end of the picture, takes the place of action. The settings, again in London and at a fashionable watering-place, are an orgy in glaring white neoclassic. Never have musical shows on stage or screen been required to have the plots and subplots of Dickens, Dostoievsky or Hervey Allen, but "Top Hat" rests on its oars too much. It might have been put over, nevertheless, by Irving Berlin's music, which does not quite reach the pace set by previous Astaire-Rogers pictures. This lengthy analysis, however, should not be taken to discredit "Top Hat" unduly. Fred Astaire, that delightful monkey on a stick, and his lovely partner, our own Ginger Rogers, are as winning as ever before. Dance ensembles are interesting, original and smartly staged.

BRIGHT LIGHTS. Sitting through the recent Joe E. Brown operas—"Circus Clown," "Six-Day Bike Rider" and "Alibi Ike"—I had my doubts that the boy was a great comedian. Now comes "Bright Lights" at the Shubert, which ought to entertain anybody. Whether Mr. Brown's exceeding versatility this time may be traced to his long experience in entertaining people is beside the point. His routines go over, with a bang. The story (every picture tells a story, you know) takes him from burlesque show to Broadway, where his happy home with Ann Dvorak is broken up by Patricia Ellis, sassiety gal. Before the romantic debris is reassembled, Joe has opportunity to go through all his stunts. At the Shubert also is "Wanderer of the Wasteland," with a long list of wanderers from the bright lights. Anna Q. Nilsson, Trixie Friganza, Raymond Hatton and Monte Blue, all as supporting players.

DANTE'S INFERNO. The spectacle of Hell, with a great many ancient jokes about same, is the principal entertainment to be found at the Fox Theater. Spencer Tracy, stoker on an ocean liner, goes to Coney Island to develop a side of his nature as crooked as a handful of confetti and after one dodge and another, rises to the top of the heap as an amusement king. But his sinfulness knows no bounds until a big pleasure liner he is operating catches fire at sea, and has to be beached, a la "Morro Castle." By an act of heroism, Spencer is able to wipe out all accounts and presumably settles down somewhere and raises lilies of the valley. The well-known hot place comes in once, by suggestion, in the engine room of liner; next as an unprofitable concession operated by Henry B. Walthall, a "nut" on the subject of Dante; third, as a big-time horror palace operated by Tracy, Walthall and company; next as a vision in Tracy's mind, and last, on the S. S. Paradise. The vision outdoes the other spots. There, Hell looks quite terrible, although with a regrettable percentage of impressionistic dancers among the guests. Sharing the announcements with "Dante's Inferno" is "My Song for You," a British film starring Jan Kiepura, the young Polish Caruso who now finally is in Hollywood.

RED SALUTE. With almost studied naivete, the main film at the Ambassador lets Barbara Stanwyck, a daughter of the U. S. Army, lean toward the most carmine Communism, until, in Juarez, Mexico, she meets a brave sojer, Robert Young, and he tames her, in the unpatented manner of "It Happened One Night," now as familiar to every movie-goer as the streets of Addis Ababa. Cliff Edwards steals the show, and would probably get the second picture, "Born to Gamble," as a bonus.

STORM OVER THE ANDES. The war between Bolivia and Peru comes to the screen at the Missouri. One of those before-breakfast imbroglios, with Jack Holt the ace and Mona Barrie the queen. Whether Jack wins Mona or dies is not quite plain, but the picture ends. Then there's the second one, "The Old Homestead."

THE Mississippi River has had many experiences in its time. It has been discovered, swum in, paddled on, dammed, bridged, fought and raced on, dredged and fished. It has supported Indian canoes, ironclads and hydroplanes. It has been the scene of lovemaking and bootlegging, dancing and murder, baptizing and piracy. It has been navigated by lean gentlemen in armor and plump ladies in shorts. It would seem to be pretty difficult now to give the Mississippi a novel experience.

But human ingenuity has proved to be equal even to that. It has produced a plan for doing something new to the Father of Waters. A group of St. Louisans proposes to put an underwater bridge across the river.

The purpose, of course, is quite utilitarian—to provide a solution of a great traffic problem of the future, and at the same time enhance the distinctiveness of the recently approved river front memorial by an underwater tube, of revolutionary design, supplying a high-speed trafficway across the river.

Engineering problems have been worked out, designs drawn, and backers of the project have made formal application for a loan and grant of $11,965,125 from the Public Works Administration to carry out the idea. The first result of this action was an encouraging response from William M. Spann, Acting State PWA Director, who, after going over the plan, said: "It is one of the best things I have seen in the way of a forward movement for St. Louis — at least 10 years ahead of the times, but certainly feasible from an engineering standpoint." He indicated he would forward the application to Washington with his approval.

THE Mississippi River has had many experiences in its time. It has been discovered, swum in, paddled on, dammed, bridged, fought and raced on, dredged and fished. It has supported Indian canoes, ironclads and hydroplanes. It has been the scene of lovemaking and bootlegging, dancing and murder, baptizing and piracy. It has been navigated by lean gentlemen in armor and plump ladies in shorts. It would seem to be pretty difficult now to give the Mississippi a novel experience.

But human ingenuity has proved to be equal even to that. It has produced a plan for doing something new to the Father of Waters. A group of St. Louisans proposes to put an underwater bridge across the river.

The purpose, of course, is quite utilitarian—to provide a solution of a great traffic problem of the future, and at the same time enhance the distinctiveness of the recently approved river front memorial by an underwater tube, of revolutionary design, supplying a high-speed trafficway across the river.

Engineering problems have been worked out, designs drawn, and backers of the project have made formal application for a loan and grant of $11,965,125 from the Public Works Administration to carry out the idea. The first result of this action was an encouraging response from William M. Spann, Acting State PWA Director, who, after going over the plan, said: "It is one of the best things I have seen in the way of a forward movement for St. Louis — at least 10 years ahead of the times, but certainly feasible from an engineering standpoint." He indicated he would forward the application to Washington with his approval.

Sponsors of the project, which they call a "submerged bridge," are the designer, Arthur J. Widmer, architect and engineer; William H. Biebusch, engineer; Joseph P. Waddock, attorney, and Leslie E. Bright, insurance man. Before filing the PWA application they obtained from State authorities a charter as the Mississippi River Toll Bridge Trustees, under authority of a law passed at the last session of the Legislature, providing for construction of toll bridges by private agencies.

Widmer has had 32 years' experience in reinforced concrete design and has been identified with this type of construction in buildings, as well as bridges and viaducts, from coast to coast.

Final approval of the application would bring to St. Louis a link with the East Side radically different from any underwater crossing now in existence. It would provide for a 46-foot roadway through a reinforced concrete tube laid just below the normal low water bed of the river. This tube would be supported by concrete piers resting on solid rock, approximately 45 feet below the mud of the river bed. It is in this characteristic that the projected tube differs from tunnels under the Hudson River at New York, under the Detroit River and in San Francisco Bay, which are supported throughout their length by stable river or ocean beds.

Such construction under the Mississippi would be impossible, according to Widmer, because of the nature of the river bed, which is constantly shifting. Explaining the salient features of his design, he pointed out that in extreme flood periods the silt of the river bed is entirely scoured away by the current, which increases from six to 14 feet a second. In some floods the water actually reaches a depth of 140 feet. Consequently, any attempt to lay a tunnel at such a depth would be impracticable because the tremendous water pressure during floods would necessitate a design of such strength as to be too costly.

The submerged bridge, as proposed by Engineer Widmer, is designed to withstand great hydrostatic pressures, as well as the terrific horizontal thrust of the river's current. While anchored to rock by the piers, much of its weight would be supported by its own buoyancy, since in flood periods, the tube would be entirely surrounded by water. The outside vertical thickness of the tube would be 20 feet, inside height, 14 feet, outer width 83 feet, with upstream and downstream sides tapered to resist the thrust of the current. Ducts for pumping fresh air into the passage and drawing out foul air and exhaust gas are provided on either side of the roadway in the tapered spaces.

The site of the tube has been placed tentatively between the Municipal and Eads Bridges. It would run in a straight line, slightly diagonally across the river, with the western end near Broadway and Fourth street. An alternate approach site is suggested east of the Old Courthouse, in the midst of the river front memorial. The eastern approach would connect with Illinois State Highway No. 3 several hundred feet north of the Municipal Bridge approach. The length of the enclosed portion would be about 4200 feet. Widmer cites the convenient location of the western approach, accessible not only to the downtown district, but to through traffic along Market and Walnut streets. Entrance would be by means of a circular ramp, banked for high-speed traffic. The eastern end would open directly onto a highway approach, just east of Cahokia Creek. Part of this approach would be relatively high, so that westbound travelers would have a view of the St. Louis skyline before entering the tube.

The proposed construction, according to Widmer, "embodies the use to enormous scale of bold combinations of accepted practices in design." Since the tube sections, 300 feet long, would be practically buoyant, they could be cast on shore, launched and floated to a point above the piers and sunk in place. The ends would be closed for this purpose by temporary bulkheads, which would be removed after adjacent sections were connected and made watertight. "To the uninitiated," Widmer says, "launching and sinking such long sections, weighing 7000 to 8000 tons, might appear unusual and difficult, but it need only be pointed out that the steamship Normandie, weighing many times as much and three times as long, was launched without difficulty."

Among the advantages of the submerged bridge as compared with the overhead type, Widmer says, is that maintenance cost would be much lower and damage to adjacent property on the river banks would be eliminated. In addition, there would be no danger to river traffic from projecting bridge piers and the harbor would be free of obstacles to its possible future use as a landing place for airplanes.

THE sponsors are willing that the project be taken in charge by the city or some other agency, such as the State Highway Department, but they are prepared to go ahead on their own initiative if their application is approved. The loan, comprising 55 per cent of the total estimated cost, would be paid off by toll collections of 10 or 15 cents for each car. The law under which the sponsors are proceeding creates their organization as a "public agency," and requires that the bridge become free as soon as the indebtedness is removed. Widmer believes toll collection would pay off the bonds within eight and a half years.

As a contribution to the cause of creating work, particularly for building trades, the designer points out that some five and a half millions would be spent in direct wages on the project, providing an estimated 6,600,000 man-hours of labor, about equivalent to the work of 3000 men for two years. All of these wages would be spent in St. Louis and vicinity, as well as a large part of the sums paid for materials.

"It seems conservative," says Widmer, "to say that the proposed bridge, because of its size, the boldness of its conception, and more particularly because it is of entirely different character from any other existing structure, would be the outstanding engineering feat of this period. It takes but little imagination to visualize the popular appeal of such a structure."

Making a Profession of Worrying for Other People

The Unique Business Career Which Sally Plunkett Built Up for Herself Through Knowing How to Do All Sorts of Odd Jobs.

NEW YORK.

WHEN Sally Plunkett needed money all at once a year ago, she had no obvious way to get it. She had no profession. She knew nothing about business. And therein arose a new business which in a very few months made it doubtful that she would ever need money again. She has become famous as a professional worrier—a worrier for others, and for a fee.

Like hundreds of women cut adrift at the loss of some mainstay—often enough a husband—she felt utterly at sea when her need arose, along in 1934. Boston-bred, she had eloped to New York before she was out of school, and, though scarcely 40 years old, had four children and one grandchild. She had no way of making money. She was just one of those exceptional but rarely appreciated women—appreciated least of all by themselves—whose fame is limited to a few discerning friends and consists of being an impeccable housekeeper, of knowing how to bring up a servant, who can fix this, or where to buy that and, more important, what to do with it after it's bought.

She budgeted everything. She never left her house to the servants, though it was a large household and there were eight of them.

"They always hated me at first," she recalls with a smile. "But they respected me socn enough. They learned that though I permitted no juggling of accounts, I was scrupulously fair."

In 24 years of running her household—and really running it—she learned where to find all kinds of tradesmen and artisans, specialists in the needs of a big, well-kept and ordinarily social house. She knows where to find the best thick Devonshire cream or the finest turtle soup, and where that precious imported goblet can be put back together again.

Friends who lacked the knowledge, the time, the inclination or the taste, called on her for aid or advice. Other women who pride themselves on efficient households have faced the same sort of showdown that ultimately confronted her, and felt helplessly that they "didn't know how to do anything"—completely ignoring the vast store of specialized and useful knowledge that they have placed at the service of their friends for years.

That was not the case with Sally Plunkett; she recognized the lore was valuable. Once she gave it freely, but now she sells it.

"The amusing thing," she says, "is that I'm getting paid for the knowledge I acquired and the things I did for myself and my own home, except that I've broadened my scope. I'm a general taker-on of all domestic routine responsibilities. For instance, at a fixed fee, I will open your house or apartment, see that everything is dusted and in place—soap in the bathrooms, sheets on the beds, flowers in the vases, food in the icebox and your servants all lined up to bow to you when you arrive. I'll even notify your friends that you're in town again.

"For the host of other things I do, my clients pay no more than they would if they shopped themselves. I get my fee in commissions from the seller. I'll hire servants and delve into their references, but the employment agency pays me.

"A WOMAN I never saw wired me from California that she was coming to New York, would be in town three days and would I please get a complete wardrobe for her for a round-the-world cruise. She gave me her measurements and some of her likes and dislikes. When she arrived, I had everything assembled—some 50 dresses for various occasions and their accessories. I also had an expert fitter on hand to make any alterations if necessary. She tried on everything and was so pleased she bought everything I selected. And an expert maid packed them perfectly. Her bill was nearly $4000, but that was the regular marked price which she would have had to pay if she shopped personally—and you can imagine the running around she would have done in the limited time at her disposal. The shops gave me a liberal commission."

One of the unique orders she filled came in at 9 a. m., calling for a thoroughbred gray stallion, 17 hands high, to be delivered to a banker's stable by 2 p. m. It was. At another time a retired stock broker asked her to find

When the Rich Mr. Etienne's Wife Bestowed Her Affections on the Plumber

SAN FRANCISCO.

WHEN that stern-featured, elderly industrialist, Joseph M. Etienne, discovered that his wife (for whom, at 40, life is well begun) was growing increasingly intimate with an enterprising young plumber in the little town where their summer home is located, he didn't run to a divorce court with his troubles. Possibly he had had his fill of divorce courts many years ago when his first wife won from him $500 a month and the custody of their two children. At any rate he went instead to the court of Superior Judge Hilliard Comstock asking that the plumber be assessed $10,000 in damages for as much of Mrs. Etienne's affections as he had by then succeeded in diverting from their rightful possessor. Why he wanted the money isn't clear, since Etienne couldn't possibly have needed $10,000 as much as Sherman Bartholomew, the plumber, did. But some clew to his motives may lie in the fact that he also requested an injunction to prevent both Bartholomew and his mother, Mrs. Helen Bartholomew, from ever visiting Mrs. Etienne in her San Francisco or her Rio Nido house, or from communicating with her in any way.

It took the Superior Judge 11 months to find the answer, or, rather, to find that it wasn't his business to find any answer. Etienne wasn't given the $10,000 and his wife may still receive any visitors she fancies. But that is not the beginning of this story. Etienne's experiences in courts of civil law go back to the time, years ago, when his daughter, now a grown-up married woman, was just old enough to stand up to the bar and tell the Court that she didn't want to have him in charge of her.

That incident came as the climax to his first marriage, which was not a success either. He had been married at the age of 25 to Mabel Mary Frese of Chicago. They had two children, a boy and a girl. Etienne was successful in business. Presumably they were happily married. But in 1912 Mrs. Etienne sued for divorce, saying that their life for the last two years or so had been fraught with bitterness and cruelty, that her husband was vulgar and had been rude to her. He had, she asserted, showed no interest in her children, stayed away at night without explaining. . . . The suit was not heard at the time, for within two weeks there was a reconciliation, Etienne settled part of his fortune on his wife and they set out to continue their life together.

But within six months, Etienne's lawyer was suing him for his fee, alleging that he had prevented a scandal by getting the name of a presumptive corespondent suppressed during the divorce proceedings. In 1913 Mrs. Etienne brought suit again, and this time she carried through, winning her case on charges of extreme cruelty and constructive desertion. She was awarded custody of the children and the aforementioned alimony of $500 a month.

SOON afterwards, Etienne married Mabel Garcia, who, although only 19 at the time, had just finished divorcing her first husband, a commission merchant. The first Mrs. Etienne, who had become a serious nervous case, died of heart disease soon afterwards—at the age of 36. Her mother, Mrs. Rosina Frese, took over the care of the children and was soon brought into court by Etienne's suit for their custody.

Mrs. Frese, who contended that the only reason he wanted the children was for the $50,000 estate they had inherited from his first wife, brought the girl, then only 13 years old, to testify.

"I want my grandmother for a guardian," little Mabel said with withering directness. "Papa was mean to mama. He threw her down for this other woman, who came to our house as mother's friend. She broke up our home."

The other woman was the present Mrs. Etienne. During the custody suit Mrs. Frese brought in evidence her daughter hadn't wanted to use—evidence to the effect that Mrs. Mabel Garcia had indeed been extremely friendly with her son-in-law before he was divorced for cruelty. In spite of which Etienne was given custody of the unwilling children, though their grandmother was made administratrix of their estate as well as their mother's. Later Mrs. Frese sued unsuccessfully for part of the money she claimed as her daughter's estate.

Then for a time Etienne was free from the alarums and recriminations of lawsuits. His business, the Cyclops Iron Works, prospered. Mrs. Etienne concentrated on bringing up three children—two of them offspring of Etienne's first marriage, one the son of her first husband. They lived here in San Francisco and had a summer home in Rio Nido, about 50 miles north of the city.

It was the remodeling of that summer home that brought about Mrs. Etienne's intimacy with Bartholomew. The young plumber, who was called in to help with the repairs, had been divorced himself only two months before their meeting. And during the time the renovating of her house was going on, Mrs. Etienne boarded with Bartholomew and his mother. That was in the summer of 1933. The following spring Mrs. Etienne had conceived such an affection for Rio Nido that she made her house there a permanent residence.

WHAT took place during the period when Mrs. Etienne had ceased to live with her husband in San Francisco is largely available only in testimony offered at the alienation trial, which began last September and was never publicly completed. The star witness for the plaintiff was Floyd Flair, a San Francisco commercial artist who also had a summer place at Rio Nido. Flair was considered a close friend of the plumber and had also become well acquainted with Mrs. Etienne.

His testimony amounted to this: That he knew of many occasions when Bartholomew and Mrs. Etienne spent the night together on board her yacht, in transient cottages and in San Francisco hotels. That they displayed affection openly in public. That after a few drinks Mrs. Etienne would sit on Bartholomew's lap. That the plumber called her "Mammy." That the two of them were in the habit of kissing each other in public and that they used to joke together about her husband, to whom they referred as "frozen pan." Flair said that Mrs. Etienne frequently mentioned her unhappiness in her marriage and that he had heard Bartholomew suggest that she divorce her husband—"check out," as he had done. Most devastating of the artist's charges was his statement that Bartholomew had told him privately that he was interested in Mrs. Etienne only for her money, that he hoped to get out of the affair with a yacht and $100,000. Flair knew of gifts and substantial checks the plumber had gotten from Mrs. Etienne already, he said.

She herself wasn't given an opportunity to testify. No sooner had Bartholomew finished denying each charge with a flat statement, "It's a CERTAIN congested metropolitan centers may have spectacular traffic troubles, but the State of Massachusetts is more generally and persistently bothered with the dangers and annoyances of clogged streets and highways than any other part of the country. Its roadways are mainly converted from the lanes and post roads of Colonial times—picturesque perhaps, but narrow and treacherous. And although only five states are smaller, none is more densely populated. Massachusetts has 10 times as many people per square mile as Missouri, say. And every year 300,000 visiting motorists compete for right of way with the 1,085,000 who are there already. If careless driving has turned some of our highways into fields of slaughter, those in Massachusetts might well be worse than any other.

Maybe that is why this State is more likely to listen to reason than most, why it has already made considerable progress in the regulation of traffic. And perhaps that is why Dr. Harry R. De Silva, psychology department head at Amherst, has found such a ready hearing for newly-discovered principles that he hopes will be currently accepted soon throughout the country.

Dr. DeSilva has found that driving holds hazards hitherto unsuspected or only guessed at. He has found that many accidents formerly attributed to carelessness or unavoidable road conditions are really caused by physical deficiencies drivers may possess as innocently as a typhoid carrier possesses the seeds of an epidemic—without ever knowing it. Glare-blindness, for instance, is a fairly common and very dangerous ailment. Those who have it may never find it out. Yet it may be possible to cure it altogether by a slight change in diet. Even if it prove incurable, those who suffer from it can be told to guard against its effects before they find themselves impaled on a broken steering post, or smashed against an unshatterable windshield.

That is only one of the many phases of the traffic accident problem that have come within the scope of Dr. DeSilva's investigations. He has developed several mechanical devices which may become standard. His portable "electric eye" measures with precise accuracy the speed of passing automobiles and may eventually be used to enforce his decision—which will be considered for legislation—that 60 miles an hour should be the absolute maximum speed of automobiles anywhere in the State. De Silva, psychology department head at Amherst, has found such a ready hearing for newly-discovered principles that he hopes will be currently accepted soon throughout the country.

Dr. DeSilva has found that driving holds hazards hitherto unsuspected or only guessed at. He has found that many accidents formerly attributed to carelessness or unavoidable road conditions are really caused by physical deficiencies drivers may possess as innocently as a typhoid carrier possesses the seeds of an epidemic—without ever knowing it. Glare-blindness, for instance, is a fairly common and very dangerous ailment. Those who have it may never find it out. Yet it may be possible to cure it altogether by a slight change in diet. Even if it prove incurable, those who suffer from it can be told to guard against its effects before they find themselves impaled on a broken steering post, or smashed against an unshatterable windshield.

That is only one of the many phases of the traffic accident problem that have come within the scope of Dr. DeSilva's investigations. He has developed several mechanical devices which may become standard. His portable "electric eye" measures with precise accuracy the speed of passing automobiles and may eventually be used to enforce his decision—which will be considered for legislation—that 60 miles an hour should be the absolute maximum speed of automobiles anywhere in the State. Since this, like Dr. DeSilva's other conclusions, is not based on guesswork, there is every reason why they will have more than legislative backing. When Massachusetts completes its already advanced program for traffic regulation, it is likely that the eye specialist will be called in to achieve what no yelling cop can cope with.

Almost 600 drivers have already taken the elaborately ingenious tests Dr. DeSilva uses in forming some of his analyses. Many of these discovered for the first time that they were abnormal in certain respects, some that they shouldn't be driving at all, others that they must drive with more than ordinary discretion.

The tests are the upshot of three years' work Dr. DeSilva has been carrying on with backing from the Governor's Committee on Street and Highway Safety, the Rockefeller Foundation, the scientific honorary fraternity of Sigma Xi, the FERA, the Works Progress Administration and the Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles.

THIS assistance from the FERA enabled him to assemble a portable testing laboratory, intended to have such popular appeal that visitors at fairs and expositions would voluntarily take the examinations. It was so compact it could be moved on a truck. It was taken to the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield, Massachusetts. Some 2500 were tested there, 2000 more at the Boston Automobile Show, 1000 at Amherst College and several hundred at various other places. It requires only 20 minutes to go through the whole series.

Modeled to a certain extent on the tests given Flying Corps applicants, several of them employ dummy machines—sections of a real automobile, with steering gear, dashboard, windshield and regular driver's seat. There are 11 of them altogether, each designed to test a particular skill necessary for competent management of an automobile, though one or two combine several elements in driving in order to find out how much a person is distracted by one reaction, how much that cuts away from his skill in another.

One of the most ingenious is intended to discover the driver's reactions in an emergency. The subject is seated in a regular driving seat, fitted with steering wheel, foot brake, emergency brake, clutch pedal, accelerator, self-starter, ignition switch, gear lever. Stretching out in front of him is a miniature highway with miniature cars moving at various speeds on its two lanes. The apparatus is made realistic by having the driver see the highway through a miniature windshield, made to fit close to his eyes. The driver sits in his seat as if he were driving one of the miniature cars. Suddenly he is confronted with a series of near crashes. In three minutes he is up against it in a swarm of emergencies requiring, one after another, every device intended to control the car. He meets situations so unexpected that it would be unlikely for a normal driver to encounter all of them in a lifetime. During the test they are all crammed into three minutes, during which time he has a chance to show what he could do if he were confronted with the same conditions in a real car on a real highway. But no matter how skillful he is, he will be unable to avoid at least one crack-up during the test.

That is a method of finding whether a person is cool, imperturbable and skillful enough to be temperamentally a safe driver. His various skills—ability to move his foot instantly from gas pedal to brake, to see at night, to judge distances and so on—are examined individually. His hearing is tested with an audiometer, his visual acuity with the Landolt ring test, a standard method. He is examined in routine fashion for color blindness (which would make it difficult to distinguish between red and green lights), for depth perception, distance judgment and ability to see out of the corner of the eye. Then comes something more special, the glare-blindness test, which has brought out a hazard about which most drivers are ignorant. Glare-blindness is the almost total inability to see anything when confronted with a bright light at night. Obviously, normal eyes are made temporarily ineffectual when faced with intense light. Glare-blindness is the inability to make an adjustment to this. When the normal driver is running along a dark road and is suddenly faced with a set of badly adjusted headlights which the approaching driver recklessly and discourteously refuses to dim, he can generally focus his eyes on the roadside or a safety fence until the passing car has gone by, then rapidly switch his own lights to "bright" and take in what is ahead. The glare-blind driver can't do this.

The apparatus Dr. DeSilva uses to determine this defect consists of a closed box similar to the late lamented peep shows of the penny arcade. When the subject looks through the eyepiece he is confronted with a typical scene on a dark highway, with a brilliantly lighted car approaching. He gets the illusion that the oncoming car driver is one of those odious fellows who never dim their lights, no matter how often other cars signal requests. The subject is given a switch with which to dim his own. When he fails to get a response, he can make his lights as bright as possible. When he does so he can, if his eyes are normal, make out the figure of a pedestrian standing on the right-hand shoulder of the highway. Those who require excessive light from headlights on their own car or find that they are unable even with the aid of this to see the figure, are told of their defect.

"Upon questioning some of the glare-blind people," says Dr. DeSilva, "we found they realized that they did not see well at night in the face of glare, but thought they experienced no more difficulty in this respect than the average person. Many color-blind persons were also unaware of their handicap. If this apparatus could be made available in all of the testing offices of our State motor registry, it would in time do much to teach glare-sensitive people to be more careful about their night driving.

Recent investigation has shown that night blindness is connected with a deficiency of vitamin A. Possibly it can be corrected or lessened by the addition of a plentiful supply of this vitamin to the diet of people so affected." (Vitamin A occurs in butter, cod liver oil, egg yolk, greens and oranges.)

Another common driving situation the motorist is called on to meet is the question whether a car seen far down a highway is moving or stationary. This was tested with a similar apparatus, a peep-show box equipped with a stop watch device. Inside was a miniature car on a miniature highway. The car moved slowly towards and away from the eyepiece and the subject was instructed to tell when it was moving, when it was not. The faculty to make this distinction is known as movement threshold. A person with very low movement threshold could tell within six-tenths of a second whether the distant car was moving or stationary. But many people could distinguish no movement for eight or ten seconds. A speeding car can travel a long distance in that time. This test was also made with a moving tail light.

Now suppose a car is moving at 70 miles an hour. The driver sees another car ahead. For six seconds he can't make out whether it is moving or stationary. If he assumes that it is moving when it is not, he might be right on top of it before he slows down. He may think he has plenty of time to pass what he believes to be a stationary car before another car comes up from the opposite direction, then discover to his horror that the other car is doing 25 miles an hour. With a high movement threshold his calculation may be several hundred yards wrong. Then he must be able to slam his brake on in a hurry to avoid a smash-up.

Dr. DeSilva found that there was an equal amount of individual difference as to various drivers' ability to apply the brake. In this test a regulation traffic light is mounted ahead of the dummy car. A timing device attached to the accelerator and the brake gives the length of the interval between the time the light flashes red and the time the driver's foot comes down on the brake. If he releases the accelerator too soon there is a loud buzz and the test must be repeated. Of course, this is a simplified test. Actually, a driver can't shift his foot as quickly when he is being distracted by using a steering wheel, throwing the clutch out and watching his mirror—all in the same second, as happens when he is actually driving. So Dr. DeSilva has worked out a similar device which can be used on a real car in real traffic. But there is considerable point in finding the minimum reaction time it takes to jam on the brakes. If you add that to the time it takes to see whether a distant car is moving and take into consideration certain other factors, it is possible to find at what speed it is safe for a certain individual to drive his car. There are numerous other elements.

Dr. DeSilva worked out a test for steering ability, which shows how much skill a driver can develop in holding a car to the road when it has an unusual tendency to sway. He developed another to test the accuracy with which a driver can estimate the point where one car overtakes another on the highway. In this the subject sits facing a section of miniature highway on a level with his eyes. Most of the highway is hidden by a partition marked off with a series of numbers. Suddenly two little coupes appear in the aperture to the left of the partition, one rapidly gaining on the other. Both disappear behind the partition before the first is overtaken. The subject is asked to name the point where he thinks the pursuing car came up with the other and to press a button at the time he thinks this occurred.

VERY few can make a perfect score. Usually the estimate is that the two cars met before they did. People too far wrong in this are likely to be overcautious, thus clogging the highway and exasperating other drivers to the point where they take silly chances.

When the brake reaction time test was combined with the steering test the reaction time was slowed down so much that a car going 70 miles an hour could go 20 feet during the time that represents the difference between absolute brake reaction time and the reaction time when steering is also involved. But countless other factors may slow the reaction still farther. Excitable people will naturally have less accuracy than others. So Dr. DeSilva put a psycho-galvanometer on one of his devices to show whether a driver were temperamentally fit to drive. He increased the accuracy of this by testing the pressure with which excitable drivers grip the steering wheel. He recorded the amount that their bodies move as they are driving.

Dr. DeSilva's conclusions should be interesting, not only to traffic law makers, but also to those who look on driving a well-conditioned car down a fine road as thrilling sport. He found that young people are better fitted to make good drivers than elderly ones. Boys of 19 make the best scores at steering, young men of 23 are quickest on the brake. Women learn driving reactions more slowly than men, but after 10 years of experience they become more expert, while men become poorer and poorer as they go on,

H. G. Wells Makes His Own Fantasies Come True—in Moving Pictures

Having Abandoned Novels for the Screen, This Famous Romantic Prophet Is Directing Studio Mechanics in Building the New Worlds He So Often Described.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LONDON.

H. G. WELLS, whose early fame as a novelist was built upon the Jules Verne-like gift of quasi-prophetic fantasy, has lived to see the nightmarish world of his imagination take concrete shape under his own direction.

It seems likely that he will have opportunity to build a whole universe, and more than likely that he will build it only to destroy it. He has gone into the movies for three years, and already his construction — and prompt destruction — of a city of the future has drawn such crowds to a deserted section of South Wales that the assistance of the police was required to protect the sightseers of 1935 from an air raid (according to Wells) of 1940.

The forecast of the future seems no matter of idle speculation to Mr. Wells. As he set forth more than 20 years ago, "I think we are inclined to underrate our chance of certainties in the future, just as we are inclined to be too credulous about the historical past. . . It is just as simple and sure to work out the changing orbit of the earth in the future until the tidal drag hauls our unchanging face at last toward the sun as it is to work back to its blazing and molten past."

And so, impatient of a Hollywood which, it seems to him, fails to use the persistent logic whereby he arrives at his own brilliantly incredible conclusions, he has consented to take a hand in it himself. And he likes it.

Every day he is to be seen at the Worton Hall studios near London, supervising the work of associates, including technical experts who already have made a name for themselves in British and American films. The first product of their collaboration will soon be shown in the United States. Wells believes they are creating a new moving picture technique. And sometimes, as he sees their execution of an idea which he had believed quite out of reach of screen reproduction, he is moved to boyish enthusiasms.

"Monumental, tremendous, overwhelming!" he cries with a boy's excited smile as the cameraman records scenes of centuries hence on the moon, with Wells' "space gun" in a stellar role.

Mechanical contrivances are, in a sense, stars of all his scenes. They seem to be interacting with, rather than directed by, the conflict of elemental forces in mankind. He has recently been at work on a picture called "Things to Come," based on the struggle "between the world that is past and the world of tomorrow."

Though less conservative observers hold that the struggle is well under way today, Wells starts the action of his film five years hence, and brings it to a climax in 1970. Then, in his conception, the world has been devastated and mankind reduced to tattered, hungry remnants by a series of wars and epidemics. In that year, as his story goes, a military brigand, "the Boss," gains power and strives to continue war for profit. The essential conflict, between the old world and the new, is personified in "the Boss" and a young aviator, John Cabal, who rises against him.

Many of the extraordinary scenes, though they appear colossal on the screen, actually are photographed in miniature, for otherwise cost and mechanical obstacles would make such a film impossible. But the representation of "Everytown" in "Things to Come" required the biggest moving picture set ever erected in England.

It is Christmas in 1940, and despite the threats of war shown in posters on every corner, the streets of Everytown are thronged with holiday shoppers. Suddenly airplanes roar above the town, the swarming hundreds trample each other in flight for shelter, bombs throw up geysers of dirt and stones, vehicles run amok and buildings crash.

The filming of the air raid required four consecutive nights. Illumination consumed the full output of a powerhouse. Cameras were mounted on great platforms above the roof-tops. The terrific medley of noises required special sound apparatus.

BATTLE scenes were "shot" in an abandoned Welsh coal mine more than 10 miles from a town, but sightseers came from all directions. School children at South Griffin Colliery had a day's holiday to watch. Police and local authorities had to assist in keeping spectators at safe distance from the really terrifying war machines Wells had conceived.

In the wake of the wars, the locale is shifted to a wild and desolate bit of country inhabited only by a band of tatterdemalions roving where pestilence has swept away the last vestiges of civilization. Though it is built of familiar human elements, it is regarded as one of the most effective scenes of the film. But most of the picture has no such simple elements; in fact, the homes, the dress and the everyday life of Wells' people of the future have little or nothing in common with the people of today.

"In about fifty years or more," Wells speculates, "a grandfather will say to his granddaughter: 'I can remember when they had queer things in houses called windows.

" 'I can remember people wearing hats whenever they were not covered by a roof, and all kinds of buckles and gadgets to hold themselves together.'

"But the world of the future will not live in houses, but in the sides of air-conditioned hills, beautiful and spacious.

"It will wear outer garments that last only a week and are done away with.

"There will be no more laundries! There will be no more skyscrapers.

"When the people of 1980 come out of their earth-built homes, they will say: 'I am going out into the weather,' and they will wear special clothes for it.

"They will wear a sort of Tudor dress. This is not merely a guess; I arrived at my conclusion through hard thought. I went into the question of why we wear our present kind of clothing. We wear thick suits, padded a little to protect us, with unnumerable pockets to hold pencils and things.

"Instead of that we shall have freer, simpler, and more beautiful clothes, wide at the shoulders and with gauntlets to hold the small impedimenta of existence. We shall wear cloaks, too.

"Get out of your mind the idea that the girl of 1980 will have on her head a sort of telephone exchange. People have made all sorts of fantastic suggestions to me, most of them quite wrong. Men and women wearing cellophane or decorated with neon lights! That is nonsense!"

And that is the world of "Things to Come"—an eerie world of queer airplanes, fantastic artillery, transparent gas masks, air-conditioned cities underground—the whole earth honeycombed with great caverns drilled by great machines that carve out a whole wall to order in a twinkle.

Building a model of one of Mr. Wells' fantastic creations.

Wells has directed also a production based on his story of "The Man Who Could Work Miracles." That, as his admirers will recall, was the fantasy of the clerk who discovered in the midst of a taproom argument that inanimate objects obeyed his slightest wish. Home again, bewildered, in the dark, he wished for a match, neglected to wish the sort he wanted, and got a safety match, with no place to strike it. Ultimately he wished the earth stopped in its rotation — without a thought of the consequences, which were enough to keep Wells' technical collaborators awake nights for a long time.

"We had a great deal of fun with it," he says.

"Everything we are doing is entirely experimental. We use no scenario. Films should not have scenarios, but only 'treatments,' written out to cover the endless complicated detail.

"I have written no less than four different treatments for 'Things to Come.' "

From that it's pretty clear that however Wells may enjoy amazing the crowd with his pictures of tomorrows, he takes them quite seriously. He set forth his whole viewpoint on the subject long ago, before the beginning of the World War, in a discourse with no less learned an audience than the Royal Institution in London. He called it "The Discovery of the Future," and it was published in this country by B. W. Huebsch.

As he remarked then, the known past has been infinitely extended by modern science—"that is, the relentless, systematic criticism of phenomena" with an accuracy that he believed at least equal to that of recorded history. "I believe in the megatherium which I have never seen," he commented, "as confidently as I believe in the hippopotamus which has engulfed buns from my hand.

"Why then, could not the same method be applied to the future?

"By seeking for operating causes instead of for fossils, and by criticising them as peristently and thoroughly as the geological record has been criticised, it may be possible to throw a searchlight of inference forward instead of backward, and to attain a knowledge of coming things as clear, as universally convincing, and infinitely more important to mankind than the clear vision of the past that geology has opened to us during the nineteenth century.

"So far nothing has been attempted; so far no first-class mind has ever focused itself upon these issues; but suppose the laws of social and political developments, for example, were given as many brains, as much attention, criticism and discussion as we have given to the laws of chemical combination during the last 50 years, what might we not expect?

". . . You know that the aim and the test and the justification of the scientific process is . . . prophecy. Until a scientific theory yields confident forecasts you know it is unsound and tentative. . .

"And if the specialist in each science is in fact doing his best now to prophesy within the limits of his field, what is there to stand in the way of our building up this growing body of forecast into an ordered picture of the future that will be just as certain, just as strictly science, and perhaps just as detailed as the picture that has been built up within the last hundred years of the geological past?"

Application of his process to human beings adds to its complications immensely, but not impossibly, Wells reasoned, if one concedes his theory that geniuses, who seem single-handed to deflect the whole course of mankind, are actually but the expression of underlying forces which would have found other leaders had they not lived. And he asks one concession further:

"Implicit in all such speculations as this is a very definite and quite arbitrary belief, and that belief is that neither humanity nor in truth any individual human being is living its life in vain."

LONDON.

FOR well over a century Englishmen have tussled energetically with the subject of capital punishment. When the debate started a man might be hanged for such offenses as defacing Westminster Bridge, wearing a mask, cutting a sapling, shooting a rabbit, stealing a handkerchief out of a bleach field—and 215 other crimes, including, of course, murder.. Only 10 per cent of the 75 executions each year were for that. (Compare this with the 132 executed in the United States seven years ago, when 10,000 committed homicides.) Today murder is practically the only capital crime left in England and only 11 or 12 a year die for that. But abolition is still an engrossing subject to those who sponsor it. These rise like carp to every lure thrown out in a newspaper or magazine; one article begets a swarm of heated objectors or confirmants; usually including an archbishop or so, a couple of rural magistrates (retired) and any number of betterment ladies. A few years ago this contingent managed to secure the appointment in Parliament of a Select Committee to consider the desirability of abolition. Although this was not a party issue and had adherents in all parties, the six Conservative members left the Select Committee a couple of weeks before its report came out. The report advocated experimental abolition for five years, this to be achieved by having all death sentences commuted to life imprisonment. Nothing has been done about it.

But since then, within the past few months, a champion has arisen unlike any the movement has ever had before. She is a stocky, plump widow of 44, blonde, energetic, irrepressible and determined. What is more to the point is that she has $20,000 a week (according to her publicity agents) to spend on The Cause. And she spends it without batting an eye. On advertising, on airplanes, loud speakers, press agents, demonstrations and an army of 160 sandwich men. This unshrinking, sputtering little piston of a woman, fearless alike of ridicule and police sticks, fanatical, intrepid and uncompromising, is called Violet—Mrs. Violet Van der Elst.

SHE was born at Richmond, in Surrey, daughter of a shipowner named John Grundy, who, unlike most of his calling, made it a practice to skipper his own sailing ships. Her first husband was the source of her wealth. He was Henry Lathon, a New Zealander engaged in the manufacture of drugs and cosmetics. When he died he bequeathed to his golden-blonde widow 10 flourishing chemical laboratories in England. She has been actively engaged in running them ever since. It amuses her to be a business woman and she likes to write shaving soap advertisements. But her energy is such that this would not be enough to sustain her. The woman is said only to sleep two hours out of the 24 and is harassed by idleness even in small doses at, say, 4 in the morning.

To fill out her days and nights she has taken up the study of necromancy and is something of an authority. Her library of 3000 books on the subject of witchcraft and black magic is well chosen and complete. She has doubtless digested most of it during her hectic insomniac nights. Another hobby is gambling. When boredom becomes too overwhelming she takes off for a casino.

Shortly after Lathon's death in 1925 she married picturesque Jean Julien Romain Van der Elst, a Belgian artist and a descendant of the celebrated Rieter Van der Elst, seventeenth century Flemish painter. He died a year ago in August, leaving her 10 medals earned by his bravery in the war and the impression that his military experience had brought about his death. She was distraught.

"What is left for me?" she asked her intimates bitterly. "I am the loneliest woman in the world." And she lavished her warmth on a collection of Oriental antiques and on a kennel full of $1000 police dogs. Sometimes in the middle of the night she would summon her chauffeur and drive out from her great London town house to distribute largesse to the poor. Her big black and cream limousine became a familiar sight to chilly bobbies patroling the Thames embankment.

But haphazard charity wasn't the answer to her desperation. She finally found it in the cause of the condemned. Abolition of the capital execution laws became her be-all and her end-all. Within a few months of acquiring the conviction, she became its most widely known sponsor. As in everything, she was completely unconventional in her method.

ENGLAND'S PICTURESQUE CRUSADER AGAINST CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

LONDON.

FOR well over a century Englishmen have tussled energetically with the subject of capital punishment. When the debate started a man might be hanged for such offenses as defacing Westminster Bridge, wearing a mask, cutting a sapling, shooting a rabbit, stealing a handkerchief out of a bleach field —and 215 other crimes, including, of course, murder. Only 10 per cent of the 75 executions each year were for that. (Compare this with the 132 executed in the United States seven years ago, when 10,000 committed homicides.) Today murder is practically the only capital crime left in England and only 11 or 12 a year die for that. But abolition is still an engrossing subject to those who sponsor it. These rise like carp to every lure thrown out in a newspaper or magazine; one article begets a swarm of heated objectors or confirmants; usually including an archbishop or so, a couple of rural magistrates (retired) and any number of betterment ladies. A few years ago this contingent managed to secure the appointment in Parliament of a Select Committee to consider the desirability of abolition. Although this was not a party issue and had adherents in all parties, the six Conservative members left the Select Committee a couple of weeks before its report came out. The report advocated experimental abolition for five years, this to be achieved by having all death sentences commuted to life imprisonment. Nothing has been done about it.

But since then, within the past few months, a champion has arisen unlike any the movement has ever had before. She is a stocky, plump widow of 44, blonde, energetic, irrepressible and determined. What is more to the point is that she has $20,000 a week (according to her publicity agents) to spend on The Cause. And she spends it without batting an eye. On advertising, on airplanes, loud speakers, press agents, demonstrations and an army of 160 sandwich men. This unshrinking, sputtering little piston of a woman, fearless alike of ridicule and police sticks, fanatical, intrepid and uncompromising, is called Violet—Mrs. Violet Van der Elst.

SHE was born at Richmond, in Surrey, daughter of a shipowner named John Grundy, who, unlike most of his calling, made it a practice to skipper his own sailing ships. Her first husband was the source of her wealth. He was Henry Lathon, a New Zealander engaged in the manufacture of drugs and cosmetics. When he died he bequeathed to his golden-blonde widow 10 flourishing chemical laboratories in England. She has been actively engaged in running them ever since. It amuses her to be a business woman and she likes to write shaving soap advertisements. But her energy is such that this would not be enough to sustain her. The woman is said only to sleep two hours out of the 24 and is harassed by idleness even in small doses at, say, 4 in the morning.

To fill out her days and nights she has taken up the study of necromancy and is something of an authority. Her library of 3000 books on the subject of witchcraft and black magic is well chosen and complete. She has doubtless digested most of it during her hectic insomniac nights. Another hobby is gambling. When boredom becomes too overwhelming she takes off for a casino.

Shortly after Lathon's death in 1925 she married picturesque Jean Julien Romain Van der Elst, a Belgian artist and a descendant of the celebrated Rieter Van der Elst, seventeenth century Flemish painter. He died a year ago in August, leaving her 10 medals earned by his bravery in the war and the impression that his military experience had brought about his death. She was distraught.

"What is left for me?" she asked her intimates bitterly. "I am the loneliest woman in the world." And she lavished her warmth on a collection of Oriental antiques and on a kennel full of $1000 police dogs. Sometimes in the middle of the night she would summon her chauffeur and drive out from her great London town house to distribute largesse to the poor. Her big black and cream limousine became a familiar sight to chilly bobbies patroling the Thames embankment.

But haphazard charity wasn't the answer to her desperation. She finally found it in the cause of the condemned. Abolition of the capital execution laws became her be-all and her end-all. Within a few months of acquiring the conviction, she became its most widely known sponsor. As in everything, she was completely unconventional in her method.

She gathered together the aforesaid army of aviators, truck drivers, sandwich men, organized them into a ballyhoo storm troop and began to make things uncomfortable for the police, the hangmen, the wardens and all who disagreed with her. Since then her demonstrations have consistently turned obscure murderers into headliners.

Her arrival for a hanging is announced by the droning of three airplanes which circle the prison dragging huge pennants advocating the abolition of the death penalty. Then come the sound trucks, five of them, blaring out the hymn "Abide With Me." Women gulp and mop their eyes. Publicity men nudge each other. Sandwich men stalk complacently through the mob, their placards passively screaming the horrors of being gibbeted. Then the black and cream limousine makes its appearance to the click of a battery of cameras. Just before the execution is scheduled to take place Mrs. Van der Elst, who has already dispatched an urgent telegram petitioning the King to reprieve the sentence of the condemned, mounts a platform lashed to the rear of her car. Dressed in deep mourning, she immediately launches out on a tirade which reaches its emotional climax as the invisible culprit on the other side of the prison walls swings off into eternity. Immediately after she has exhorted the crowd to bare their heads in sympathy, she starts urging them to sign a petition that now begins to circulate through the crowd.

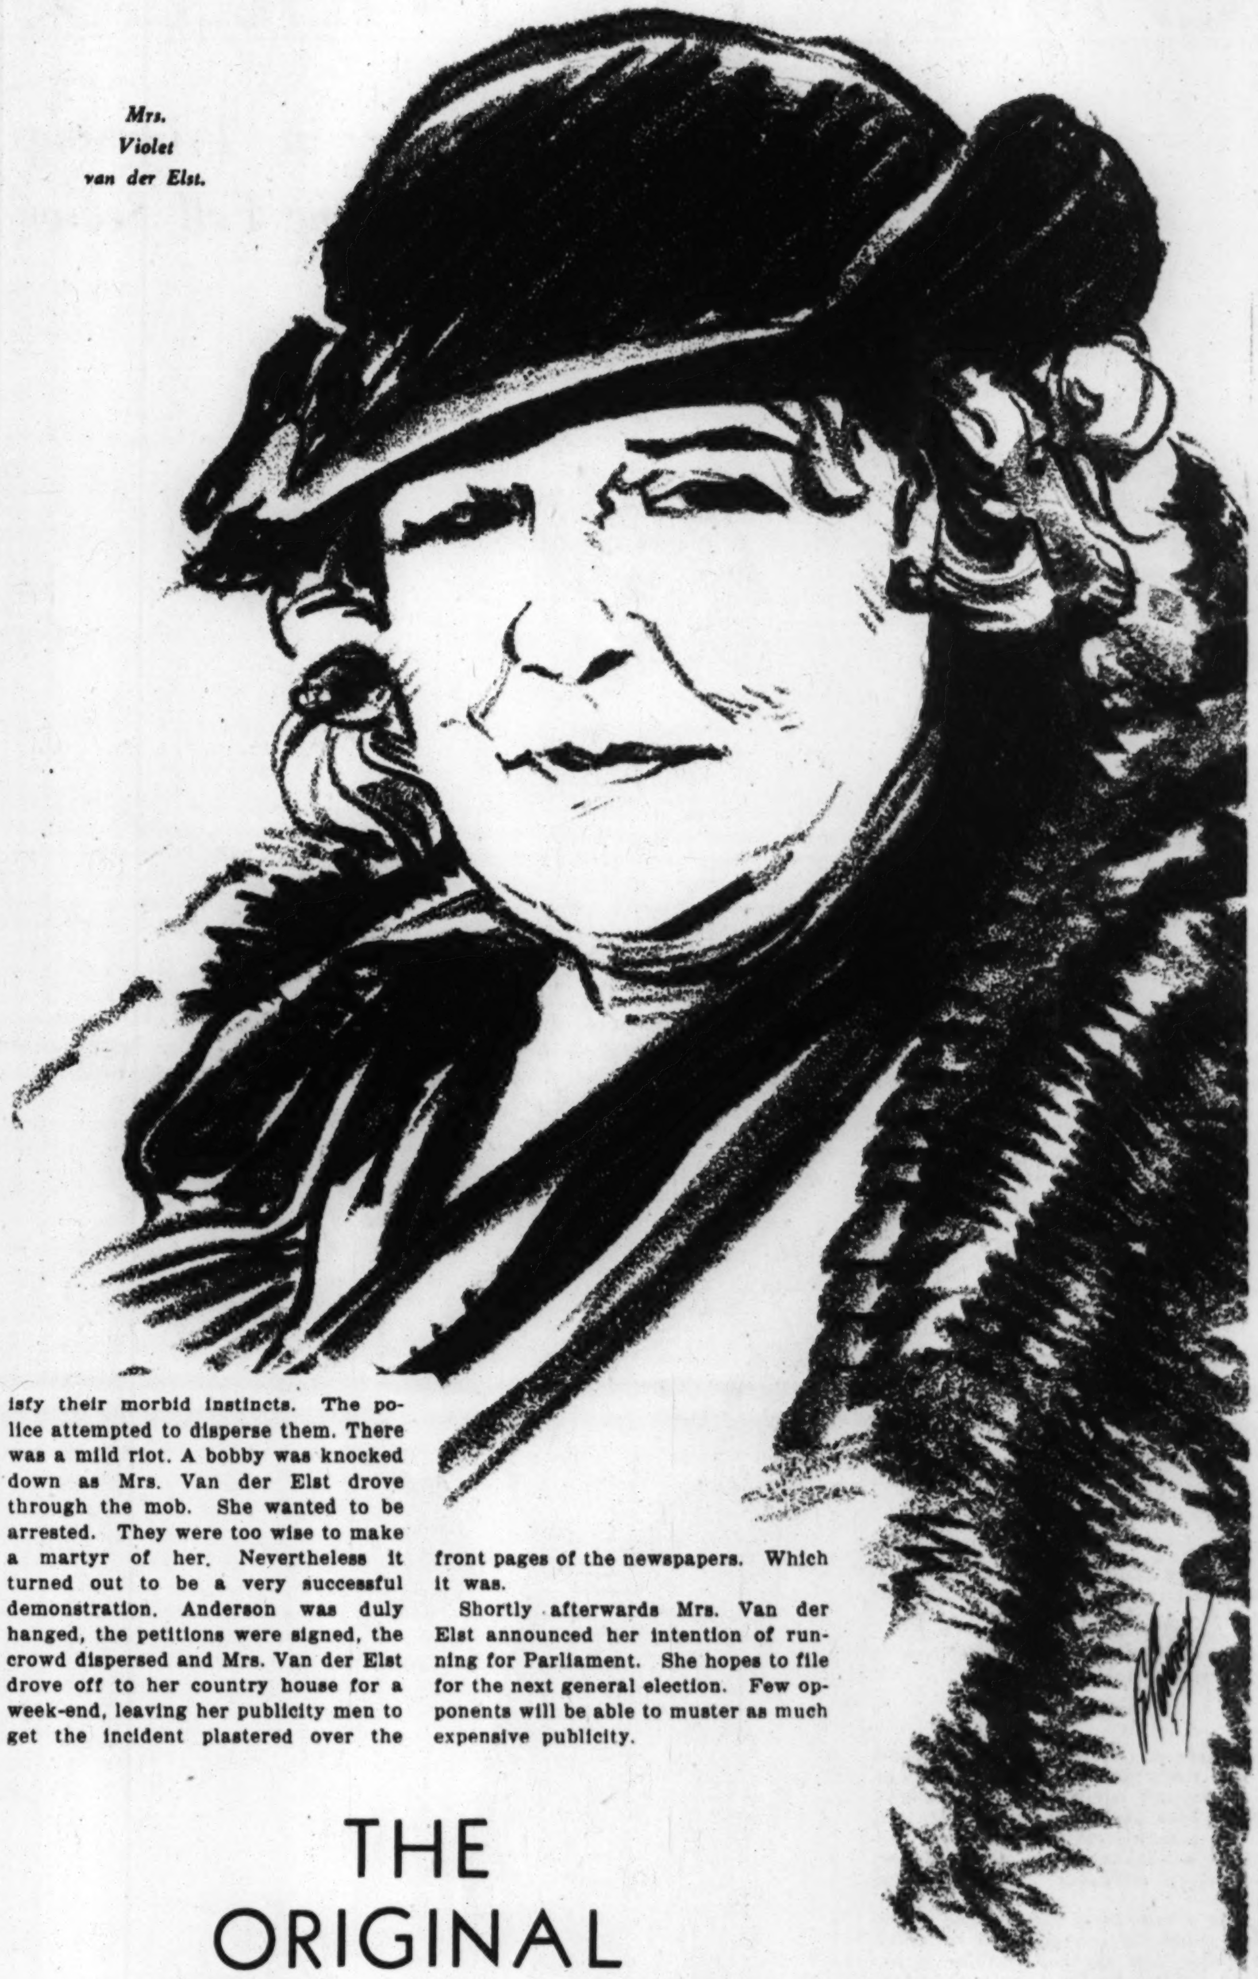
Until Mrs. Van der Elst made her thunderclap appearance on the front lines, the battle over abolition had resolved itself into an almost academic debate. Those in favor of preserving the penalty have arrayed their facts behind a wall of precedent. Abolition, they say, would result in more murders. Innocent people would die because the state refused to condemn the guilty to that end. The death penalty makes juries more insistent on absolute proof of guilt, whereas they might convict the innocent on dubious grounds if the penalty were less irrevocable. The criminal classes fear nothing except bodily punishment; they are too callous to respect any other penalty. Certainty that brutal murders and rape will be punished by death prevents the mob from taking law into their own hands and resorting to lynchings. Death is more merciful than a life sentence. Above all, if there were no distinction between capital crimes and lesser ones, robbers (for instance) wouldn't hesitate to murder in the course of their business, knowing that in any case the penalty of being arrested would be the same.

Those on Mrs. Van der Elst's side claim that the death penalty is a relict of barbarism which inadvertantly condones the equivalent of murder. The death penalty, they emphasize, makes it impossible to correct an error in justice; innocents have several times been hanged by mistake; and English law is based on the theory that it is better for many guilty to escape than for one innocent to suffer. Society is equally well protected by imprisoning murderers. Many are insane and should not be made to suffer for their illness. They point out that the fact that English policemen go unarmed has usually influenced English criminals to follow suit; if the state gave up executing prisoners, the criminal might give up committing murder.

OTHER arguments they muster are the reputed experiences of countries and provinces where capital punishment has been abolished. In almost every case, they say, abolition was followed by a decline in the homicide rate; in those of the United States where capital punishment was abolished and afterwards re-enacted, the period after re-enactment invariably showed an increase in the number of murders. And the number of places where capital punishment has been given up is impressive: Eleven European countries, eight of the states of the United States, 10 other American countries, several British dependencies. But the fundamental motive among reformers of Mrs. Van der Elst's stripe is a belief in the sanctity of human life. Every other argument is supplementary.

It is this stolid faith that prompts her to put on such a show as she did on the occasion of the hanging of Charles Percy Anderson, a young man who killed his sweetheart on the golf links and stuffed her remains into a tank. His execution came on a cloudy day last April and there were no airplanes, but Mrs. Van der Elst made up for them. Several blocks away from the prison a police cordon tried to prevent her from making a personal appearance. Her chauffeur refused to disobey their orders, so she took the wheel herself and plowed on through. A great mob had gathered outside the prison, as much to see her as to satisfy their morbid instincts. The police attempted to disperse them. There was a mild riot. A bobby was knocked down as Mrs. Van der Elst drove through the mob. She wanted to be arrested. They were too wise to make a martyr of her. Nevertheless it turned out to be a very successful demonstration. Anderson was duly hanged, the petitions were signed, the crowd dispersed and Mrs. Van der Elst drove off to her country house for a week-end, leaving her publicity men to get the incident plastered over the front pages of the newspapers. Which it was.

Shortly afterwards Mrs. Van der Elst announced her intention of running for Parliament. She hopes to file for the next general election. Few opponents will be able to muster as much expensive publicity.



Mrs. Violet van der Elst.

THE ORIGINAL 'TUGBOAT ANNIE'

SAN FRANCISCO.

"TUGBOAT ANNIE" never owned or ran a tugboat in all her life. But—she is really Mrs. Charles W. Cook, and close friends call her "Pat," though thousands on the West coast know her as "Tugboat Annie" — she did run a rough and ready crew of stevedores and a fleet of steamships. And, as far as she knows, she's the only woman who ever did it.

Mrs. Cook is 44 years old, a former university athlete, a geologist, a pianist and, she says, "a settled-down wife." But for 10 crowded years, from 1918 to 1928, she was "G. M. Starr"—one of the best-known names in the shipping world. Thousands of business men saw her signature on checks and contracts without ever guessing that the businesslike "G. M." actually stood for Gretchen Marian.

She was born Gretchen Marian O'Donnell, in San Francisco, moved to Seattle, matriculated in the class of 1912 at the University of Washington. She was 17, weighed 140 pounds, "didn't know what 'tired' meant."

Racing shells, streaking across Lake Washington, fascinated her. Hiram Conibear's varsity crew was conquering all comers. Gretchen went out for the women's crew, was captain and stroke for three years, and coach when Conibear had his hands full with the men. She played varsity basketball, hockey and tennis. Made her letter in the first batch of women to wear the "W" at Washington State. Liked the geology prof; disliked the women's dean, who, it was said, disliked women doing things like geology; hence, Gretchen majored in it. Was graduated and became national treasurer of her sorority, Alpha Chi Omega.

Also became a bachelor of arts and candidate for a job. Took charge of stenographers for Democratic executive committee. Thought it would look bad to know nothing about it; mastered typing and shorthand in three months. And then got a personal stenographer.

"But politics bored me," she says. "Too much bunk. And if women ran homes the way men run politics, we'd have a real revolution inside a week."

A Seattle steamship firm needed a bookkeeper; no bunk. She went after the job. She nailed it. Just a plain bookkeeper. But she got her nose into every corner, asked questions, "became the office pest." But in time she knew everything that happened, and why.

Successively she became auditor, treasurer, secretary-treasurer and then, investing all she had, vice-president, in charge of operations; Boss. A stevedore company was for sale. She took it in as vice-president, too; Boss of both concerns.

"Amazing," she says, "the respect I got from the worst rough-and-tumble lot on the Pacific coast. They'd even moderate their language—if they saw me first. But when they had to be straightened out, I didn't moderate mine!"

She sold out, retired to San Francisco to enjoy life. And became head of the chartering firm of Swayne & Hoyt, Ltd., present owners of the Gulf Pacific Line. There were many checks signed "G. M. Starr." But many more receipts.

"When you make a mistake in that game, it's not for nickels and dimes," she says. "You stick out your neck for $25,000 to $40,000 on every cargo."

Cables from all over the world, long-distance calls from half of it, came to her desk. She studied blueprints of ships she had never seen, chartered them on the other side of the globe, cabled instructions for stowing cargo—wheat to the United Kingdom and the Continent, lumber to Japan, general cargo to Bombay, machinery to the Argentine, tractors for Borneo, canned goods for the East coast via Panama.

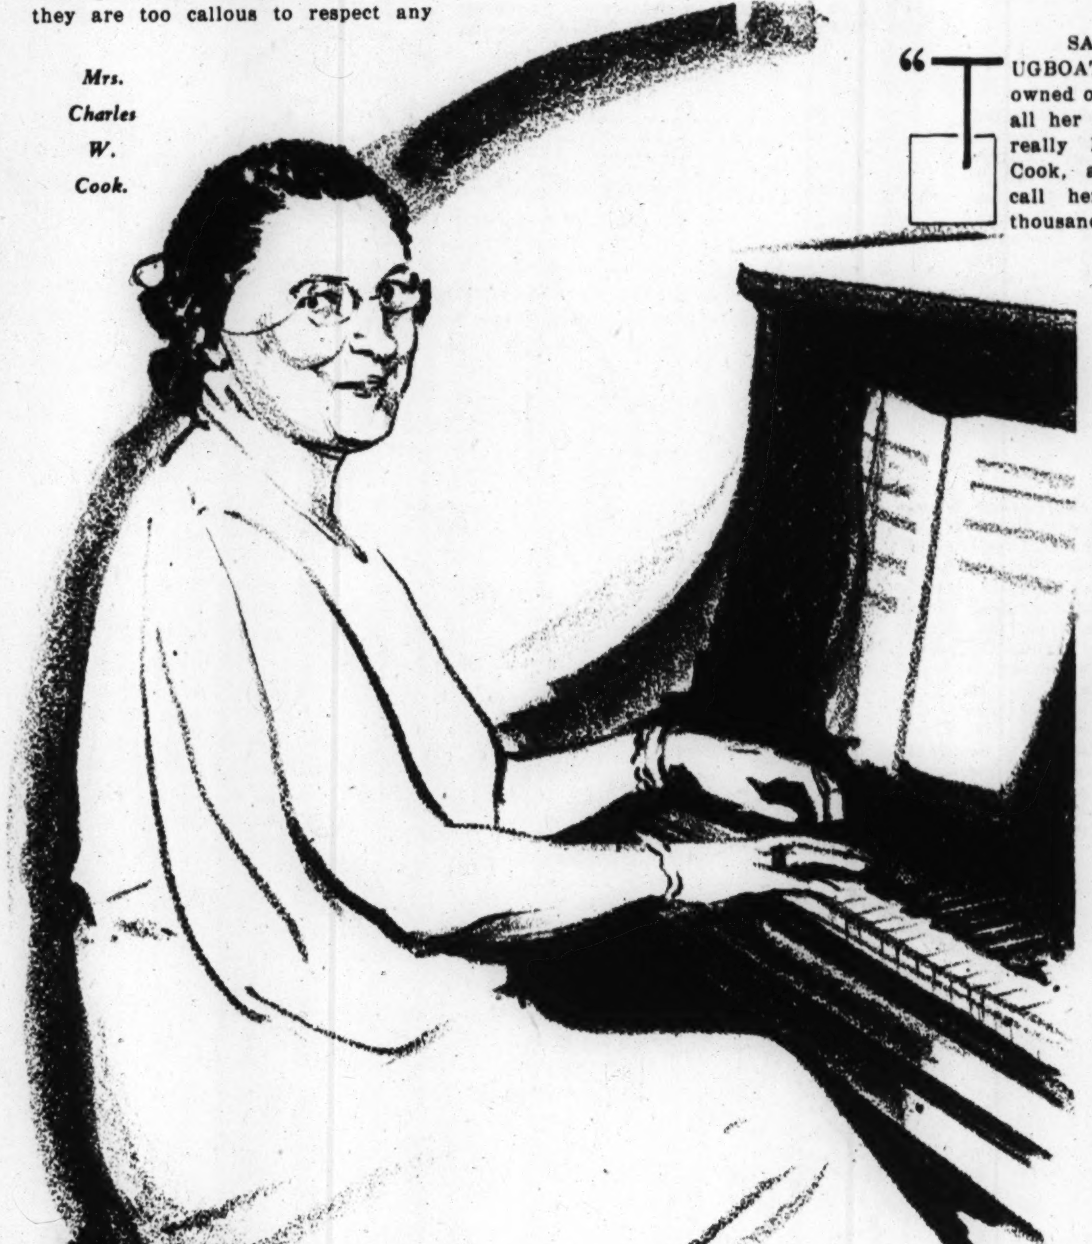
DECIMAL points on the freight rates meant thousands made or thousands lost. Longshoremen drank and fought and ships were delayed at a cost of $400 a day. Supercargoes passed out ashore, and friends tried to cover up; no harm if it worked, but costly if it failed. Masters bristled at the idea of skirts in authority. But she saw nothing strange about it.

"I'll bet," she says, "five minutes after I started talking business with any man he didn't remember whether I was a woman or a heavyweight prizefighter."

She was a prominent woman. At Seattle, she was one of the 12 selected to "welcome" Queen Marie and (separately) Colonel Lindbergh; served on the executive committee of the Safety Council and the Social Welfare League, became treasurer of the Women's University Club and the Soroptimists.

And then she retired to marry. But her husband is Charles W. Cook, vice-president of the Gulf Pacific Line.

"No danger of boredom," she smiles. "We can always argue about ocean freight rates—and keeping longshoremen sober!"



Mrs. Charles W. Cook.

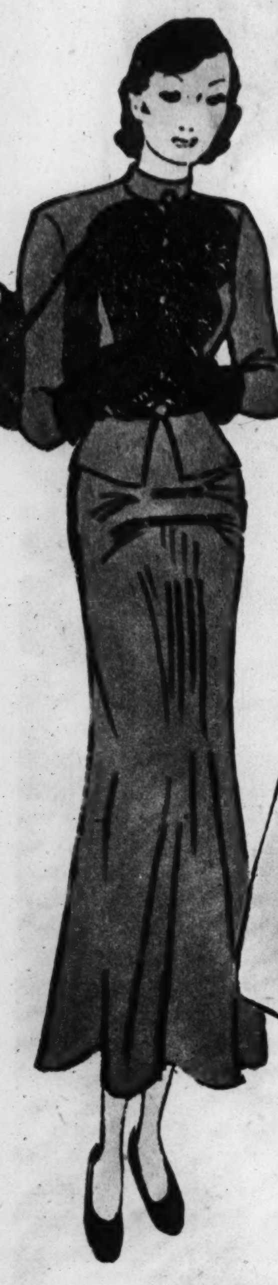
The Military Influence in Trimmings and Halo Hats Enliven the Fall Season



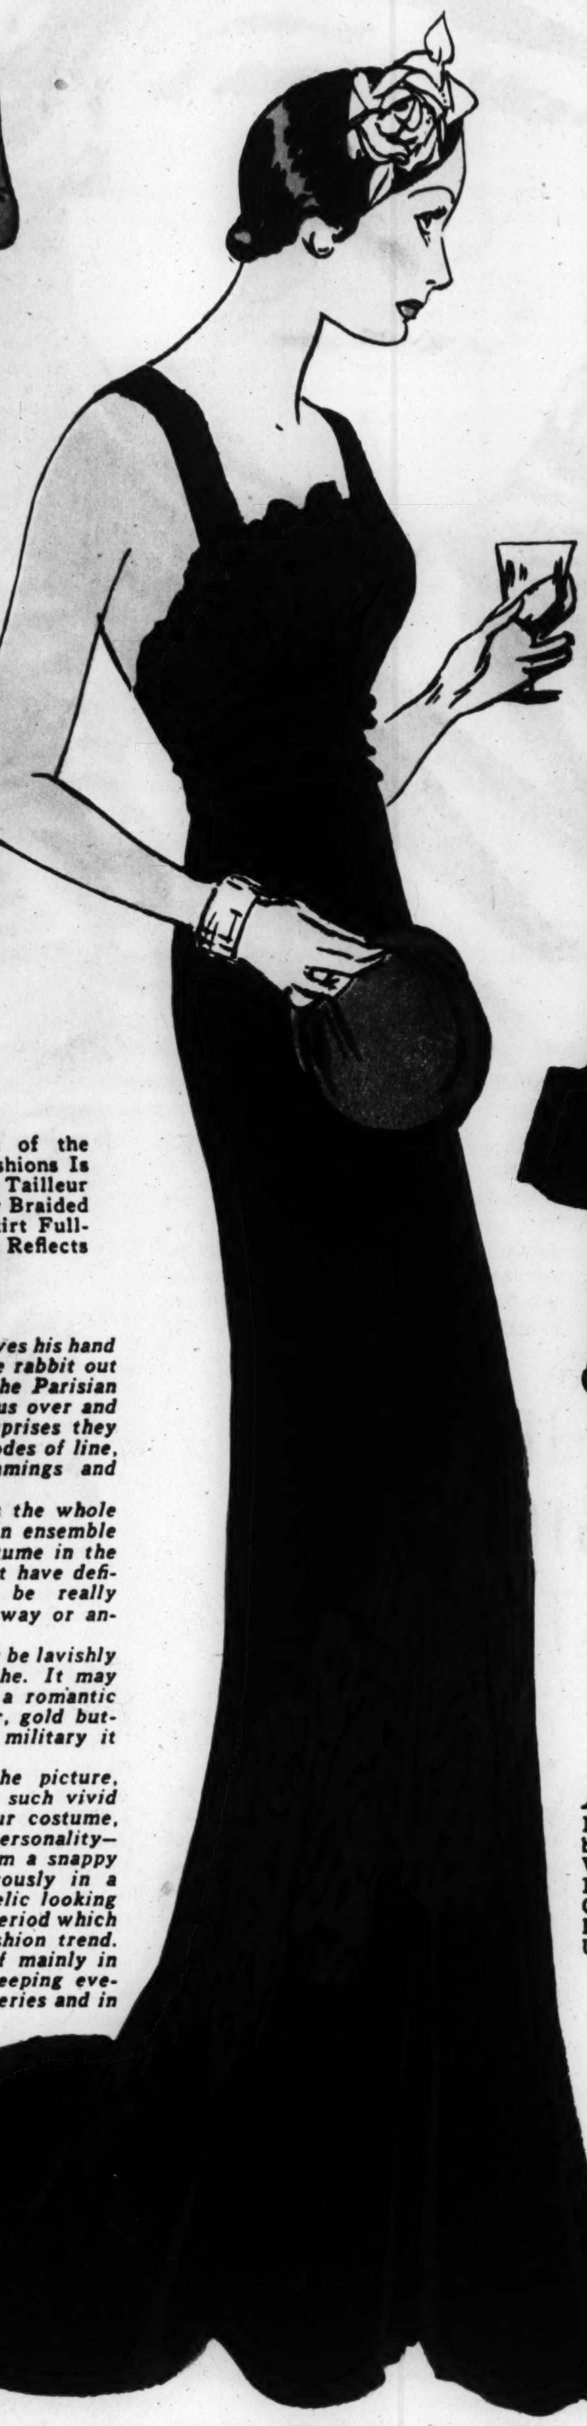
A Dramatic Interpretation of the Military Influence in Fashions Is Found in Schiaparelli's Smart Tailleur in Gray Wool with Its Heavily Braided Jacket and Matching Hat. Skirt Fullness Concentrated at the Front Reflects the Current Trend.

LIKE the magician who waves his hand and pulls the little white rabbit out of his tall silk hat, so the Parisian designers have been thrilling us over and over this season with the surprises they have been springing in new modes of line, color, period influence, trimmings and fabrics.

In just a few short months the whole fashion scene has changed. An ensemble is no longer just another costume in the wardrobe. This season it must have definite characteristics—and to be really smart, it must follow in one way or another the mode militaire.

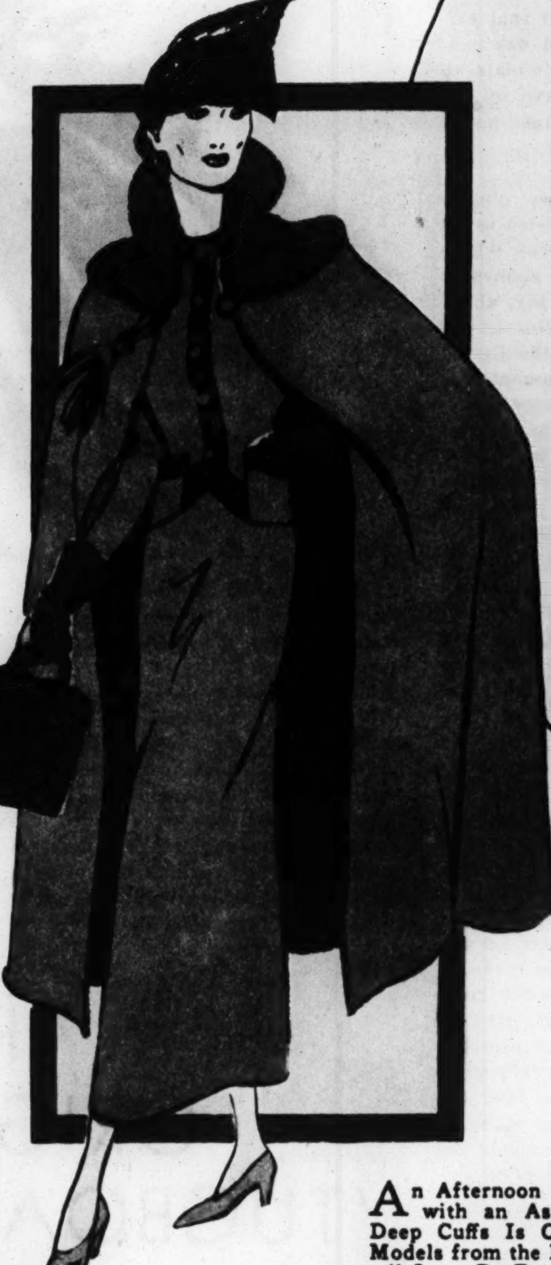
It may have a cape, or it may be lavishly trimmed with braid or soutache. It may have pockets borrowed from a romantic uniform, trimmings of leather, gold buttons or cartridge bands, but military it must be.

That's just one side of the picture, though. The other side is in such vivid contrast that in changing your costume, you may change your whole personality—slowing down your stride from a snappy military gait to drift langorously in a Renaissance gown, or an angelic looking hat. For it's the Renaissance period which is responsible for another fashion trend. This influence manifests itself mainly in color and rich fabrics, in sweeping evening gowns, in long wing draperies and in Fra Angelico halo hats.

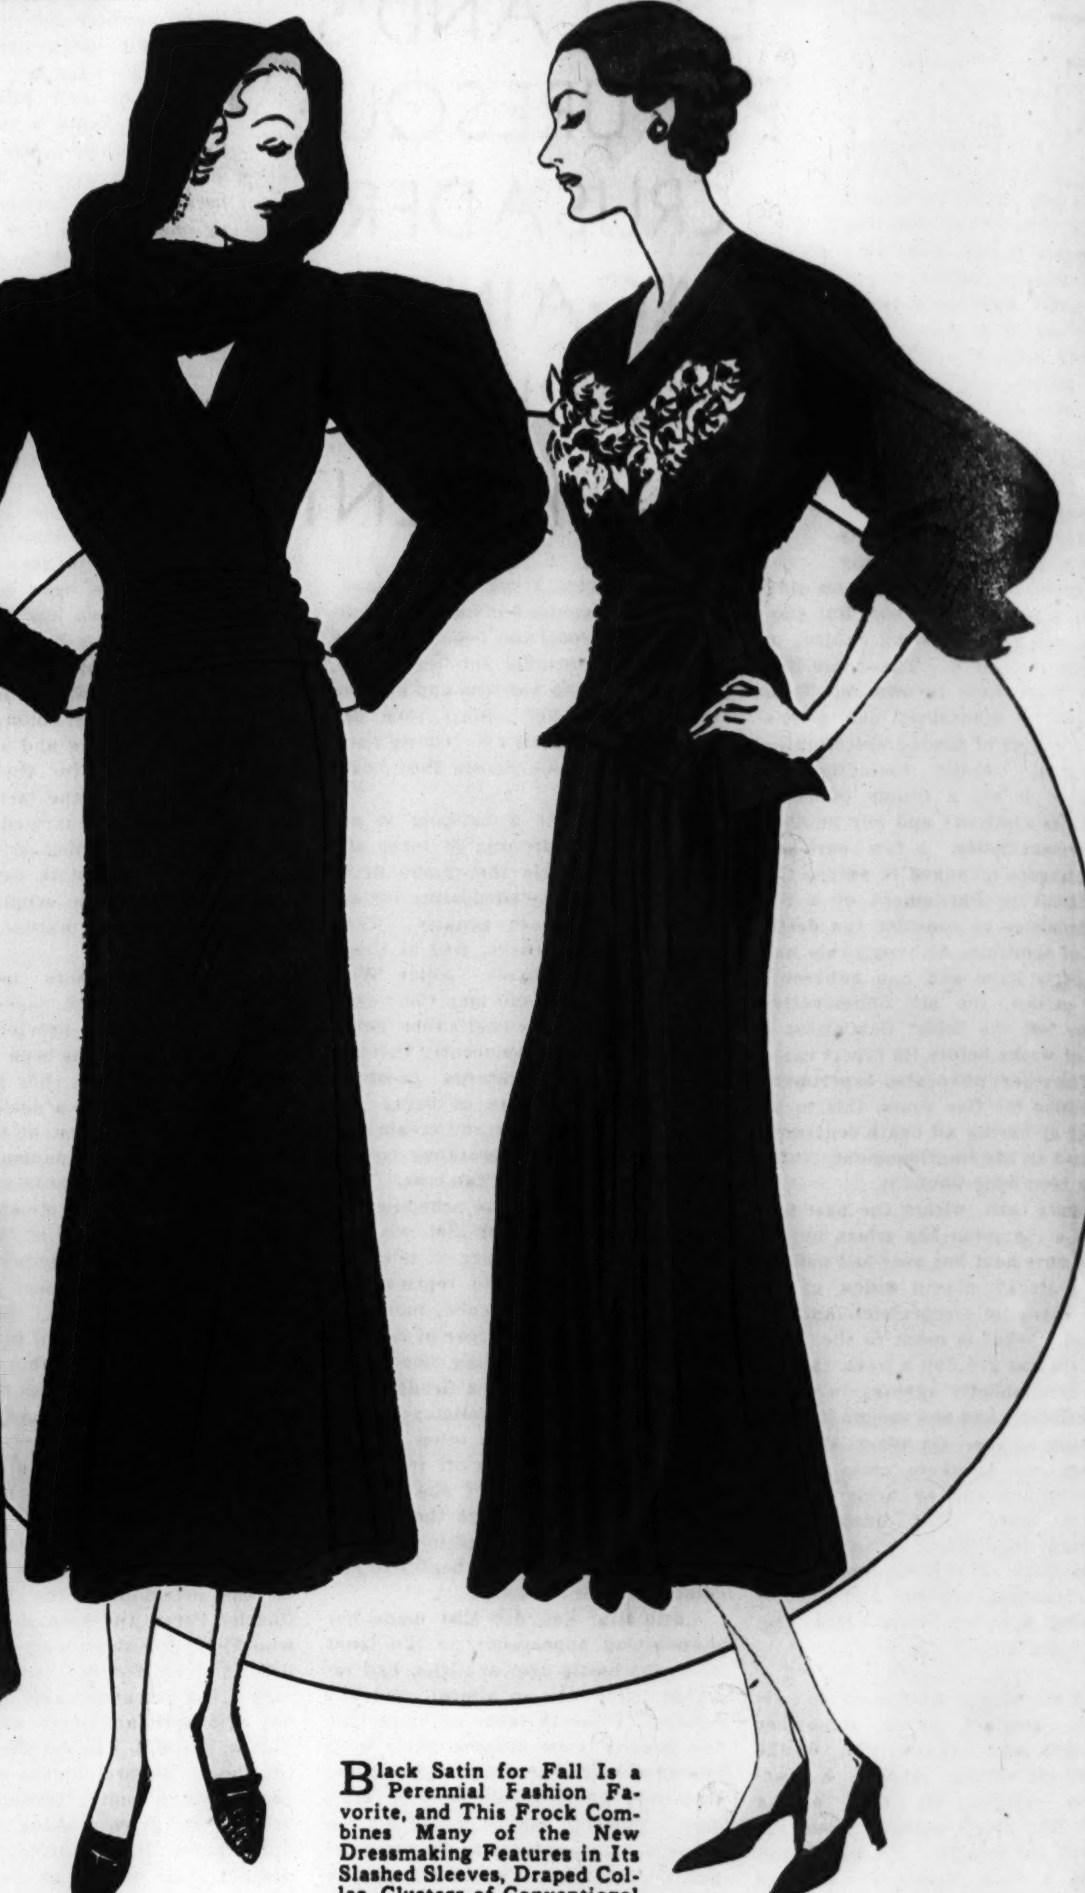


An Evening Gown Which Combines Some of the Loveliest Features of the Fall Mode Is Jean Patou's Black Marocain at the Left. Heavy Black Lace, Encrusted at the Bodice and on the Skirt, Lends the Richness Typical of the New Gowns, and the Continuous Flow of Line Which Characterizes the Skirt, Sweeping the Floor with Its Fullness to the Back, Gives a Graceful Line to the Silhouette. The Shoulder Straps Are of Tulle, and a Delightful Note Is Found in the Headdress, Which Consists of a Large White Flower Perched Over One Eye and Held in Place by an Invisible Elastic.

Drawn by Grace Corson, Paris.

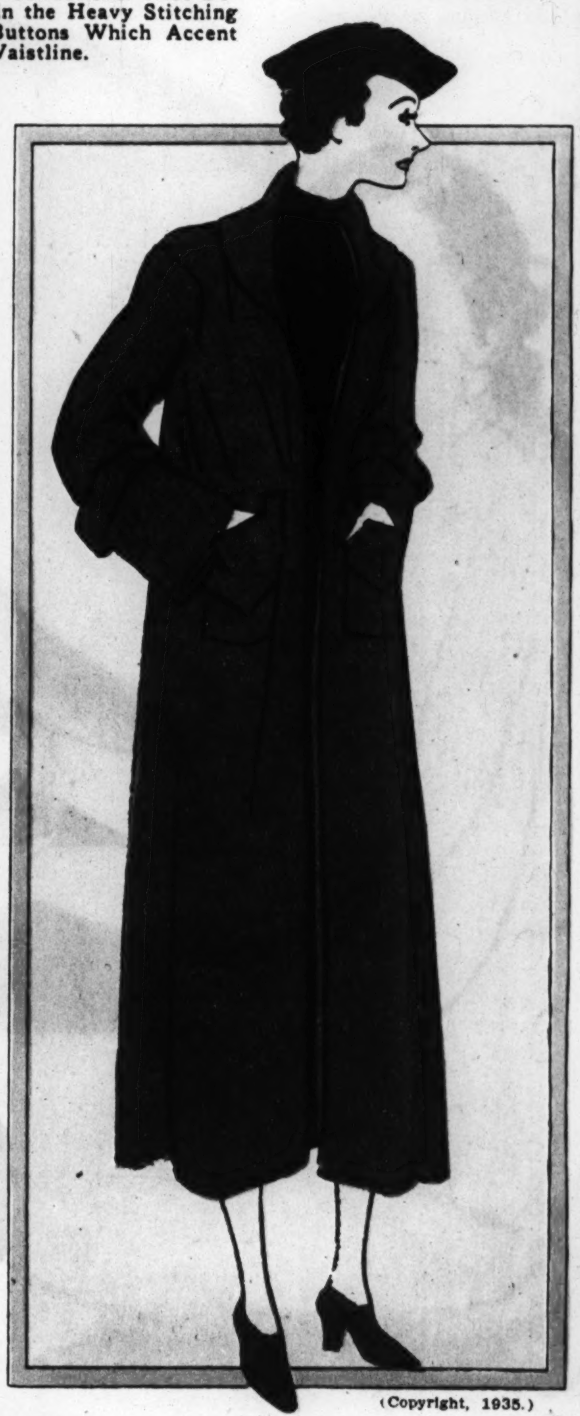


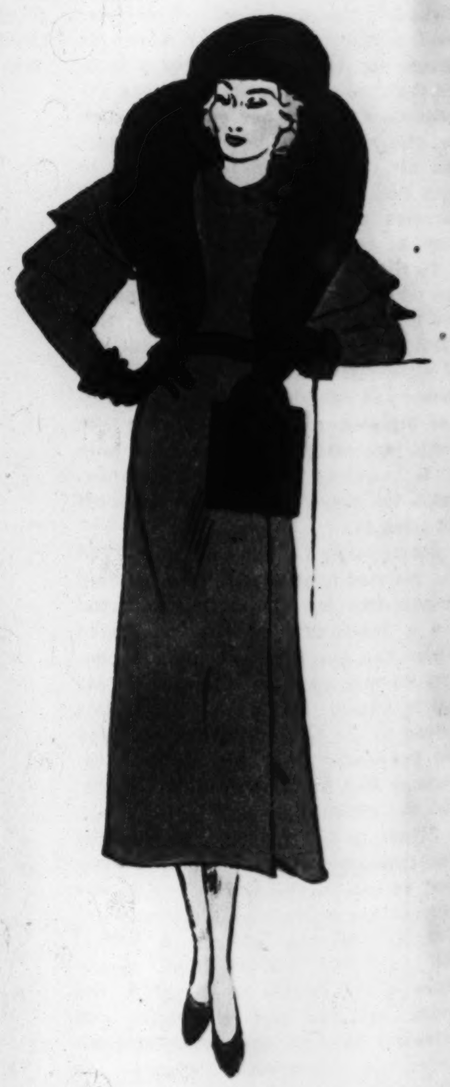
A Smart Costume for Either Sports Wear or Traveling Is Lucile Paray's Cape Ensemble in a Grayish Green Heavy Wool. The Collar of the Cape Is of Beaver and a Tasselled Cord Is Used as a Fastening. Heavy Stitching Outlines the Upper Part of the Frock in the Mode Militaire.



An Afternoon Coat of Black Broadcloth with an Astrakhan Cowl Collar and Deep Cuffs Is One of the Most Unusual Models from the Late Collections. Nice Detail Is to Be Found in the Heavy Stitching and Cloth-Covered Buttons Which Accent the Waistline.

Black Satin for Fall Is a Perennial Fashion Favorite, and This Frock Combines Many of the New Dressmaking Features in Its Slashed Sleeves, Draped Collar, Clusters of Conventional White Flowers with Silver Leaves at the Neckline, Skirt Fullness Concentrated at the Front and Important Sash. It Is a Nice Frock for Any Afternoon Occasion.





A Smart Ensemble for Fall Wear Is of Soft Wool in Reseda Green with a Huge Collar of Shaded Blue Fox. The Silver Buttons Which Trim the Frock and the Tiered Sleeves Reflect the Military Trend.

A Study in Color Contrasts Is to Be Found in This Smart Traveling Costume Which Combines a Burgundy Wool Coat with a Cobalt Blue Suit. The Coat with Its Fullness at the Back, Wide Sleeves and Nice Big Pockets, Is Also Suitable for Sports Wear.

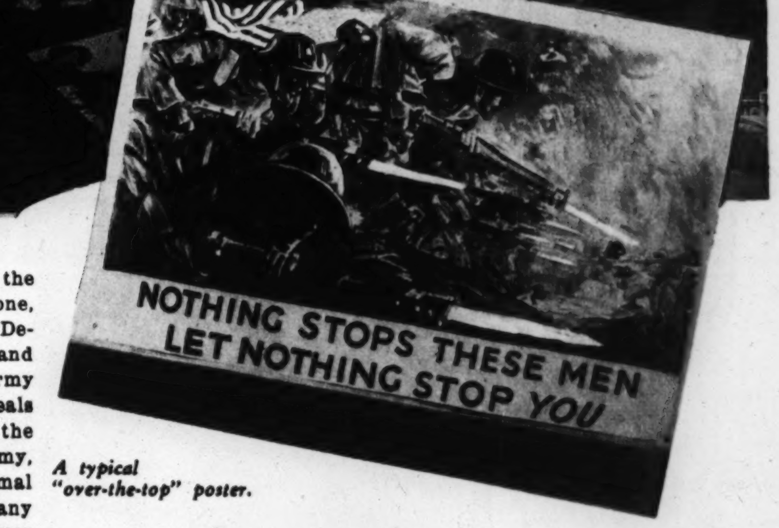
THE AMERICAN AMBULANCE IN RUSSIA

Colonel and Mrs. Edward H. McCrahon examining some of the 3000 war posters they have been gathering since the year after the Armistice.



A typical "over-the-top" poster.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

ONE of the most suggestive and possibly illuminating of the sundry side features of the American Legion convention will be the exhibition of the large collection of war posters belonging to Colonel Edward H. McCrahon of Washington and now being shown in the Assembly Hall at Stix, Baer & Fuller, Sixth street and Washington avenue. The showing consists of 400 of the 3000 pieces which Colonel McCrahon has been engaged in collecting ever since 1919, and represents what is said to be the most complete and comprehensive collection of its kind.

In general the posters are chiefly of interest because they illustrate as nothing else could one phase of the world-wide propaganda machine with which war sentiment was stimulated in the 32 countries from which the posters were assembled. Aside from this somewhat morbid attraction, they can be considered to have a certain importance in the recent history of art. Several well-known painters and illustrators are included among the designers. Their contribution may have done something to make the poster manner a feature of serious art. But to the majority of those who have seen and will see the exhibit, especially to those of them who watched the war from the civilian sidelines, the posters will be interesting largely because they evoke with such unequaled immediacy the memory of the terrible and fantastic emotional pattern of the war years—the machine-made passions which swept to such incredible heights and have since come to seem so nightmarishly unreal.

COLONEL McCRAHON—who began his collecting with a recruiting poster by Howard Chandler Christy, which shows a rosy-cheeked young woman musing, "Gee, I wish I were a man, I'd join the Navy"—considers his copy of the French order of mobilization the rarest and most valuable item in his collection. It was found tacked to a door in the war-ravaged French village of Mieux, near Paris, and has since become so scarce that even the French Department of Archives doesn't own a copy.

Other posters reveal telling sidelights on the history of the war. There is the German one, for example, which reads: "Deliver rabbit pelts to dealers and breeding companies. The army needs them." Others are appeals for subscriptions—to assist the Red Cross, the Salvation Army, the American Red Star Animal Relief, the Near East Relief. Many are advertisements for bond issues each country needed to pay pressing bills for the continuation of the carnage. "Subscribe for victory," screams one French poster, showing a peasant girl leading onrushing troops in a cloud over a field full of big guns and slaughtered men. "Subscribe to the war loan! For a good peace!" reads a German poster. No future historian will have long to seek for evidence that the war was a battle of francs and dollars against marks, lire against kronen.

But perhaps the most typical of all are pictures of charging troops, their handsome faces set in molds of heroic determination, embellishing inflammatory mottoes excoriating the "vicious, barbarian" enemy.

Science Looks At Auto Drivers

from their tenth year until they give up driving or are killed in a road accident. Although practice and attention make a better driver, reactions of nerves and muscles don't improve more than one-tenth of a second, regardless of constant practice. Tall people are a trifle slower than short ones, for some reason. People with the best possible reaction time can stop a car going 70 miles an hour in 65 feet less than those with the slowest reaction time. Most highway collisions are caused by drivers who can't estimate distances. Usually it is people with this defect who crack up between intersections on clear days, on straight, dry roads. And the great majority of accidents occur under those conditions—not on slippery, curving roads or at crossings.

"Driving an automobile," says this expert, "involves the exercise of skill—just as do sports like golf or horseback riding. But practically nothing is done by motorists to improve their driving ability after they have once acquired the minimum fundamentals necessary for a license. The sportsman is interested in analyzing his faults. The average motorist isn't. Even if he wanted to, he could not obtain definite information about his faults and how to correct them.

Dr. DeSilva thinks his various tests will provide a method with which the driver can learn what is the matter with his form and find out how to improve it or compensate for faults that can't be changed. He is anxious to have Massachusetts take over his system of tests so that every driver can be classified and so that the inept, the senile and the temperamentally unteachable can be kept from adding their contributions to the 36,000 annual death toll. Since Massachusetts is already far advanced in its regulation of driving, it will—it is believed—give some of Dr. DeSilva's findings attention. In that State auto liability insurance is compulsory, automobiles are tested twice a year to eliminate bad brakes, out-of-adjustment lights, worn-out tires, worn steering gear, defective windshield wipers and so on. Old or dilapidated cars simply can't be licensed. Likewise, drivers who can't pass the required tests for skill and physical fitness are refused the right to drive.

Makes a Living By Worrying

him an accordion teacher. She did.

At 1 p. m. she received a frantic call to get a large soot spot removed from a beige carpet in a dining room where a dinner party was scheduled at 7 p. m., and the carpet could not be taken up. She told her harassed caller not to worry, her cleaning men would not only remove the spot, but would use electric dryers to dry it up.

This all sounds very luxurious, but Mrs. Plunkett isn't above doing the most humble shopping for a client. She will outfit the children to go back to school to save mother spending hours at knit-underwear counters; buy any kind of a present and wrap it in a manner so fetching that the donor will receive thank-you notes that sound as if the recipients really were pleased. She will tie four-leaf clovers on wedding or steamer gifts or anything that needs good luck—only she won't tell where she gets the big-as-saucers four-leaf clovers.

NECESSITY caused Mrs. Plunkett to cash in on her knowledge. And it is a means of making a living that she recommends to any housekeeper who knows how to shop and has the friends, acquaintances or casual strangers for whom to shop. Faced with a sudden loss of income, she hadn't the remotest idea of how to support herself. And even in her bewildered state, friends came for advice. She thought it must be good advice, because it was always followed. Decided that if advice was good—for nothing—it should be good for something. She made arrangements with shops, agencies and individuals she dealt with as housekeeper and worrier-for-herself. Starting with one part-time stenographer, the business grew in 13 months to require the full-time services of four secretaries and two clerks.

As one who required service from others, she understands thoroughly the client's point of view. There are no ifs, ands, buts, or we'll-see-what-we-can-dos about her. She knows instantly if she can fill an order, and she doesn't shilly-shally. Therein lies her charm and the secret of her success, especially with business men and busy women who hate indecision.

Worrying about domestic routine may give gray hairs to others, but to Sally Plunkett it pays handsome dividends. Sally Plunkett will buy anything, from a baby's rattle to a yacht, or do any little odd job that needs attending to. That is, practically any.

Rich Man's Wife and Plumber

lie. It's a lie," and his mother confessed that she had, as a matter of fact, accepted a present of some furniture from Mrs. Etienne, than the case was suddenly closed, the attorneys agreeing to submit briefs to Judge Comstock instead of continuing the public hearing.

Out of court, however, the accused wife was free in her comments. "The proceedings are ridiculous," she declared curtly, "the maneuverings of a jealous husband." She didn't love her husband, she said, but she didn't love Bartholomew, either. "Infatuation!" she exclaimed in an injured tone. "Absurd. I'm living there because I must. My husband gives me no support and I had to rent my home to get enough money to live on."

JUDGE COMSTOCK mulled over the briefs for nearly a year before announcing his decision. When he brought himself to come out with it, the opinion read in part as follows:

"The Court is satisfied from the evidence that a very intimate association existed between Mrs. Etienne and the defendant, both before and after the separation of the plaintiff and his wife. This was unquestionably encouraged by said defendant's mother and co-defendant (Mrs. Helen Bartholomew).

"It does not follow from the intimacy of the association, however, that it was not of Mrs. Etienne's choosing or caused in whole or in part by plaintiff's attitude and conduct toward her. Mrs. Etienne appears to have been a person given to seeking youthful and exciting companions and to indulging in liquor parties.

"Is she an innocent victim of schemers, or has she chosen her own way and voluntarily created a condition which has naturally brought her husband to a state of worry and distraction which in turn has completely destroyed what happiness was theirs? I am of the opinion that the latter was the case.

"Under these conditions the Court is constrained to deny plaintiff any relief herein. If he would claim relief from his wife's conduct it must be in the divorce court. Judgment will be for the defendants."

THE CHARACTERS

BILL BUNNY—An unfortunate little rabbit.

BECKY BEAR—A baby bear.

HARRY HOARDER, JERRY AND TOM TURTLE—A squirrel, a duck and a turtle, who are neighbors of Bill Bunny.

Little Becky Bear caught Bill Bunny when he was taking a nap under a tree, and she is making the unwilling old rabbit play like he is her bunny doll. Now Becky isn't hurting Bill in any way, in fact, she is treating him just as she treats her real bunny doll. But Bill, who is the father of six little bunnies, doesn't like being treated as though he were a doll. He knows from experience that Becky, who is stronger than he is, will spank him if he resists. We see her walking along carrying Bill as

THE PLAY BEGINS

BILL BUNNY—Now listen here. You can't go down that path. All my friends live down there.

BECKY BEAR—I wanna show my bunny doll.

BILL BUNNY—But listen. (Then to himself.) Oh, well, what's the use. I'll have to think fast. (Bill does some very fast thinking. And by the time they come to the Hoarder home he has a plan.)

HARRY HOARDER—(Surprised.) What's the matter, Bill? Did you hurt a leg?

BILL BUNNY—(Acting very superior.) Ha, ha. No, no, I'm not hurt. I just got tired of hopping around, so I got little Becky to play like I was her doll and she carries me every place I want to go. How does it feel to climb trees? Ha, ha. Ha, ha.

JERRY—Aren't you afraid that her mother will be angry when she finds out you're making her work so hard?

BILL BUNNY—No. I've got her thinking that I'm taking care of Becky for her. Ha, ha, ha. (Bill and Becky go on and in a little while pass Tom Turtle.)

BILL BUNNY—Hello, Tom. How does it feel to be carrying your house these hot days? Ha, ha, ha. (Tom says nothing. He only stares in amazement. And Bill and Becky go on.)

BILL BUNNY—(Looking back.) I surely made them jealous. (And Bill never was more correct. Poor Harry Hoarder is all upset.)

HARRY HOARDER—When I think how I have to climb trees and run around, it just makes me sick to see that rabbit taking it so easy.

JERRY—(His neck over a log.) I'm disgusted. I just wish someone who likes nice tender duck would come along here with an ax.

TOM TURTLE—Imagine him being carried and me carrying a house around. It isn't right. (But one wonders if they would be so annoyed if they could just see Bill Bunny, who, at this very moment, is playing patty-cake with Becky. At least they wouldn't feel as disgusted as Bill does.)

I KNOW JUST WHAT HE MEANS, BETTY. I'VE NOTICED HER BREATH, TOO. AND LISTEN, I'VE THOUGHT OF A WAY TO TELL HER WITHOUT HURTING HER FEELINGS...
SO, THE NEXT DAY
MOTHER, I'VE GOT TO GO TO THE DENTIST'S TODAY. COME ALONG AND KEEP ME COMPANY
I'D LOVE TO, BETTY.
WHISPER—
...AND NOW, DOCTOR, TALK LOUDLY. I WANT MOTHER TO HEAR YOU.
YES, BETTY—MOST BAD BREATH COMES FROM IMPROPERLY CLEANED TEETH. DECAYING FOOD PARTICLES COLLECT IN THE CREVICES BETWEEN THE TEETH AND CAUSE ODORS. I RECOMMEND DAILY USE OF COLGATE DENTAL CREAM BECAUSE OF ITS PENETRATING FOAM!
WHAT'S THAT THE DENTIST IS SAYING?.. MAYBE THAT'S WHY TOMMY AVOIDS ME..! I'LL JUST GET SOME COLGATE'S AND SEE...
NEXT MORNING
DOESN'T COLGATE'S TASTE GOOD, GRANNY?
UM-M-M MY MOUTH CERTAINLY FEELS FRESH AND CLEAN. AND I DO BELIEVE MY TEETH ARE BRIGHTER, TOO!
THAT NIGHT
KISS ME GOOD-NIGHT, GRANNY, AND TUCK ME IN...
YOU'RE A SWEET LAMB, TOMMY—SLEEP TIGHT!..
...HOW GLAD I AM I GOT THAT HINT ABOUT COLGATE'S!

Most Bad Breath Begins with the Teeth!

WHY risk bad breath? When it is so easy to get at the most common cause—improperly cleaned teeth! Use Colgate Dental Cream! Its penetrating foam removes the decaying food deposits that lodge in the hidden crevices between your teeth—where ordinary cleaning methods fail to reach.

At the same time, a soft, grit-free ingredient gently, safely polishes the enamel—makes teeth sparkle. Get Colgate's today! And be sure that your teeth are always sparkling . . . that your breath is purer and sweeter!

IF YOU PREFER POWDER . . . Colgate Dental Powder gives the same results, sells at the same low, money-saving prices, carries the same double-your-money-back guarantee.

WINS IN SEWING SPEED CONTEST—Mrs. George Maxim, shown here receiving the blue ribbon in a recent sewing machine race, reveals her secret, "Of course, I've been sewing a long time, and that gives you speed. But the real reason I won—and I may as well tell you—is that I was using J. & P. Coats best 6-cord thread, and it seldom breaks. You'd be surprised at the time you can waste, because of a snapping thread!"

SPRING LAMBS—These youngsters were only four days old and very wobbly on their little black legs when they were snapped in St. Louis County by Mrs. H. P. Lawther of Kirkwood.

PHONE, FOR ME?
A MAN. HE SAYS IT'S IMPORTANT.
HELLO...YES, I HAVE A SKATTERBOLT SIX....WHAT DO I VALUE IT AT.? WELL...
I'VE HAD NUMBERLESS OFFERS ON IT AND...$75? FRANKLY, FRIEND, THAT'S VERY LOW. I WOULDN'T EVEN CONSIDER IT, BUT WHERE ARE YOU NOW?
YES....YES... YES...I'LL BE HERE IN HALF AN HOUR.
I'LL SIT DOWN AND WAIT FOR YOU, FRIEND. YES...YES.. YES....
HEY! JO! LISTEN! IT'S A CUSTOMER....FOR THE CAR! HE TALKED REAL SILLY. I KNOW IT'S A SALE.

AH, AT LAST! I'LL BET THIS IS HIM. I'D BETTER RUN UP AND PUT ON A COAT SO HE'LL KNOW I HAVEN'T BEEN BUSY.
MR. BUNGLE?
YES SIR! IS IT ABOUT THE CAR? GLAD YOU HAPPENED TO CATCH ME HERE IN THE YARD. JUST STEP THIS WAY, SIR.
THAT'S IT! A VERY VERY LATE '28. THE PAINT IS A BIT DULL, BUT IF IT WAS CLEANED AND POLISHED....
HOW MUCH DO YOU VALUE THAT TUG AT?
TUG? HA HA! WELL ANYHOW, ABOUT THE PRICE. IT'S WORTH $200. I REFUSED $198.50 FOR IT LAST WEEK, BUT I JUST FEEL IN THE MOOD TO SELL TODAY, AND SO $150....BUT NOT ONE PENNY LESS, TAKES...
YOU VALUE IT AT $150, EH? FINE! YOU'RE SURE THAT'S THE REAL VALUE, $150?
ABSOLUTELY AND POSITIVELY. AND THAT OFFER IS GOOD ONLY TODAY. TOMORROW I'LL ADVERTISE IT.
AND THE FIRST ONE HERE WILL BE THE LUCKY ONE. YES SIR, THAT CAR IS WORTH $150 OF ANYBODY'S MONEY AND...
FINE! I'M FROM THE ASSESSOR'S OFFICE. WE'RE CHECKING UP ON VALUES. LAST YEAR YOU PUT THIS CAR IN AT $8, SO I'M GLAD YOU NOW ADMIT IT'S WORTH....
NO, POSITIVELY MR. BUNGLE, EVEN IF YOU WALK FOUR MORE MILES, I CAN'T PUT THAT CAR IN AT LESS THAN $30.
....ALSO, I KNOW THE MAYOR'S COUSIN. JUST KIDDING ABOUT THAT $150. LISTEN, SPLIT THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN $30 AND $8. CALL IT $15....YES? LISTEN....

About How Tiny Eckersall Wrecked the Great Heston's Touchdown Sprint

Only 145-pound Walter Eckersall stands between the mighty Willie Heston of Michigan and the goal that afternoon in 1904.

Knowing he can neither dodge, stiff-arm nor bowl over Chicago's tiny all-time all-American quarterback, Heston hurdles the charging mite—the crowd thundered its applause.

But, with remarkable agility, Eckersall recovers his balance, wheels on one foot and takes out after the flying Michigan star, himself an all-time all-American.

Heston was one of the fastest men who ever played—but Eckersall could outrun any man he ever met on a football field! Hardly had Heston regained his stride when Eckersall nails him from behind! Game ends—Michigan, 22; Chicago, 12.

Here's Walter Eckersall, Chicago's brainy midget—all-American in 1904, 1905 and 1906. He died several years ago.

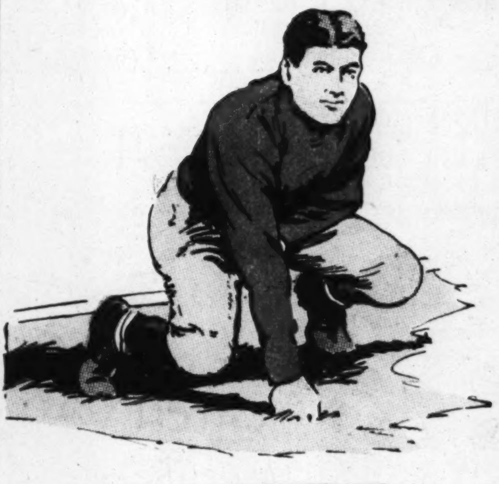
BACKFIELD STANCE



Here is an excellent example of the low crouched offensive stance that backs should assume. Either foot may be slightly back. Weight on toes, not heels. Forces a low pass, not easily detected by the secondary defense. This is the crouched stance.

NEXT WEEK

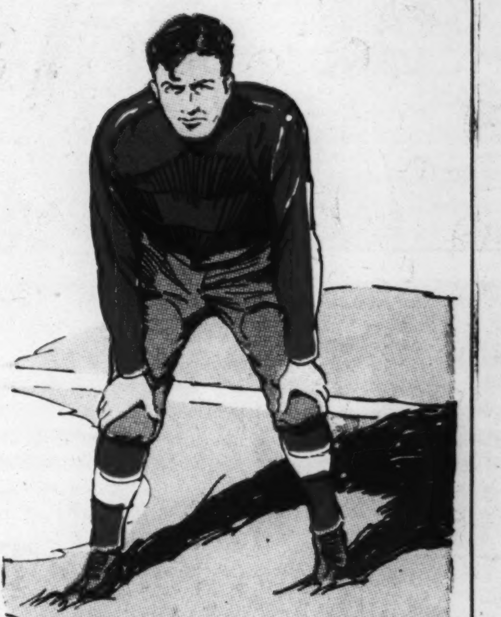
Ball Carrying



This is the semi-upright stance, feet parallel with line of scrimmage. Knees bent and hands resting on thighs. Here again the weight is on the toes. Resting weight on heels will cause back to lose time in rising up on balls of feet when starting.

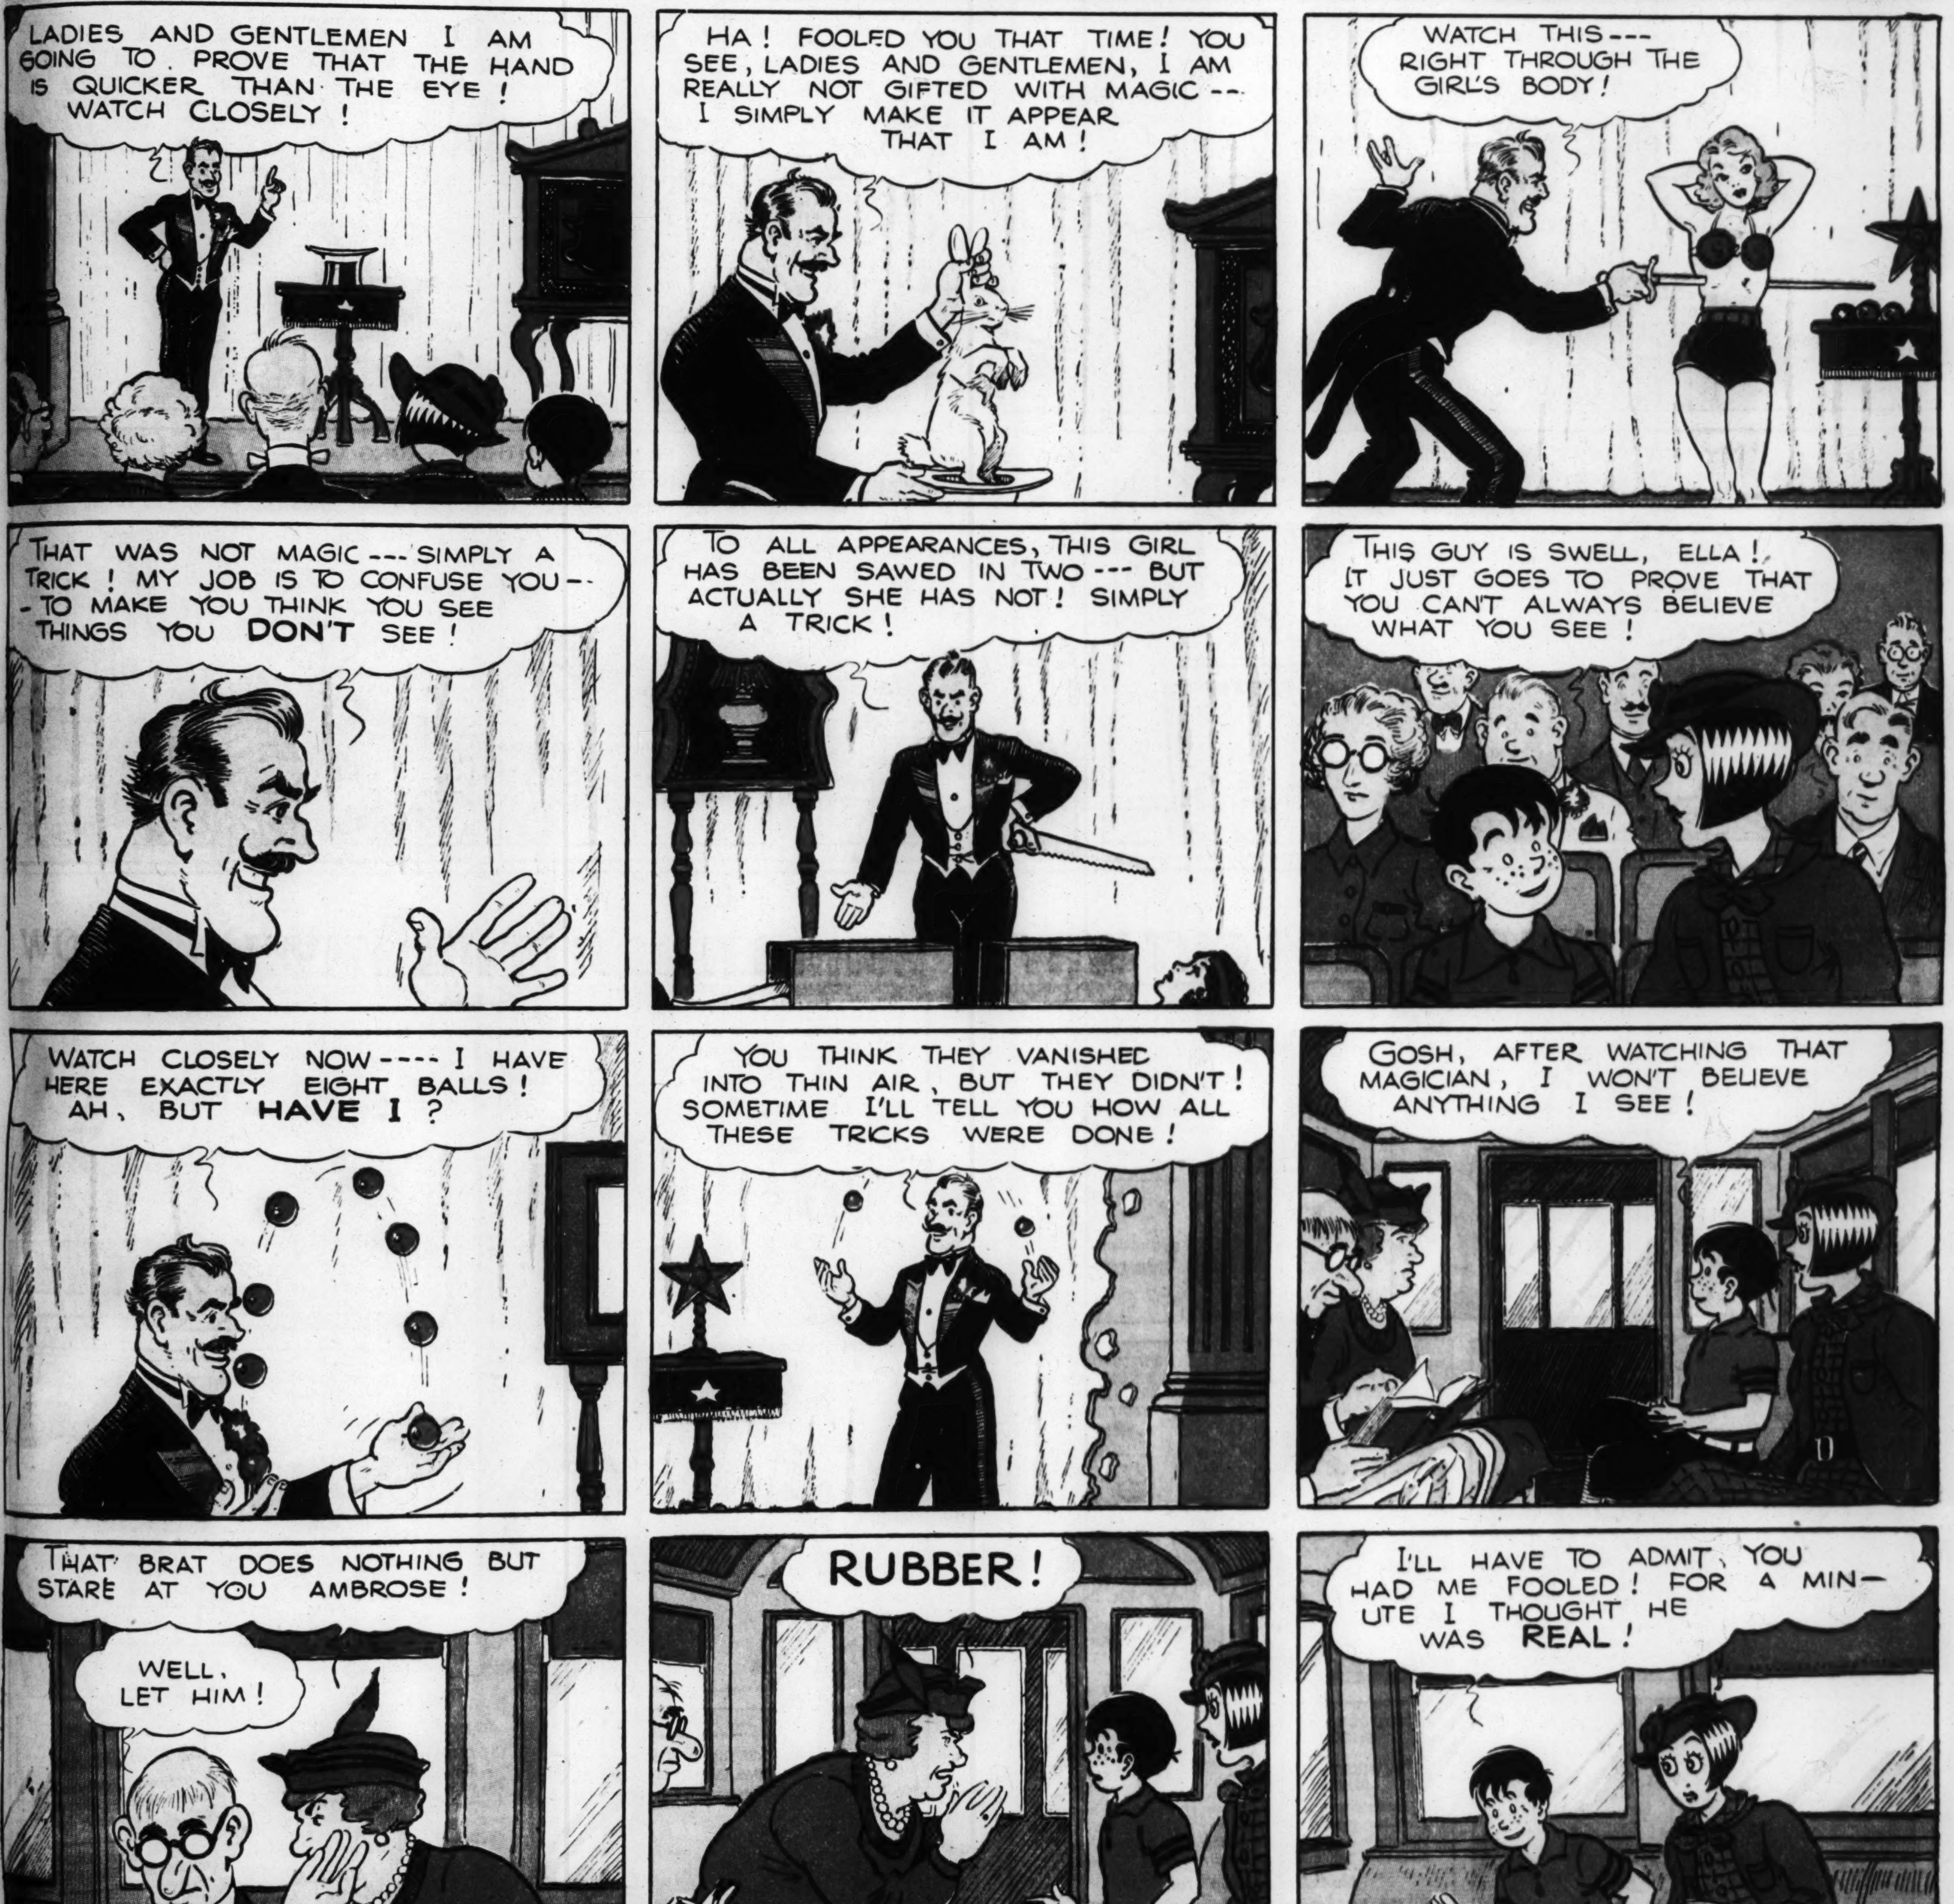
IT MUST HAVE TAKEN A LOT OF COURAGE TO RESCUE ME THE WAY YOU DID!
YEAH, I HAD TO KNOCK DOWN THREE OTHER GUYS THAT WANTED TO DO IT!



LADIES AND GENTLEMEN I AM GOING TO PROVE THAT THE HAND IS QUICKER THAN THE EYE! WATCH CLOSELY!
HA! FOOLED YOU THAT TIME! YOU SEE, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN, I AM REALLY NOT GIFTED WITH MAGIC -- I SIMPLY MAKE IT APPEAR THAT I AM!
WATCH THIS--- RIGHT THROUGH THE GIRL'S BODY!
THAT WAS NOT MAGIC --- SIMPLY A TRICK! MY JOB IS TO CONFUSE YOU -- TO MAKE YOU THINK YOU SEE THINGS YOU DON'T SEE!
TO ALL APPEARANCES, THIS GIRL HAS BEEN SAWED IN TWO --- BUT ACTUALLY SHE HAS NOT! SIMPLY A TRICK!
THIS GUY IS SWELL, ELLA! IT JUST GOES TO PROVE THAT YOU CAN'T ALWAYS BELIEVE WHAT YOU SEE!
WATCH CLOSELY NOW ---- I HAVE HERE EXACTLY EIGHT BALLS! AH, BUT HAVE I?
YOU THINK THEY VANISHED INTO THIN AIR, BUT THEY DIDN'T! SOMETIME I'LL TELL YOU HOW ALL THESE TRICKS WERE DONE!
GOSH, AFTER WATCHING THAT MAGICIAN, I WON'T BELIEVE ANYTHING I SEE!

ITALY MAKES NEW DEMANDS AND BRITAIN REJECTS THEM

Counter Proposals at Geneva Unacceptable, Says English Delegation Before Committee Trying to Settle African Dispute.

DISARMING OF ETHIOPIA SOUGHT

Strip of Territory West of Addis Ababa Also Asked For—Pessimistic Atmosphere Noted at Meeting of the League.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 23.—British delegates took the position before the League of Nations Committee of Five today that Italy's so-called counter proposals to the committee's program for settlement of the Ethiopian crisis were unacceptable.

The political atmosphere in League lobbies after the five-power committee's meeting was one of pessimism.

Ethiopia's reply to the League Committee proposals, made public tonight, stated that nation was "willing to open negotiations immediately on the basis of the committee's suggestions" for international development of Ethiopia.

The reply emphasized the essential part of the committee plan is recognition of the right of the Emperor to reject at will any foreign adviser who might not possess his full confidence.

Report to League Council.

The committee decided that the time had arrived to put the League Council in touch with new developments in the situation. It prepared to make its report to the council, from which it will probably ask for fresh instructions.

The Italian proposals were reported to be:

1. Ethiopia should be totally disarmed.
2. Organization, training and armament of future armed forces in Ethiopia should be intrusted solely to Italy.
3. Italy should receive a belt of territory, passing west of Addis Ababa, connecting its colonies of Eritrea and Somaliland.
4. Italy would not object to an outlet to the sea for Ethiopia, provided the port were in Italian territory.

The following communique was issued here:

"The Committee of Five met this morning to take note of the affirmative reply received from Ethiopia on its proposals and also to examine the Italian reply and its accompanying observations. The committee decided to report to the Council the whole situation as it appears from documents and information."

Italian circles announced that Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy, at a meeting with Salvador de Madariaga of Spain, the committee chairman, had confirmed point by point the observations he made last night concerning the League's proposals. He added, according to Italian sources, that these observations were those of the Italian Government.

Position of France.

It was indicated in official French circles that, as a result of these latest developments, France was determined more than ever to act within the spirit and the letter of the League Covenant.

The impression was general that before the Council would consider the question of sanctions, it would ask for the advice of the League Assembly.

If the conciliation efforts collapse, the Committee of Five will bring in, as an official communique, a report on the entire situation, probably with recommendations for the settlement of the dispute.

These recommendations may or may not follow closely on the present League suggestions that the dispute be ended upon an international guarantee of protection for the frontiers between Ethiopia and the Italian colonies in East Africa.

League officials said that after the meeting all members of the Committee of Five seemed determined to push for a quick solution of the crisis and to be desirous that the Council as a whole consider the new situation created by Italy's attitude.
